SENATE VOTES TODAY ON DRY REPEAL PLAN

Democratic Leader Aids Wets by Last-Hour Switch.

U. S. POLICE POWER PROVISION DELETED

Antiprohibitionists Suddenly Find Selves on Victory's Threshold.

By J. BERNARD M'DONNELL.

Antiprohibitionists in the Senate last night found themselves closer to victory than they have been at any time since prohibition was hustled into the Constitution and antiprohibitionists were made to talk small and quiet by the rampant drys.

Voting on the repeal resolution is scheduled for today.

Advancement of the antiprohibition cause to something resembling a death-bed repentance on the part of Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, floor leader of his party in the Senate.

Senator Robinson has suddenly come to life as an advocate of the promises made by his party in the last campaign and under his leadership the Senate agreed that the question of removing the prohibition amendment from the Constitution should be decided by State conventions elected especially for the purpose of considering the question.

Had Proposed Substitute.

Senator Robinson had proposed a substitute for the Blaine prohibition repeal amendment, which conformed to the naked repeal promise of the Democratic platform. It was such a repeal proposal which House leaders demanded should be passed.

Having won his proposal that the matter should be submitted to special State conventions, Senator Robinson then was successful in having struck out of the repeal proposal the so-called Federal police power provision. The police powers were contained in section 3, which provided that "Congress shall have concurrent power to regulate or prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors to be drunk on the premises where sold."

Much Chiding on Floor.

Approval of the State convention proposal was given by a vote of 45 to 15, but the decision on the elimination of the Federal police power from the Constitution was by such a close vote that senators on the floor audibly chided one another for their votes and one or two changed their votes, explaining they had voted under misapprehension, which might have been true because they were not on the floor when the voting on the particular question was begun. The vote to eliminate the police power provision was 33 to 32.

After that vote there wasn't much question about the disposition of the Senate to vote on the repeal proposal. The filibuster which had been led by the very frank Senator Morris Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, the day before had petered out, and soon after the vote to strike out of the resolution the police power provision Senator Charles L. McNary (Republican), of Oregon, assistant leader of the Republicans, won an agreement that a vote should be had on the proposal

Insull Paper Profits Bared in Senate Quiz

Fugitive's Son Tells of $25,000,000 Family Privilege; Owen D. Young and Gen. Dawes to Testify Today.

(Associated Press.)

The Senate dug into the ruins of the great Insull financial empire for the first time yesterday and unearthed a contract under which members of the utility magnate's family might have made a fortune and prepared to question Owen D. Young and Charles G. Dawes today.

From Samuel Insull, jr., whose father is now a fugitive in Greece, the Senate's Banking Committee learned that members of the family were permitted by the contract in question to buy stocks in an Insull investment trust for $25,000,000 less than their market price. The "paper profits," young Insull said, were never realized.

Young created a stir by appearing in the committee room yesterday. He said he was there under subpena, nonchalantly lit a pipe and listened to the testimony from a rear seat. He was one of a long list of "favored customers," as revealed by receivership proceedings in Chicago, to whom the elder Insull sold stocks at advantageous prices.

Meanwhile, at a Federal Trade Commission inquiry a mile away, Examiner Carl H. Depue described what he termed the "practice" of the Insull family in forming companies, selling stock from one to the other of these companies, setting up the stock at fictitious values, and offering the resulting inflated shares to the public throughout America, Canada and Europe.

Depue was mainly concerned with the records of the Insull, Son & Co., Inc., one of the few parts of the Insull system which is not in receivership, the reason being, Depue said, that "there's little left to go into receivership about."

The committee room was crowded as young Insull testified, but only a

HOUSE DEFEATS INCREASED TAX ON INTANGIBLES

Also Removes Barrier to Cut in Real and Personal Levies.

CITY HEADS ALLOWED TO REDUCE OLD RATE

Move Will Be Made Today to Restore $625,000 Item for District Needy.

Removing the legislative barrier against reduction in District real and personal property taxes, the House yesterday proceeded to strike from the District appropriations bill a 20 per cent increase in the local tax on intangibles.

Both provisions were thrown out of the bill on points of order, the first raised by Representative Howard W. Smith (Democrat), Virginia, and the second by Representative Will R. Wood (Republican), Indiana.

The Smith point, sustained by the Chair, renders inoperative a clause that has been in the District bill for years, forbidding the Commissioners from reducing the real and personal property rate below $1.70, and paves the way for a cut in this rate by the District Commissioners.

Cannon Amendment.

Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, chairman of the House District appropriations subcommittee, himself introduced an amendment reducing this limitation to $1.50, but a point of order against this, by Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, was sustained.

The Committee's proposed 20 per cent increase in the intangibles tax was designed to raise $309,000 annually to provide for unemployment relief in the District, in lieu of the $625,000 asked for the last six months of 1933 by the commissioners.

Amendment to reinsert the $625,000 in the bill when welfare items are reached today, will be made by Representative Smith. He moved to insert the item at another place, yesterday, but it was held inapplicable to that section of the bill.

The House badly defeated three attempts to reduce the Federal lump sum contribution toward District needs, and narrowly escaped sending the measure back to committee for reconsideration, when members refused to permit Representative Thomas L. Blanton (Democrat), Texas, to withdraw an amendment striking out the enacting clause.

Taxi Meters Beaten.

An effort by Representative Byron B. Harlan (Democrat), Ohio, to remove the prohibition against the Public Utilities Commission requiring taxis to install meters, was defeated. He raised a point of order that failed, and was beaten on a motion to remove the restriction.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

PRESIDENT-ELECT UNHURT; CERMAK BADLY WOUNDED

Two Women, Detective and Child Are Hit by Bullets of Assassin Who Is Mobbed.

PISTOL AIM WAS DEFLECTED AS BYSTANDER SEIZED ARM

Bricklayer Boasts He Wanted to Kill Roosevelt; Asserts He Aided Death Plot Against Reigning King of Italy.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Six shots were fired at President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight, wounding five persons including Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago.

The President-elect was uninjured.

The assailant, who was captured by a rush of Secret Service men, police and sheriff's officers, was described as Giusseppi Zingara, an Italian brick-layer. He was spirited away by officers to save him from an angry crowd. Police said he admitted he bought his gun with the intent to kill Mr. Roosevelt.

The shooting took place in Bay Front Park here a few minutes after Mr. Roosevelt had come ashore from the yacht Nourmahal, on which he had been cruising through the Bahamas. The President-elect was responding to a welcome of 10,000 people gathered in the park when the crack of pistol shots cut short his speech.

Boasts of Plotting to Kill King of Italy.

Zingara was said to have admitted that ten years ago he was party to a plot against the life of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy.

(An attempt was made in 1911 on the life of King Victor Emmanuel and the assailant was imprisoned until 1928, when, at the king's order, he was given full freedom in a general amnesty.)

The injured, in addition to Mayor Cermak, who was shot through the chest, the bullet coming out his back, and who may be fatally wounded, were:

William Sinnott, of New York, detective, shot in head.

Mrs. Joseph Gill, wife of the president of the Florida Power & Light Co., shot twice in the abdomen.

Mrs. Margaret Keyes, of Newark, N. J., shot in the hand.

Russell Caldwell, aged 5, of Cocoanut Grove, Fla., slightly injured.

Roosevelt Cancels Plans.

First reports had been that a secret service man named Brodnaux, who was with the President, had been shot in the head. It developed, however, that he had leaped to a position in front of Mr. Roosevelt to shield him and then had joined in the rush to capture the assassin. In the confusion it had seemed that he had been shot.

Mr. Roosevelt canceled plans for his return to New York tonight. He will spend the night aboard the Nourmahal, Vincent Astor's yacht, on which he had returned earlier tonight from an 11-day trip.

The President-elect had just completed a brief address to residents, in a setting that was colorful and in keeping with the occasion when the shots, six of them, split the air.

How Roosevelt Escaped.

Mayor Cermak, who had been standing on the running board of the shiny black automobile in which Mr. Roosevelt was in the back, dropped to his knees in the fusillade.

Mrs. Gill was struck as she stood on the outer fringe of the crowd about 50 feet from the car.

"I got Cermak." Zingara was heard to shout before the crowd recovered from the first shock of the attempt at wholesale killing.

Mr. Roosevelt owes his life to the fact that a split-second before the shots were discharged he had lowered himself down to the rear of his motor. He had been standing, braced by his arms on the lowered top of the car. He was in the process of sliding into his accustomed seat when the bullets cut through the air.

No sooner were the shots fired, it seemed, than the Roosevelt car was thrown into gear by the chauffeur and it was sent into motion through a path cleared by police sirens.

Woman Deflects Aim.

Mr. Roosevelt was heard to remark, "I'm all right." He waved his arms to the crowd as an indication that he had been spared. He was driven to his special train on a siding of the Florida East Coast Railroad and later to the hospital where the wounded were rushed.

After urging that all possible comforts be given the victims he was driven back to the Nourmahal, where but a few hours ago he laughed and joked with the newspapermen who boarded the yacht to greet him after his absence.

Reports brought back to the train by Robert H. Gore, a member of the Roosevelt party, said hospital authorities expected Mayor Cermak to die of his injuries.

"The bullet struck Cermak full in the chest and came out through his back," Gore declared.

Mrs. M. J. Cross, of Northwest Second street, Miami, was standing close to Zingara as he arose from a crouching position with the gun in his hand. She sensed the impending tragedy and tried to wrest the weapon from his hand. He climbed a chair to get an accurate aim.

He was about 35 feet from the Roosevelt automobile, which had stopped to allow the President-elect to extend a greeting to this city.

All of the wounded were placed in an automobile belonging to the reception committee and hurried to the Jackson Memorial Hospital.

Shouts of "Lynch him" and "Kill him" went up on all sides as soon as the vast crowd sensed what had taken place. An American Legionnaire gave Zingara a smashing blow in the face with his fist as he was being dragged off to the Miami Jail for questioning.

As the news spread to all quarters of the city a few hours after the shooting, a crowd gathered in front of Miami's seventeen-story city hall and jail. There were mutterings and cries of "Let us have him."

Persons who were close to the Roosevelt automobile said that the action of Mrs. Cross in forcing upward the arm of the gunman, thus deflecting his aim, saved the life of the President-elect.

David Whichard, a Western Union messenger boy, declared that "I saw the woman (meaning Mrs. Cross) reach up as Zingara attempted to get into a position to fire. She grabbed his arm and forced it upward. She couldn't stop him from shooting, however. When the shots had been fired men and women jumped all over him."

Assassin Is Grilled.

Fashionable Bay Front Park, one of Miami's show places, was turned into a mad uproar as soon as the echo of the shots had died away. People scrambled in all directions, many of them toward Deputy Sheriff Hardy, who had Zingara by the collar and was dragging him off.

Later reports said that the wife of

MATSUOKA PLANNING TO VISIT ROOSEVELT

Tokyo League Delegate Asks Permission to Return Through U. S.

Tokyo, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Yosuke Matsuoka, who has served as Japan's special counsel during the long debate over the Manchurian problem at the League of Nations in Geneva, cabled the foreign office today for permission to return home soon by way of the United States, where he hopes to see Franklin D. Roosevelt or other members of the new administration shortly after the inauguration.

The request will be granted, a foreign office spokesman said, but Mr. Matsuoka will have no official mission in the United States. He will be permitted to leave Geneva as soon as the league assembly disposes of the Manchurian question, which is expected to be not later than February 25.

The Japanese government is not likely to withdraw from the league because of the Manchurian deadlock for at least a month. The government takes the position that such withdrawal would be a turning point in the empire's history, and before final decision is made the council of elders, composed of the most distinguished personages of the empire, will be summoned for consultation.

Although the league has left the door open for further attempts at

In the day's fighting 24 persons were injured. Among them were nine gendarmes, two women and an officer.

The workers barricaded themselves in the shops this morning, announcing that no work would be done until the eleven leaders, who were arrested in a roundup of Communists, had been set free.

MAIL BALKS ACTION ON TREASURY BILL

Bratton 5 Per Cent Slash to Cause Extension of Conference.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

Failing to reach agreement on elimination or the existing air mail subsidy, or any major economy in the Treasury-Postoffice bill, House and Senate conferees yesterday "dug in" for protracted sessions.

So great is divergence among members on some of the provisions, including the Bratton 5 per cent cut, the air mail subsidy and reorganization powers for the President, that rumors of "no bill this session" yesterday spread the breadth of the Capitol.

They promptly were declared "unjustified" by spokesmen for conferee Senator Tasker L. Oddie (Republican) Nevada, chairman of the Senate subcommittee, said the conference is proceeding "in a sane and normal way," but may require some time, due to the number of controversial items.

Mail Subsidy Issue.

The group has taken final action on every provision in the Treasury-Postoffice bill with the single exception of the air mail subsidy issue, and the far-reaching economy rider. It was learned from another authoritative source.

In an effort to save the $19,000,000 House air mail appropriation, stricken by the Senate, Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), New York, chairman of the House Committee on Postoffice and Post Roads, and Representative Clyde Kelly (Republican)

Man, 22, Shot Dead On Steps of Home

Frank Chavez, 22, Thought to Have Slain Self After Visiting Friends.

Frank Chavez, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chavez, 833 Longfellow street northwest, was found shot through the head and fatally wounded early this morning in front of the home of Spencer D. Smith, 5505 Eighth street northwest. He was taken to Walter Reed Hospital, where he died shortly after arrival.

The young man was found by Everett E. Neil, 5509 Eighth street northeast, who called police. A revolver and the young man's hat were found lying near him.

He was shot through the right temple with a small-caliber revolver. A note found in his pockets read: "I love Pemmie, but she turned me down."

It was learned by police that the man had called at the Smith home yesterday afternoon to see Smith's niece, Miss Pemmie Lee, 20, with whom he had been keeping company for some time.

HOWE DOUBTS CHIEF ASSASSIN'S TARGET

Few Crank Notes Received; Mrs. Roosevelt Gets News in New York.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Col. Louis Howe, confidential secretary to the President-elect, expressed great surprise tonight at news of the shooting in Miami in which President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt's life was endangered.

"The President-elect's mail has been especially free of any crank mail or threats of any kind," he said.

"I seriously doubt," Howe continued, "the bullets were meant for Mr. Roosevelt, as he is not the type of man who would be the target of such an assault."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt bustled into the room of the Roosevelt mansion on East Sixty-fifth street while Howe was talking to reporters and calmly asked, "What is it all about?"

Her daughter, Mrs. Anna Curtis Dall, followed her into the room anxiously.

When Howe explained that Mr Roosevelt was unhurt, Mrs. Roosevelt sat on the edge of her chair, smiled broadly and said, "Phew, that's great."

When she noticed that reporters were in the room, she smiled graciously and said:

"You've got to expect these things."

Advised that Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago had been wounded, she expressed great anxiety and said she would wait by a telephone until she could get details from Mr. Roosevelt himself.

'IS DASTARDLY ACT,' PRESIDENT ASSERTS

Wires Roosevelt His Relief He Was Not Hurt; White House Guard Increased.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover last night expressed shock at the news from Miami concerning shots fired at the reception for President-elect Roosevelt, and immediately sent a message to the President-elect saying "I rejoice that you have not been injured."

The President's statement dictated to the Associated Press from the White House, follows:

"I am deeply shocked at the news. It is a dastardly act."

Mr. Hoover dispatched the following telegram to Mr. Roosevelt:

"Together with every citizen I rejoice that you have not been injured.

"I shall be grateful to you for news of Mayor Cermak's condition."

The President had retired for the night when the word first was brought to him of what had happened. He arose at once to get details, which were relayed to him by his secretary, Theodore Joslin, who had been in touch with the Associated Press.

W. H. Moran, chief of the Secret Service, received a brief telephone report of the attempted killing from his assistant, Joe E. Murphy, who is with the Roosevelt party at Miami.

Murphy told his chief that the President-elect had just finished his address and sat down when what Murphy described as "a boy" about ten rows back opened fire. Secret Service men quickly seized him and disarmed him.

Murphy said the shooter was young and appeared to be of Latin origin.

At the time Murphy made his re-

Schoemaker Urges Round-Up on Theory Cermak Was Gang Target.

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker, informed of the shooting of Mayor Cermak, immediately asked Florida officials to take into custody eighteen Chicagoans reported to be there. Twelve of those named by Schoemaker are reputed associates of Capone gang leaders.

Acting on the possibility that Cermak, rather than President-elect Roosevelt, was the target of the would-be assassins, Schoemaker ordered police squad cars to make a general pick-up of known gangsters.

Officials of railroads running trains to Florida were asked to furnish lists of Chicagoans who have bought tickets for there during recent weeks. A hasty search of police records failed to reveal any trace of Joe Zingara the name given by the man captured at Miami.

Farley Says Roosevelt Must Cut Appearances

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—When informed tonight of the Miami shootings, James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, said President-elect Roosevelt will "now probably have to refrain from making so many public appearances."

Farley had no further comment on the shootings, other than to say he believed Mr. Roosevelt would continue on to New York at once.

Meals for School Children, Opposed by Minister, Voted

Opening Wedge for Communism, Dr. Bennett Tells Board of Education, Arguing Ballou's Plan May Lead to Giving of Clothing.

A warning that direct aid from the Board of Education in furnishing food for school children may turn out to be the opening wedge for Communism was expressed at the board meeting yesterday by the Rev. F. I. A. Bennett after Superintendent Frank W. Ballou submitted a recommendation for the setting up of mess-serving machinery.

Dr. Bennett argued that the serving of food under direction of the board might be followed up with the distribution of clothing and other aid. He expressed the view that such work should be conducted by public welfare organizations exclusively.

However, Dr. Bennett voted in favor of the report after it was agreed to submit the plan to the District Corporation Counsel to determine its legality.

Dr. Ballou made two outstanding recommendations. One called for the supplementing of the recess period milk and crackers with such food as the medical and dietary inspector of schools might recommend, "with the understanding that the serving of any kind of food is contingent on the facilities in the schools for handling such food."

The other recommendation proposed the turning over of school cooking facilities to an organized group of citizens for the preparation of hot meals to be distributed in homes where such nourishment is needed. Both recommendations were approved by the board, their actual operation to await the decision of the corporation counsel.

Dr. Bennett again came to the fore in a condemnation of the renovation of old Business High School for use by the Grimke colored school. Dr. Bennett declared that the job was the most unsatisfactory of its kind he had ever seen. No effort had been made, he said, to comply with specifications.

"I never saw a dirtier building," Dr. Bennett told the board and school

SIX SHOTS ARE FIRED AT PRESIDENT-ELECT

Mayor Cermak Is Seriously Wounded; 4 Others Hurt; Assassin Boasts Hate.

Zingara had been arrested with him but these could not be verified.

Meanwhile, police officials and Secret Service men put the would-be assassin through a severe cross-examination in an effort to determine whether he had confederates and the motive behind the shooting.

The President-elect sent word from the Nourmahal that he would visit the hospital at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning to see the wounded. He plans to leave here at 10:15 o'clock tomorrow for New York.

Henry Kannee, secretary to Marvin H. McIntyre, President-elect Roosevelt's secretary, returned to the special train late tonight to report that Sinnott, one of the wounded, was a New York City detective.

The shooting threw a pall over what had been widely advertised as the biggest night of the winter season. Hours before the stately yacht Nourmahal entered this port crowds began flocking into the city from points as far distant as 100 miles.

Most of them came by automobiles and waited patiently for hours in the sultry weather for the President-elect to drive past and to acknowledge the vigorous waves of his arms.

Although the excitement died down soon with the dispersing of the crowd in Bay Front Park, Miamians did not go to bed. In little groups they stood on street corners and along wide Biscayne boulevard discussing the shooting and what it meant.

McIntyre, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, who accompanied his chief to the Nourmahal, sent word back that there would be no statement.

From close friends, however, it was learned that the President-elect was calm and that his only worry was for the injured.

Zingara Expresses Hate.

At Pier 1, where the Nourmahal is moored, a knot of curious persons stood about the gates leading to the dock. Police kept them back. Word from the yacht said that Mr. Roosevelt when he went aboard went immediately to the salon, where he was surrounded by his companions on the fishing trip.

They discussed tonight's incident, but withheld all public comment until a full report could be submitted by the police and the Secret Service men headed by Capt. James Reidy.

Those with Mr. Roosevelt were Prof. Raymond I. Moley, Vincent Astor, Judge Frederick Kernochan, of New York; Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late President, and George St. George, of Tuxedo, N. Y.

Late tonight Commissioner of Police John Knight, who helped take Zingara to jail, declared the prisoner told him:

"I am poor. I always have been poor. My people have been oppressed for many years. I hate all kings and I hate all presidents."

Knight also declared Zingara told him that he decided on the assassination attempt this afternoon and only today purchased the second-hand gun he used. It was said to have been a .32-caliber weapon.

History of Recent Trip.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt left New York City on January 19 and stopped in Washington, where he held a second conference with President Hoover before going on to Warm Springs, Ga., for his last vacation before becoming the Nation's Chief Executive.

While at Warm Springs he held a highly important conference with the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, concerning the arrangements for the coming conference on war debts in Washington.

A few days later he announced his plan for development of the Tennessee Valley, which aroused deep interest throughout the country.

On February 3 he left for his first real rest since his nomination, for a fishing trip aboard the yacht of Vincent Astor.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 15.—Gladding B. Coit, an examiner for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, suffered a fracture of the right arm and possible fractures of several ribs when an automobile he was driving struck a safety zone beacon on Blair road, near Ravenwood avenue.

He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by Patrolman Leonard Atkinson. After being treated, he wanted to leave the hospital, but remained, on the advice of physicians.

Mr. Coit lives at 1200 Sixteenth street northwest, Washington. He was summoned to the Traffic Court on a charge of reckless driving. The police said Mr. Coit was alone in the car when the accident occurred.

Post's Radio News of Shots Far Ahead of Big Networks

Postilion Announced Attempted Assassination of President-elect at 10:08, 22 Minutes Ahead of Closest Rivals; How "Scoop" Was Handled.

The invisible staccato fingers of Radio Station WMAL forked out over Washington last night at exactly 10:08 o'clock one of the greatest news flashes of the year, the attempted assassination of President-elect Roosevelt. It was The Washington Post's radio announcer, the Postillion, who gave the city its first intimation that the life of the man who will head the Government was in peril.

The Postillion "scooped" the Columbian Broadcasting System by 22 minutes, and the National Broadcasting System by 29 minutes.

Fifteen hundred miles away, at Bay Front Park, on Biscayne Bay, thousands swarmed about the scene of near disaster. Mayor Cermak of Chicago, William Sinnot and Mrs. Joseph H. Gill, of Miami; Russell Coldwell and Miss Margaret Krewa, of Newark, N. J., lay on the sidewalk wounded. Roosevelt sat pale in the rear seat of an automobile. Police were carrying away a gibbering maniac.

Like wildfire the Associated Press worked to spread the authoritative news. In the A. P. division of The Post an electric teletype machine pounded out the graphic news. A fleet-footed copy boy tore off the first stunning paragraph. It was a few minutes after 10 o'clock. Most of The Post's early edition was ready to go out on the street.

The cry of "Stop the presses!" rent the air. The paragraph shot downstairs to the printers. The copy desk threw away two banner lines which were scheduled to lead the night's news and substituted two black ones about the assassination attempt.

Up at Station WMAL, The Postilion was barking the latest news of the night. The city editor got the station on the phone. The WMAL operator copied down the startling message. She rushed it in to the gabbing newsannouncer. He gulped once or twice and read it—at 10:08—while pandemonium was at that instant reigning at the scene of the shooting. He went on to other news, but came back to the Roosevelt dispatch once, twice, three times.

The city was stunned.

POST IS SWAMPED BY ANXIOUS CALLS

Stimson and Persons in All Walks Eager for News of Miami Shooting.

Rapidity with which news travels, particularly when it is of serious nature, was demonstrated last night by the number of inquiries about the attempt on President-elect Roosevelt's life answered by The Washington Post.

Almost from the moment the first flash went out over the air at 10:08 p. m. on The Postilion, The Post's nightly summary of the news over Station WMAL, the telephone in The Post editorial rooms rang constantly.

Inquirers were from all walks of life. Secretary of State Stimson, who had been out driving until an hour after the first receipt of the news, called The Post when informed of some "big story" by one of his servants. He expressed deep concern over the incident and was eager to obtain all details of the attempt.

Persons who had heard the announcement over various radio stations called to verify these announcements and to get additional information. Others heard boys shouting extras and unable to buy the paper, called The Post to learn what had happened.

Calls continued to come into The Post switchboard far into the morning as news gradually spread to those who had not been in a position to buy papers or hear the radio announcements.

Murphy said it had not been determined how serious the wound was, but feared it was dangerous.

The Secret Service detail assigned to protect the life of President Hoover immediately was doubled upon receipt of word of the attempted assassination.

The uniformed guard of patrolmen around the White House also was ordered increased.

Richard Jervis, chief of the White House detail of the Secret Service, immediately upon hearing of events in Miami, acted to supplement the detail of two men of his staff on duty at the Executive Mansion, despite Mr. Hoover having retired.

"We will take every possible precaution," Jervis said, after dispatching more of his staff to the White House.

Speaker Garner, the Vice President-elect, had retired, but in spite of his rule against being disturbed, hotel officials aroused him and informed him of the happenings at Miami.

They said he expressed shocked surprise, but would make no public statement until today.

ATTEMPT UPON LIFE OF T. R. IS RECALLED

Former President Shot as He Campaigned on Progressive Ticket.

(Associated Press.)

The attempt on the life of President-elect Roosevelt recalled last night that the late Theodore Roosevelt was once wounded by an insane person in an attempted assassination.

The shooting of the former President occurred October 14, 1912, when he came to make a speech in this city following his nomination for President by the Progressive party. He recuperated in a Chicago hospital.

Besides the three martyred Presidents—Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley—assassins have taken the lives of other notable political leaders in the United States. In 1893 Carter H. Harrison, sr., Chicago's Columbian Exposition mayor, was slain. In 1900 William Goebel, Democratic claimant to the office of governor of Kentucky, was assassinated. Another slaying attributed to political activities was that of former Gov. Frank Steunenberg, of Idaho, in 1905.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Of the attempted assassination tonight at Miami, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith said:

Tortured

Homesteader, Set Afire by Two Robbers, Lives to Tell of Horror.

Tucumcari, N. Mex., Feb. 15 (A.P.). Two robbers sat on the desolate prairie early today and jeered while their penniless victim, Lee Marshall, 50-year-old homesteader, sizzled in flames after they had chained him, threw gasoline on him and set him afire.

After Marshall was burned from head to foot and his screams were silenced, the men apparently believed him dead and loosened his bonds. They left and Marshall staggered 8 miles through zero weather to neighbors. He was brought to a Tucumcari hospital. Physicians said he probably would die.

Marshall said the men accosted him as he stepped from his homestead dugout, 20 miles east of Logan. They beat him and set him afire, he said, when they found he had no money.

The entire countryside near Logan was aroused and organized a posse to hunt for the men who were believed to have fled east toward the Texas line.

SNELL SEES BIG JOB SALE IN FARLEY PLAN

Holds Tactics to End Deficit Worse Than Southern Postal Scandals.

(Associated Press.)

The Republican House leader—Snell, of New York—responded yesterday to Jim Farley's appeal for contributions to wipe out the $750,000 Democratic treasury deficit by terming it "the boldest proposition for the sale of Federal jobs" he had ever heard.

Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee and prospective Postmaster General, urged abolishment of the party debt before Franklin D. Roosevelt takes office, saying this should be done to "avoid even the appearance of a bargain."

Snell, one of the few outstanding Republicans spared by the November election tornado, saw the matter, however, in an entirely different light, and told newspapermen so.

"Open and Shut Case."

"It looks like to me," he said, "that this proposition is an open and shut case. Those who contribute the most to paying off the Democratic deficit, apparently are going to get the jobs.".

"Mr. Farley's proposition," he added, "is worse than any charge I ever heard about selling postmasterships through Negroes in the South. If this is the way the incoming administration is going to be run, I think the country ought to take cognizance of it."

Farley said Tuesday he saw no reason for being "mealy-mouthed" about the question, especially "with an incoming adminstration that purposes to be entirely frank with the people."

Astounded at Statement.

"Mr. Farley certainly was not 'mealy-mouthed' about what he apparently has in mind," Snell commented. "I was astounded to read in the press that anyone so high in party affairs could talk like that.

"And to think, that he, probably the next postmaster general and concededly the dispenser of Federal patronage for the Roosevelt forces, should be so bold as to make such a statement. The country ought to know just what it means."

In New York City, Farley heard about Snell's assault while he was making it clear that he would have complete charge of Federal patronage in New York State and that Tammany leaders would have to bow to his wishes. Apparently undisturbed by the Republican blast, he said he would make no reply yesterday.

Farley Lets Curry Know Who's Boss

"Big Jim" Informs Tammany He Will Have Final Say About Jobs.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—"Big Jim" Farley threw down the gauntlet today to Tammany Hall and announced he was going to be boss of Federal patronage in New York.

In a 25-word statement he settled definitely the speculation over the position John F. Curry, Tammany chief, will have in the Federal picture.

"John F. Curry," he said, "will have to submit his list of those whom he wishes appointed to Federal offices to me for my approval as State chairman."

Cermak's Two Doctors Plan Flight to Miami

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Dr. Frank J. Jirka, son-in-law and personal physician of Mayor Anton J. Cermak of Chicago, tonight made arrangements to charter an airplane for an immediate flight to Miami, Fla., where Cermak was wounded tonight.

Dr. Jirka is director of the Illinois Department of Public Health. Jirka said he would try to get Dr. Karl Meyer, head of the Cook County (Chicago) Hospital, to fly to Miami also.

Dr. Meyer, a stomach specialist, has helped attend Cermak in previous illnesses.

MEASURE PROPOSES FREDERICK PAY CUT

Change in Laurel Charter Is Also Urged in Bill at Annapolis.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 15.—Introduction of bills cutting public salaries in Frederick County and changing the charter of the town of Laurel in Prince Georges featured today's session of the General Assembly as a suggestion was made that Federal funds be used to widen the Philadelphia road.

Senator Joseph L. Donovan (Democrat), Howard County, proposed that the State spend the $800,000 road fund it receives annually from the Federal Government on widening the Philadelphia road from Baltimore to the State line. This would eliminate the bond issue proposed for this work and cancel the plan to fund the issue by a toll on the Susquehanna bridge at Havre de Grace.

The State Roads Commission has not committed itself on Senator Donovan's suggestion, but has agreed that this use of the Federal funds shall not reduce the counties' road aid. The amount of Federal funds which might be diverted from the counties would be made up by the commission out of the 2-cent gas tax, Maj. E. Brooke Lee, a member of the commission, said.

Salary Cuts Proposed.

The bill changing the Laurel charter would provide a salary for town councilmen and make numerous other changes in the government. A hearing on another Prince Georges County bill, limiting the fees of constables and magistrates, was held by the county delegation today. A number of constables and one magistrate, represented by Attorney John S. White, appeared to oppose the bill. Mr. White pointed out that the bill would make only a small saving and would work a hardship on the officials, destroying their morale.

The Frederick County bill forbids the county commissioners to spend any money for the pay of school supervisors, or agricultural teachers or agents. It also makes a graduated scale of salary reductions mandatory. Ten per cent would be taken from the salary of all persons receiving between $1,500 and $2,000, except the county commissioners. Salaries, between $2,000 and $2,500 would be cut 15 per cent, and between $2,500 and $3,000, 20 per cent. Those in the $3,000-$4,000 class would be cut 25 per cent, while all over $4,000 would be reduced 30 per cent.

Two Bills Rejected.

The House session was marked by two minor fights on the measures making it mandatory to employ Maryland citizens on public works, and on the bill reducing the automobile tax from 32 cents per horsepower to $1 flat. Both bills were turned down.

Maj. Lee held a conference with delegates from Baltimore City to point out to them that the administration's road bill was fairer to the city than the measure sponsored by the County Commissioners' Association. Both bills give the city the same proportion of the gas tax, but the administration bill will spend the 2 cent tax on main roads used by Baltimoreans, while the commissioners' bill will divide the 2 cent tax among the counties for use on back roads, he said.

Hearings were also held yesterday on the appropriation for the State banking commissioner and the chain store bills. There seemed to be little disposition to cut the commissioners' appropriation. Several hundred proponents of a heavier tax on the chain stores crowded the House chamber for the other hearing.

conciliation in the Sino-Japanese dispute, the foreign office announced that Japan would make no further offer of concessions and would stand firmly by its determination to maintain the government of Manchukuo over the Province of Manchuria.

Geneva, Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Full cooperation by the United States with the League of Nations in making effective the league's recommendations censuring Japan for its military activities in Manchuria is expected, members of the league's committee of nineteen said tonight.

The delegates based their opinion on a communication from Secretary of State Stimson which, in the form of an aide memoire of arms embargoes, made a deep impression on the committee.

They placed particular emphasis in the Stimson document's phrase stating: "There might be a situation in which, as a result of investigation and consultation on a large scale, a clear definition was agreed upon by all cooperating powers that one side or the other was the aggressor."

Members of the committee considered that this phrase applied directly to the Chinese-Japanese controversy.

Bullitt Returns and Clears Mystery; Is Writing Book

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—William C. Bullitt came back to America today and answered the question: "Who is Bullitt?" He's a man writing a book.

Envoy extraordinary? Representative of the President-elect? Pretender at either? None of these things—just a man writing a book on "statesmanship."

He was on the Europa which docked four hours late because of fog.

At first he was reluctant to say anything. He was handed a number of clippings, news stories printed in America during his sojourn in Europe.

One clipping carried the name of Senator Arthur R. Robinson (Republican), of Indiana, who introduced a resolution asking an investigation of Bullitt's activities. Bullitt looked at it and asked suddenly:

"Who is this Senator Robinson?" adding, as if to answer his own question: "I never heard of him."

As he read he laughed, chuckled and broke out every now and then with a "nonsensical," a "ridiculous" or just a "silly."

"All news to me," he announced.

"The first I knew of this ridiculous rumor," he continued, "was in Vienna when an American newspaperman telephoned me and said that I was being accused in America of being up to some nefarious business. I told him that I certainly was because I was having lunch with 'Red' (Sinclair) Lewis.

"As a matter of fact I've been representing only myself. I've been working on something of my own for a number of years and when I am ready to let it go, I'll——

"Is it a book?"

"Yes, it is," he blurted. "I'm writing a book—that's the whole thing."

"What's it about."

"Statesmanship."

"What kind of statesmanship?"

"Just statesmanship."

Bullitt lives in Philadelphia. He announced plan was to go immediately to his home.

BRITONS CLEAR WAY FOR DEBTS ACCORD

MacDonald and Simon See Early Discussion With U. S. on Problems.

London, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Two of Britain's most important statesmen—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon—cleared the way today for discussion of all the major economic problems now bothering the world in connection with the Anglo-American debts negotiations to be held in Washington shortly after the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mr. MacDonald told the House of Commons he was anxious "that all questions which delayed world recovery should be discussed by Great Britain and the United States in a spirit of cooperation for common ends." The prime minister recalled that in a recent statement Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain made it plain that the war debts were not regarded by the British government as an occasion for bargaining.

Mr. MacDonald's statement, a reiteration of what he told the House of Commons on Monday, was in reply to a question about whether the Chamberlain declaration meant that the British policy was to treat the American war debt as an isolated problem.

The Labor floor leader suggested that the House debate the government policy before the departure of the debts mission to Washington. Mr. MacDonald rejected this suggestion.

The foreign secretary touched on the debts problem in a speech before a National government rally at Southampton.

"Let me repeat," he said, "what already has been publicly stated, how deeply we appreciate Mr. Roosevelt's invitation for an early exchange of views with him, not only on the subject of debts but on the wider range of economic problems which will in due course come before the world economic conference, and in the solution of which all of us on both sides of the ocean are so vitally interested."

Sir John said he understood that Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States, now en route to his post after debt consultations with the cabinet, will have an opportunity "soon after he reaches New York to see Mr. Roosevelt again."

COLOMBIA AND PERU BOTH CLAIM VICTORY

Blame Exchanged in Opening of War; Passports Granted by Bogota.

(Associated Press.)

Colombia claimed victory against Peru yesterday in their clash in the Leticia border country, and blamed Peru for opening hostilities. Peru likewise claimed victory, and blamed Colombia for starting the fight.

An official Peruvian communique said the forces of the Lima government retained control of Tarapaca, a fort on the Putumayo River about 80 miles north of Leticia on the Amazon. A Colombian announcement said "our flag floats on the hills of Tarapaca, captured in battle by the artillery supported by planes."

The Colombian government delivered passports to the personnel of the Peruvian legation, an act which in international usage means the severance of diplomatic relations. Bogota also instructed its minister at Lima to demand his passports and return home.

Man's Burns Fatal In Bungalow Blaze

Former Watchman at Naval Academy May Have Met Foul Play.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 15.—Howard F. Stonesifer, 28, until recently employed as a watchman at the Naval Academy, was burned to death early today when fire destroyed his bungalow on Weems Creek, an estuary of Severn River. His charred body was found by West Annapolis firemen who responded to an alarm at 6:30.

Neighbors said they heard shots fired in the vicinity of the Stonesifer home during the night, and Police Justice Thomas G. Basil, acting coroner, is conducting an investigation to determine whether Stonesifer was a victim of foul play. The body of Stonesifer, identified by his wife, Frances Stonesifer, from whom he had been estranged, bore no bullet holes, however.

Howard Givens, taxicab driver, and several other witnesses before the inquest, testified that a party, attended by several men and women, was given at the Stonesifer home last night, but all departed at 2 o'clock this morning, leaving Stonesifer in the bungalow. They said Stonesifer had been drinking but was able to take care of himself.

AMERICA IS UNEASY AT LETICIA EVENTS

Arms Embargo Is Probable Only if Revolt Occurs in Either Country.

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

The United States was seriously concerned with developments in South America yesterday over the severance of diplomatic relations between Peru and Columbia. The dispute between the two countries over territorial sovereignty threatens to involve at least one other country, Brazil, upon whose territory the Peruvian act of aggression took place and perhaps other neighboring countries as well.

This violation of the Kellogg pact by Peru brings the Leticia affair into the same category as the Manchukuo incident between China and Japan.

The action of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs in reporting out the arms embargo statute falls short of dealing with the present situation in South America as it appeared dubious last night that this measure will receive senatorial approval at this session.

Possibility of Revolution.

At the present time and under the existing regulations, the President can only declare an embargo against Peru in the event of domestic revolution in Peru itself. The situation of President Sanchez Cerro is particularly delicate at this time because he finds himself between two fires.

On the one hand is the ominous voice of the military junta demanding prompt action in Leticia for national honor and on the other hand is the equally insistent demands of the Apristas, or Socialist followers of Haya de la Torre, who are demanding prompt cessation of hostilities. If President Sanchez Cerro sends the military leaders to Leticia, he will fall under the commands of the Apra.

On the other hand, if the Peruvian Government withdraws from Leticia in compliance to the demands of the signatories of the Kellogg Pact, the government may be overthrown by the military forces.

Meeting of Ambassadors.

There will be no definite action by the President of the United States to declare an embargo on the sale or exportation of arms and war material to Peru so long as a stable government remains in Lima. But under conditions of domestic unrest, which would certainly describe a revolution in Peru at this time, the embargo would in all certainty be declared by the United States and all shipments of arms and ammunition to this country would be immediately halted. It is probable that similiar action would be taken by the other countries, who have discussed the violation of the Kellogg-Briand Pact with the United States.

Secretary Stimson January 24 convoked at his home in Woodley a special meeting of the Ambassadors of Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Japan to discuss the common action that might be taken by the signatories of the Pact of Paris.

The Colombian government had forwarded a note to the great powers reciting the origin of the conflict and requesting that some action be taken by the powers to prevent a rupture of the conditions of the pact, by Peru as seemed apparent at that time.

Awaits Complete Details.

The United States does not contemplate any special action at this time until more complete details of the action around the Putomayo River have reached here. The exact identification of the aggressor in Tuesday's incident has been established only from unsubstantiated reports.

The minister of foreign relations in Colombia, Senor R. Urdaneta Arbelaez, forwarded a lengthy telegram to Col. Stimson on Wednesday in which he recounted the chronological incidents of the recent attack and formally accused Peru of violating the pact of Paris by dropping bombs on Colombian vessels from Peruvian airplanes, although the Colombian ships had not yet passed the boundary line between Brazil and Colombia and some of the bombs fell in Brazilian waters.

Embargo on 3 Countries.

The United States has forbidden the export of war material only to the following countries: China, Cuba, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua and Brazil. The embargo is still in effect, however, for only three countries, Nicaragua, Honduras and China.

Col. Stimson is studying the latest dispatches from American ministers in both countries and will await more ample information before taking any further step, it was learned.

Holland Orders Election As Cabinet Crisis Result

Bandits Shoot Man In Double Robbery

Bank Cashier Is Kidnaped by Same Gang Who Raid Garage.

St. Stephens, Minn., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Raiding a local bank and a garage simultaneously, three masked men wounded a man, kidnaped the bank cashier and then released him unharmed, as they fled today with between $400 and $500.

While two men entered the St. Stephens State Bank, the other went into Schuneman garage. In the bank, the cashier, J. F. Litinski, and a customer, Marten Karasch, were forced to the floor while the pair ransacked the cashier's till and safe.

Joseph Trobec, 22, was shot by the bandit who entered the garage because he did not immediately obey a command to "stick up your hands." Trobec said he thought the raider was "kidding."

Man Stages Suicide Act Nonchalantly

Kansas City, Feb. 15 (A. P.).—Charles H. Bray, 27-year-old former marine from the National Military Home at Leavenworth, entered police headquarters today and asked for a pencil and paper.

As he wrote, Patrolman W. B. Horowitz glanced over his shoulder and read:

"I am tired of living. I've been married three months, but my wife left me six weeks ago and came to Kansas City and got a job in a restaurant. I——"

"Say," interrupted the patrolman, "what are you doing?"

"I've just taken poison," Bray explained, "and I didn't want to die on the street so I came here."

An ambulance was summoned. The driver, Alex Costello, offered Bray a cigarette and, as they smoked together, inquired when he had taken the poison.

"Oh, a little while ago," the former marine replied.

A few minutes after he reached the hospital Bray died.

HARTZELL TO FACE ARREST ON LANDING

U. S. to Hold Him on Swindle Charge in "Drake Estate" Operations.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Oscar Merrill Hartzell, former Iowa farmer charged by Federal officials with misrepresenting himself as the legal heir to the fabulous estate of swashbuckling Sir Francis Drake, neared America and arrest on swindling charges tonight. Hartzell was aboard the liner Champlain, due to dock early tomorrow. He was deported from England as an undesirable.

Federal officials claim that Hartzell has described himself as rightful heir to the estate of the famous English mariner and that he sought and received donations ranging from $1 to $5,000 from persons who wished to "share in the $22,500,000,000 fortune."

Among representations alleged to have been made by Hartzell, whose home is in Monmouth, Ill., was that he conferred with King George several years ago about the "estate" and that the prospect of losing the "vast accumulation of moneys" caused the British monarch to suffer a physical relapse.

Inspectors of the United States Postoffice Department have reported to Special Assistant Attorney General John S. Pratt, of Toledo, Ohio, assigned to prosecute Hartzell on mail fraud charges in the Iowa courts, that the former farmer had received "donations" from about 10,000 persons scattered throughout the Middle West, New York and Pennsylvania.

Reports from England state there is not now, nor has there ever been any unclaimed Drake estate.

SENATE VOTES TODAY ON REPEAL MEASURE

and all amendments thereto at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Those antiprohibitionists who scented victory in the Senate votes yesterday were counting without their host. It takes a two-thirds votes of the Senate or the House to pass a measure calling for a change in the Constitution. There is a long cry between the 33 to 32 vote by which the police powers were stricken out of the Blaine repeal resolution last night and the 64 votes required to pass the repeal resolution.

Sheppard Sees Dry Victory.

Senator Sheppard, who has the grace to smile and laugh about the matter under chiding from his less intense colleagues, predicted last night that the antiprohibitionists would not be able to muster sufficient votes.

Senator Blaine said he thought the measure would be approved and sent to the House. Senator Millard Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, said he contemplated offering another amendment or so, but he did not think his proposals would delay final action on the measure in the Senate more than a few minutes.

Senator McNary was non-committal about the prospects of the repeal measure. Other senators were in the same boat. It seemed agreed that the fate of the measure, when the final vote came this afternoon, was in doubt and that the vote would be close enough to be determined by the votes of a very few senators.

Would Go to Conventions.

Adoption of the Robinson amendment anent police powers in the Federal Constitution, leaves in the repeal proposal only one paragraph which goes beyond the confines of the so-called naked repeal measure demanded by Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas; Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, and other Democratic leaders in the House.

As amended in the Senate yesterday, the repeal proposal would submit to State conventions especially called to consider the proposition, the following declaration, which would replace the existing eighteenth amendmetn to the Constitution:

"The eighteenth article of amendment to the Constitution of the United States is hereby repealed.

Protection of Dry States.

"The transportation or importation into any State, Territory or possession of the United States for delivery or use therein of intoxicating liquors, in violation of the laws therefor, is hereby prohibited."

It provides further that the proposed substitute amendment must be approved by two-thirds of the several States within seven years of its passage by Congress.

Approval of the Robinson amendments came after the Senate had voted by 58 to 23 to take up the Blaine repeal proposal.

Senator Robinson said that he believed the amended repeal resolution would be acceptable to the House. There is no question but that there are many members of the House who voted for the Garner naked repeal resolution who would rather vote for a repeal resolution containing some sort of a provision designed to protect dry States from the influx of liquor from those which might be wet.

KIDNAPING SUSPECT RESEMBLES CAPTOR

Mrs. Boettcher Unable to Identify Positively Man Police Seized.

Denver, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Investigation of the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher 2d, wealthy young Denver broker, who is held for $60,000 ransom, encountered a setback today when Mrs. Anna Lou Boettcher, failed to definitely identify N. W. (Red) Mitchell, reputed alcohol runner, as one of the men who abducted her husband Sunday night.

"A resemblance" was as close as the attractive blonde wife would come in her identification of Mitchell as one of the two men who seized her husband as they drove into the garage at their fashionable home after returning from a party Sunday night.

Mitchell was arrested Tuesday night. Police Chief Albert T. Clark said some of his officers reported they saw Mitchell and two other men follow the Boettcher car from a chili parlor where the Boettchers stopped just before going home. The car Mitchell was driving had no lights and he and the other two men with him acted suspiciously, the officers reported.

James Q. Newton, business partner of Boettcher, said today the family had not been in communication with the kidnapers at any time since the abduction. Although reticent in talking to newspapermen, Newton indicated Boettcher's wife and parents would be willing to pay the $60,000 ransom if they could get in touch with the abductors.

Bank Aid Wounded As Robber Is Slain

Policeman Shoots Teller by Mistake as Latter Runs Out.

San Diego, Calif., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—An unidentified robber was killed and a bank teller was seriously wounded by a policeman, who mistook him for a bandit, in a holdup of the United States National Bank today.

The robber was shot by J. R. Russell, cashier, after he had seized $3,154. Police were called and Officer Ernest Hance met Warren Mead, teller, as the latter ran out of the back door carrying a pistol. Hance fired one bullet through Mead's right lung.

Surgeons said Mead had an even chance for recovery.

MAYORS TO HOLD AID SESSION THIS WEEK

50 Municipal Heads to Ask Immediate R. F. C. Relief Here.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

A concerted drive for immediate liberalization of Reconstruction Finance loans, to permit direct borrowing by hard-pressed municipalities, will be launched here this week when the mayors of 50 cities assemble to map their program, in cooperation with Democratic leaders of the House and Senate.

With the aid of the American Municipal League, and under the personal direction of Mayor Frank C. Murphy of Detroit, mayors from all the principal municipalities suffering financial distress, will formulate a detailed program for transferring their burdens directly to the Federal Treasury.

Representatives of Mayor Murphy were in Washington yesterday to perfect arrangements for the meeting, which is to be held at the Hotel Mayflower tomorrow. The executive committee in charge of the program is composed entirely of Democratic mayors. Following their informal discussion of the project with party leaders in Congress, members of this committee expressed the belief yesterday that their program would receive prompt and sympathetic consideration. If it is not enacted in the short session, spokesman for the movement said, it surely will be achieved in the special session in the spring.

Maximum of $500,000,000.

A maximum fund of $500,000,000 for direct aid to municipalities is sought under the program arranged for tomorrow's meeting. This would help cities in maintaining their school, fire and police payrolls, and in meeting promptly all interest payments on their bonds. Scores of cities throughout the country have defaulted on bond interest during the last year, and others have been forced to postpone pay rolls on some of the essential municipal services. The only way out of this distressing situation, say those in charge of the new loan drive, is to secure direct aid from the Federal Government.

Mayors of 50 of the largest cities in the country, scattered from the Atlantic to the Pacific, already have signified their intention of attending tomorrow's conference. Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago has told the arrangements committee he will back the direct loan movement to the limit of his power. Mayor O'Brien of New York will be represented in the meeting by two members of his municipal cabinet. The Mayors of St. Louis, New Orleans, Cleveland, Baltimore, Columbus, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Denver, Milwaukee, Grand Rapids, Akron and Long Beach, Calif., are among those who have signified their intention of attending the session.

Federal Relief Advances.

Under existing law, Federal relief advances may be made only to States, or to cities for self-liquidating public works projects. Under these two sections, R. F. C. loans to 27 States, aggregating some $146,000,000, had been approved up to the end of January, in addition to approximately $56,000,000 approved for cities and States for self-liquidating projects.

The new movement, however, does not seek direct loans for human relief, or for public works construction. It contemplates, rather, direct Federal borrowings to make up municipal deficits occasioned by failing tax sources.

"Many of our cities have been operating in the red for months," one of Mayor Murphy's arrangements committee said yesterday in outlining the plan. "They must have loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to pay their school teachers. Already some of these cities have exhausted their last dollar of direct credit from the usual sources. Those which have defaulted on bond interest can not borrow a dime. Something ought to be done for them. They must be put back on their feet—and nobody but the Federal Government can do it."

Georgians Hold Conference.

Earlier this week, representatives of the Georgia Department of Education conferred with the two Georgia senators on ways and means to get R. F. C. money to finance the State's current deficit on the educational budget.

The demand for direct loans for city and State budgets has been increasing notably throughout the country during the last few months, but thus far the R. F. C. board has taken the stand that the Federal Government has no obligation, direct or otherwise, to finance insolvent municipalities.

If the law is changed to authorize city loans, all of these vexatious municipal problems will be solved at one bold stroke.

Railroad Findings Meeting Approval

Leaders in Transportation Like General Plans; Bankers Pleased.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The report of the national transportation committee, diagnosing the ills and prescribing cures for the entire transportation industry of the country, was carefully studied today by leaders in that industry, several of whom said they liked its general conclusions.

A number of railroad men, investment bankers, savings bankers and others appeared in general agreement that the task had been handled in fairness to all parties figuring in the highly competitive transportation field.

Most railroad men, including Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio, and Leonor F. Loree, the veteran pepper pot who heads the Delaware & Hudson, excused themselves from a formal statement, explaining that they had just received copies of the report and had not had sufficient time to digest it.

The Federal Diary

By GEORGE D. RILEY

"Keep Your Face Toward the Sun and the Shadows Will Fall Behind."

SWARMI FEDD—the man who sees all, knows all and may tell all—is wondering how inaugural visitors are going to identify the various Federal buildings that are now under construction in Washington?

Some time ago he made an offer to Col. Grant's office to put up appropriate identification signs, but his idea was said to be contrary to policy. However, our mystic friend still believes that "there ought'a be a law—or somethin'," so visitors to Washington, as well as our own citizens, will know that such-and-such hole in the ground, or that maze of steel girders will eventually become the home of the Commission for the Promotion of Vulgarian Trade or of the Starling Investigation Bureau. . . . And while we are about it, why not include with the identification such information as built of Georgia Marble and New Hampshire granite with steel from Pennsylvania, &c., &c., &c., so that residents of every State will realize the tremendous benefit which Washington construction projects bestow upon their own communities? . . . Sure! The Swarmi knows which is which!

THE object of the meeting was to select pictures and formulate titles which would strikingly force upon the attention of rural beholders the need for care if they would save themselves and their homes from disastrous fires.

One picture strip showed a woman bending over her kitchen range and fretting because the fire would not burn to her satisfaction. Seizing a can that stood nearby, she poured liquid upon the lazy flames to "quicken" them. According to the pictures things happened with stunning repidity thereafter for soon the house was a dreary ruin; the good housewife was no more.

Moved almost to tears by the pathos of the story as told in the picture, one committee member thus expressed his idea of a suitable legend.

"Maiden lady,
Rather green.
Balky fire;
Gasoline.
Pours the liquid;
Travels far.
Banks of flowers;
Gates ajar."

So You're Looking For a Spelling Champion in The Federal Diary

WASHINGTON POST

first annual spelling bee competition, February 28.

Suppose you enroll me for the contest, and may the best man (or woman) win.

(SIGNED).....

Bureau
or department.....

The name of "Doc" Cain, Commerce, comes as entrant in the Federal Diary first annual spelling bee at the National Press Club the evening of February 28, when prizes will be awarded. That is L. W. Cain, foreign and domestic commerce.

It's strange about spelling matches. We go into the contest all braced to meet hard words and some of us fall down on the easy ones. Ray Tucker, United Press representative, won a contest against members of Congress on the word "kimona."

On the other hand, a Congress member might have been propped for a word like this:

Unhypersymmetriconantiparallelepipedicalisationalographically.

There simply isn't any telling.

I LEARNED something yesterday which I thought might interest the readers of your column.

The change of light in the equestrian traffic signal at Tilden street hill is caused by the shadow of a horse passing between two electric lights and two electric eyes.

It has just developed that a white horse passing the light or approaching it at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon when the sun is not shining casts no shadow whatever, so that riders of white horses do not have the protection of the light at this time. Mrs. GLADYS W. ELDRIDGE.

We like to think that "Phil" in Philip Ebert's name stands for Philosophy.

To judge a man correctly, don't bother about his friends. Just find out who are his enemies.

Not all of the milk of human kindness is skimmed.

When "pulls" no longer count, rank injustice will be wiped out.

"How does your garden grow, Marion?" Well, it looked elegant the last time we saw it. In case you don't know, Marion started a Japanese garden some time ago, but the grass wouldn't grow so Marion put in some clover seed last week and this morning it had developed into a regular haystack. Marion is, by the way, Marion Clare, who holds forth in the translation section, Commerce.

WE all have them and we all try to forget them—sometimes. What are they? Dr. George W. Pope, chief, Field Inspection Division, Agriculture, and a man of mild manner and good fellowship, holds the secret. Today, without pomp or ceremony, he is observing one of these great, annual days. Well, George, here's a handgrasp across the interspace—congratulations! May you be able to say, as Longfellow, "This is my birthday, and a happier one was never mine."

MARLBORO ASSAULT PRISONER IS BAILED

One of Pair Charged With Beating Priset Released on $1,000 Bond.

One of two young men charged with assaulting a Marlboro, Md., resident yesterday, was freed from jail and left town.

The two prisoners were Henry Stansbury and Luther Dowell, charged with assault and battery and assault with intent to kill Lewis Priset, 50 years old. They were arrested Tuesday night. Later in the day Stansbury was freed on bond of $1,000 and went to Annapolis. Dowell is still held.

The two young men are said to have abducted Priset by force and taken him to the garage of Stansbury's house in Marlboro. There, according to County Policeman, G. William Gray, Dowell held Priset in subjection with a shotgun, while Stansbury attempted to beat him. Priset got the better of this encounter, Gray said, so Stansbury held the gun while Dowell beat the older man. The fight, according to the prisoners, was the outcome of slighting remarks made about Stansbury's wife by Priset. A hearing on the charge against the two youths is scheduled for tomorrow.

LONG SHOUTS 'LIAR!' AT PROBE WITNESS

Bozeman Says Road Officials Signed Book to Do What "Kingfish" Told Them.

New Orleans, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Senator Huey P. Long called Harley B. Bozeman, former chairman of the Louisiana tax commission, a "liar" today when he testified that Long as governor, had ordered him to double the tax assessment of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, the New Orleans States and the New Orleans Item and two New Orleans department stores, D. H. Holes Co. and Maison Blanche.

Chairman Howell (Republican), Nebraska, of the Senate committee investigating John H. Overton's election to the Senate, called Senator Long to order and the senator begged the committee's pardon.

Bozeman testified that while Governor of Louisiana, Huey Long demanded and received undated resignations from O. K. Allen, then chairman of the State highway commission, now governor; Jess Nugent and T. W. Gajan, all of the highway commission.

The witness further testified that Senator Long kept a "pledge book," in which he required various State officers to sign their names saying in effect that they would do as Huey Long told them. He said O. K. Allen's name headed the list.

Bozeman said Senator Long had told him that he "didn't trust anybody," and they had to "sign on the line."

SOME OF MICHIGAN BANKS OPEN TODAY

Millions Pour Into State as Restricted Withdrawal Plan Is Announced.

Detroit, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Money—millions of dollars—came into Michigan today, and tonight was in the vaults of 550 temporarily closed banks, awaiting distribution to depositors.

Most of the State's banks, idle because of an eight-day holiday proclamation, will allow depositors to withdraw 5 per cent of their balances tomorrow. Others will limit the amount an individual may take, while still others plan to grant "reasonable and necessary" requests for money. The purpose of all is the same—to relieve in part the situation created by Gov. William A. Comstock's emergency decree suspending regular banking operations from February 14 to February 23.

All Detroit banks remained closed today and prepared for opening on a 5 per cent withdrawal basis tomorrow. Some out-State banks were open a part of today, caring for the needs of local business on a modified scale. Officials said upward of $30,000,000 had been shipped into Detroit. A total of $25,000,000 will be released in Detroit under the 5 per cent withdrawal plan.

SO THIS IS RENO

Letters of a Capital Society Divorcee to Her Mother

Mother dear—My earliest friend, Mrs. Oliver, left Reno in a characteristic way. For ten days she has been asking me whether I would advise her going to New York or San Francisco to see a doctor. I told her I didn't think she was in any condition to stand the long trip, but as fast as she made one plan she changed to the other. In the meantime, she talked several times to her husband in New York and to a San Francisco friend about a dozen times. Three nights ago she sent two of her six trunks down to the station, checked out of the hotel and changed her mind each night at the station just before train time. You can imagine the surprise of the hotel manager and servants when she returned three times after having said goodby. Last night while I was playing bridge in Claire Stewart's apartment down the hall, she came to the door and said goodby, she was going to the train. I asked her where she was going and she said to New York if she got to the station in time to make that train, and if not, she would take the later train for San Francisco. Mrs. French, who went to the station with her, told me later that she had bought her ticket while the New York train was in the station and just gotten on by the swerve of a hair with all her enormous luggage, leaving Mrs. French to value her trunks after the train had left. The station man told me this morning that he had never seen any one so undecided but that at last she was on her way. So I sent her a telegram to Wyoming thinking to cheer her a bit as the train passed through. But not at all. I have just received a long telegram from her. She changed her mind again at Ogden, Utah, and is returning tonight to San Francisco. What a woman!

I may take my two spare days and go to San Francisco, too. I wrote you how they stretch the days to make four or five out of two, which is all I have since I came on a Saturday and the cases come up on Monday. That is the one thing they are strict about here—the 42 days. It is just like serving a jail sentence. They ask each other "How much have you done?" et cetera. You wouldn't think any one would know the difference if you went off a few days, but somehow they do, and it is considered a dangerous risk to take. The convict garb is pajamas. We wear them every afternoon and evening. Tish Benson had the most beautiful ones I ever saw. Did I tell you we got a telegram from her saying, "My freedom did not last long. We are both very happy." She got married the day she arrived in New York. Claire Stewart, my neighbor, is either going to marry here or in Chicago on her way back to New York. The man who came to repair her radio today said, "Well, this is my last job—42 days tomorrow!"

Claire took me out to the Country Club and I have enjoyed it. The dues are small. The ground is still slushy, but we decided to try a round of golf. I got talking to my caddy, a nice, bright looking boy, and found that he, too, was out here for divorce. Doesn't that seem absurd?

Mrs. Gary gets hers next Monday and leaves that night. It is really through her that I have met all these people. I hate to see her go. Everybody likes her and she plays grand bridge.

The inclosed clipping is about Mrs. Christopher, who is supplying gossip for the whole hotel by her affair with an oil stock salesman. She got her divorce yesterday, but is waiting over loathe to leave him, and uncertain about marrying him. As she is immensely rich, he must be in awful suspense.

It will seem so queer to me to get back where people are not serving 42 days and getting divorces. It would surprise you to see how quiet-looking some of these women are, who plan to marry "the next day." Like Claire, for instance. One wouldn't think she had a shred of romance in her makeup.

I must send this down to catch the mail. One of the girls had a letter returned all burned. The poor mail pilot was killed.

The Mysterious Rope

ILLUSION: Some member of the audience is politely requested to sit down on a chair. The magician tells him that his coat seems to be bunched up in the back, and offers to correct it. Whereupon he pulls out a big coil of rope.

EXPLANATION: The chair's rear left leg is made of tubing. A hole is bored in the stage and the chair is placed so that the tube leg is over it. An assistant pushes the rope up through the chair leg under the victim's coat.

Let's look at the cigarette advertising trick called "Heat Treatment."

EXPLANATION: All cigarette tobaccos are treated with heat. But it is not from "heat treatment" that a cigarette gets flavor and mildness.

Mildness, flavor, throat-ease —all come from the use of costly, ripe tobaccos.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos than any other popular brand.

Camels have given more people more pleasure than any other cigarette. Smoke Camels, and enjoy the fine delicate flavor of costlier tobaccos.

WASTING TIME.

With only a fortnight left of the present session, the Senate has plunged into a wrangle over repeal of the eighteenth amendment. A number of appropriation bills await action. The Democratic leaders are pressing for farm relief of various kinds, and the bankruptcy bill has not yet been acted upon. Yet the Senate voted 58 to 23 in favor of taking up the Blaine repeal resolution, which has not the slightest chance of passing through both houses before March 4.

The overwhelming vote in favor of embarking upon this controversial issue means nothing, except that a majority in the Senate are in favor of frittering away precious time. The wets of the Senate are divided into half a dozen factions, ranging all the way from mild modificationists to advocates of outright repeal. If the drys would withdraw from the chamber, it is doubtful whether the wets could agree upon an amendment to be submitted to the people for ratification. But of course, the drys will use every weapon at their command to defeat all wet resolutions. It appears that they permitted the resolution to be taken up only bcause they are confident that it can be beaten.

Senator Blaine does not propose restoration of liquor control to the States. His resolution would set up a new kind of Federal prohibition in which Congress would be obligated to prohibit importation of liquor from wet to dry States and to prevent the return of the saloon. In view of the experience the Government has already had with the liquor traffic, the Blaine resolution is obnoxious to most citizens. True drys realize its emptiness. True wets are not willing to move from one hopeless arrangement into another still more hopeless. But the newly-converted wets hope to hide their former convictions behind this hodgepodge substitute, which would preserve the Government's responsibility for the liquor traffic while denying it power to discharge its duty.

Even if such a proposal should be approved by the Senate it would not be accepted in the House. Since that body was unable to pass, by the necessary two-thirds vote, a naked repeal resolution, it would be futile to submit to it the nostrum worked out by the Senate judiciary committee.

Consideration of a repeal resolution at this time is merely an attempt to frustrate action on the urgent matters which should be cleared up before March 4. The Senate evidently intends to cast upon President-elect Roosevelt all the burdens and problems of the national emergency.

DISTRICT BORROWING.

The expediency of the bill proposing to authorize the R. F. C. to lend $2,500,000 to the District of Columbia for relief purposes is open to question. The plan to obtain a loan from the R. F. C. is admittedly based upon a contingency that may not occur. Congress probably will be in session throughout 1933, and if additional emergency relief funds should be necessary they can be provided.

The people of the District have been very generous in support of the Community Chest, which has given a large part of its resources to relief work. It is doubtful that citizens would be disposed to contribute quite so generously to the Community Chest for emergency relief purposes if the District Commissioners could borrow $2,500,000 at any time from the R. F. C. The tendency would be to saddle a debt upon the District instead of carrying the burden that is carried by all other communities in the country.

If the District should be granted permission to borrow money, it is quite probable that those members of the House who are trying to whittle down the Federal contribution to District upkeep would redouble their efforts. They are already endeavoring to make it appear that the District has a surplus which should be drawn upon in order to relieve the Treasury, and if $2,500,000 more should be available these congressmen would insist that it be drawn upon. They would make it very difficult to obtain any further appropriation for relief purposes.

Congress long ago laid down the rule that the District of Columbia should not go into debt. When the Federal Government pays its proper share of the cost of the local government there is no occasion for running into debt. The emergency arising from the depression is temporary, and can be dealt with as necessity demands, but a debt would be difficult to repay, especially if there should be downward revision of taxation, as now seems possible as a result of the accumulation of a moderate surplus. Relief from excessive taxation, rather than added taxation for a new debt, is what the taxpayers of the District desire.

LOWER TAXES IN SIGHT.

By removing an arbitrary restriction in the District appropriation bill the House has cleared the way for a reduction of taxes in Washington. Under the law the District Commissioners have authority to fix the tax rate. But for a number of years the House has been in the habit of forbidding the exercise of this authority by inserting a clause in the appropriation bill. Representative Smith raised a point of order against this prohibition yesterday and it was stricken from the bill.

With a prospective surplus of approximately $5,000,000 in the budget as it stands before the House, lower taxes for Washington residents seem to be in sight. Indications are that the House will accept most of the reductions made in the budget by the subcommittee. An effort by Representatives Mapes and Blanton to cut the Federal contribution toward maintenance of the National Capital down to $1,500,000 proved to be a fiasco. Presumably the House will approve a $6,500,000 contribution, which will be increased by the Senate. Unless the Senate is much less favorably inclined toward the District than usual, the excess of revenue over authorized expenditures will doubtless be large enough to warrant a cut in the tax rate.

Another signal victory for the District is the defeat of the proposed tax increase on intangible property. The absurdity of imposing new taxes when a surplus is in sight was not apparent to the subcommittee. But the House could not approve such a departure from common sense. Tax reduction is the only logical sequence to the reduced budget which the House seems disposed to approve.

Considerable criticism has been heard because of the cuts made by the House subcommittee, but most of the opposition was based on the fear that these reductions would be used as an excuse for further trimming down of the Federal contribution. If economy is to result in actual savings for District taxpayers, that is quite a different proposition. No District agency should be crippled for want of funds. Yet every unnecessary expenditure might well be eliminated in this time of distress so that the commissioners may ease the burden upon taxpayers. If appropriations are allowed to stand at their present figure and the Federal contribution made the same as at present there will be little complaint against the bill by Washingtonians.

HOW COTTON HELPS.

Government cotton stocks appropriated by Congress to help the needy throughout the Nation constitute very practical aid. Through the agency of the Red Cross the cotton is made up or exchanged at the mills for all kinds of apparel. Nearly all of the more than 3,000 counties in the United States have been reached by this far-flung organization, which is spending more than $500,000 of its funds for the administration of the wheat and cotton distribution.

Following approval by the President of the bill granting a second allotment of Farm Board cotton, the Red Cross will begin an immediate distribution of bedding, which was not included in the former authorization. Over 2,000,000 cotton blankets and comforters will be purchased. Many mills will be asked to turn over their entire available stocks on hand and undertake additional production without delay by utilizing the 340,000 bales of cotton now available, which, it is estimated, will supply about 20 per cent of actual demands.

The present relief apportionment will also include some 18,000,000 articles of underwear, hosiery, trousers, overalls and jumpers. This new purchase, supplementing similar ready-made garments already distributed, is expected to take care of about 40 per cent of the estimated need for such clothing. The first cotton grant of 500,000 bales last July enabled the Red Cross to contribute nearly 60,000,000 yards of cotton cloth and 28,000,000 garments of various kinds. There have been 3,675 Red Cross chapters engaged in the work of placing these various articles among more than 4,000,000 families according to their necessities. Red Cross funds to the extent of $50,000 a month are required to facilitate this wide distribution, besides the great army of volunteer workers who contribute their services.

NEW YORK REALTY.

New York real estate interests, including both owners and the holders of trusts, appear to be taking a step in the right direction in the formation of the Realty Stabilization Corporation. This organization will endeavor to act as clearing house where both sides can meet to adjust their differences, but with the understanding, apparently, that properties seeking relief must submit current appraisal values, while the holders of mortgages in like measure must be prepared to grant liberal extensions and consider a 4 per cent interest rate.

The outstanding mortgages on New York property amount to about $8,000,000,000. These loans have been made upon lands and buildings of the metropolis which show a total assessed valuation of nearly $19,000,000,000. Nearly one-half of the mortgages are guaranteed. It is no secret that the large buildings, both offices and apartment houses, have suffered severe declines in their rental incomes during the last three years. Of Manhattan's annual realty tax of $270,000,000 nearly one-fourth is in default, which has produced a serious dislocation in the city budget.

The head of the new stabilization corporation, William Church Osborn, estimates that a 1 per cent reduction in interest on New York mortgages would save property owners $80,000,000 a year. This, added to a tax reduction that has been authorized of nearly $90,000,000, would make a total relief for the burdened property owner that would be important. The practical function of the stabilization organization, in case mortgagees and mortgagors can get together along the lines suggested by the new corporation, will be to provide interest payments on guaranteed mortgages and those on properties that can show a sound position on the revised basis of valuation and interest. Important realty and financial interests in New York feel that the efforts of the new corporation may bring beneficial results, both to private property holders and the municipality.

BANKRUPTCY ACT SCUTTLED.

Efforts to restore fiscal relations existing before the depression are now considered futile. Every device employed to raise the price structure has failed, and while there is still hope that recovery may proceed along this line, the prospects for restoring prices to their 1929 level seem to be very slight. For this reason most relief plans are centering about the adjustment of budgets, interest charges and debts in line with prices.

Congress has undertaken to facilitate this adjustment by means of a new bankruptcy act. The House passed such a bill and pressure has been brought to bear upon the Senate to do likewise. But the Senate judiciary committee has reported out a measure which only slightly resembles the original proposal for scaling down debts through mutual agreements.

The Senate bill is applicable only to farmers and other individual debtors. Apparently for no good reason corporations and railroads would be denied any benefits from the measure. One of the primary reasons why President Hoover suggested this legislation was to save the railroads from bankruptcy through the ordinary process of receiverships. Why should the judiciary committee wish to punish the railroads? Why should remedies that are recommended for one class of citizens in distress be denied to others? The narrow provincialism which is revealed in this measure as it goes to the Senate is a reproach to those senators who are responsible for it.

Relief for farm debtors is urgently needed. There is a general agreement that farm mortgages must be scaled down to the level of current values. This measure would afford inestimable relief to farmers in this respect. Individual debtors would also benefit, although they would not be so highly favored as that special group classified as farmers. But neither of these groups can gain anything by denying similar relief to the railroads. The attempt to convert an urgent measure of national relief into a piece of class legislation is indefensible. If Congress should emasculate the only relief measure that has a chance of enactment at this session, its action may be followed by railroad receiverships, thus still further discouraging business and postponing national recovery.

This week will become historic as the period during which Carter Glass decided whether to go into the Cabinet or stay out.

Having reached the question of repeal, the Senate is now in a position to filibuster the session to death.

OLD MEN'S HOBBIES

From the Boston Transcript.

That eminent horticulturist, Dr. Walter G. Kendall, may, by reason of youth—he is only 77—be inadequately qualified to judge of the problems of old age, but he is at least academically right in laying down the principle that the secret of attaining a comfortable and happy old age is to have a hobby. A hobby is an animal upon which an old man, as well as a young man, may ride roughshod not only over the ordinary esoteric annoyances of life but over the pains and sorrows of senility. A hobby never gets senile. By fixing the attention upon a thing always agreeable, always diverting, the thought, the consciousness, is removed from the infirmities of age. What worries and wears anyone is what one thinks about. And as he approaches the fourscore mark, Dr. Kendall thinks of nothing but health and strength as he dresses his prize grapevines and calls in Gallic accents to his French poodles.

Old men have been rescued from brooding over aches and pains by many sorts of beneficent hobbies. Gladstone kept himself refreshed and prolonged his capacities far into the eighties by beguiling himself with translating Plato, Horace and Alfieri. Arthur Balfour, at 80, wrote works of philosophy in the intervals of his transactions of the affairs of state. Gladstone also had a happy hobby in the chopping down of trees in his woods. If he had not indulged in the indiscretion of a horseback ride in a rainstorm Washington might well have prolonged his years with his happy hobby of tree planting. Louis XVI of France was on the way to a placid old age with his unusual hobby of being a practical locksmith when the guillotine cut him off. The historian Bancroft prolonged his comfortable eighties with his hobby of horseback riding. Out-of-door avocations are particularly to be recommended, with prudence and moderation, to octogenarians. We do not need to go back to past history for examples of the benefit of a hobby, for we are acquainted with old men who derive a saving interest in life from their passion for collecting things.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE ABSENT LIVING.

As I went walking down the street I saw a fluttering bit of crepe,
The solemn symbol, blossom sweet,
To mark another soul's escape,
And in and out the doorway passed
The sorrowing friends to look their last.

And then I heard a woman say:
"My baby all alone I left,
The while I stepped across the way
To comfort her by death bereft.
It seems too bad he had to go!
Poor woman! She will miss him so!"

I thought: 'Tis proper we should grieve
For all the happy spirits flown,
But 'tis the living we must leave
For longer, drearier times alone.
The loneliness the living feel
They think it cowardly to reveal.

Our backs on those we love we turn!
A week, a month, a year we stay.
For those we've left behind we yearn
And, oh, they seem so far away!
But once to death we grow resigned,
The dead we never leave behind.

They follow us where'er we go.
We take them with us everywhere.
There is no place on earth we know
But all our lovely dead are there.
From home the living journey far.
Our dead with us forever are.

He Isn't in Danger of Mental Disease if He Whistles at His Work.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE people of America are losing their sanity.

In the 18 States that keep dependable records, the frequency of mental diseases has increased 100 per cent in the last ten years.

At the present rate of increase, half of our population will be in asylums for the insane at the end of another 75 years.

What is happening to us? What is the cause of the plague that threatens us?

Alcohol, syphilis, hardening of the brain arteries, injury—these physical causes account for many victims.

But the greatest single cause of mental derangement is the inability or unwillingness to accept life as it is.

Normal, happy people don't "go crazy."

And most of those who crack under the strain of modern existence are self-made lunatics.

They force themselves to endure conditions that strain their nerves beyond endurance, or they find escape from reality in a dream world.

A woman whose nature requires affection is abused and neglected by an unfaithful husband. When she has endured too much, her love for him turns to hate; but her religious convictions will not permit her to divorce him. And that unwilling martyrdom eventually sends her to an asylum.

It isn't martyrdom alone that unbalances the mind. Willing martyrs may be the happiest of people and the sanest.

The martyrdom that proves too much for human nerves to bear is a hateful thing endured unwillingly. It is discontent, worry, bitter and continuous resentment, self-pity and hopelessness endured in brooding silence for the sake of duty or conscience. And to endure too long is to invite lunacy.

Of course this self-made insanity is preventable. The only thing required is a little courage.

When a marriage, a job, a duty or a way of life becomes unendurable, the way of escape is to cuss out everybody who seems to need it, get the poison off your chest, and get yourself out of there.

There is no virtue in martyrdom. It all depends on the worth of the person or thing to which you are a martyr. And few persons or things are worth the sacrifice of your sanity.

The way to keep sane is to choose the way of life that will enable you to keep happy.

POLITICAL COMMENT

Mr. Patman's Innocence.

Detroit News.

Representative Wright Patman, of Texas, has introduced in Congress a joint resolution calling for an investigation of "certain charges of lobbying, influencing the Congress and members thereof, to obtain information to be used as a basis for legislation."

"Whereas," says the resolution in part, "it is believed by a large number of citizens that there has grown up in Washington and in the Nation an insidious lobbying system that is controlling unwittingly and otherwise members of the United States Congress," &c.

The innocence of Mr. Patman is marvelous. "It is believed by a large number of citizens." Doesn't Mr. Patman know these lobbies exist? Can't he find in the Washington directory, or the telephone book, a long list of organizations that maintain offices in the District for no other purpose than to have representatives on hand to buttonhole members of Congress, and to look out for their special interests in the various departments? For what other purpose are those organizations and headquarters established in the National Capital? Why aren't they in New York, Chicago or San Francisco? Why do they have to be cheek by jowl with the Senate, the House and the departments?

Mrs. Roosevelt's Leadership.

Kansas City Times.

The change in national administration still is nearly a month away, but the next mistress of the White House is not waiting for her installation as the First Lady to assume a leadership that promises to become conspicuous in the next four years. The dinner given Mrs. Roosevelt in New York by 2,000 business and professional women was something more than a compliment to the successor of Mrs. Hoover. It was in part a recognition of Mrs. Roosevelt's very active and varied interest in public and social affairs, especially as these affairs affect women and invite them to civic endeavor. It is obvious that Mrs. Roosevelt is to be something more than hostess of the White House; that she is going to supplement her husband's leadership with helpful activities of her own; that women in public life, in welfare work and in educational fields will have in her a leader around whom they can rally, if they choose to make her their national leader.

It Takes Courage.

Boston Transcript.

President-elect Roosevelt is reported to have said that he is willing to accept personal responsibility for cutting Government expenses to balance the budget, even if it cost him his reelection in 1936. That is the kind of man that ought to be intrusted with the task. Even if Congress were not a body whose judgment is so distrusted by the people that they wish it could be abolished, legislative history has demonstrated its utter unwillingness, if not incapacity, to reduce expenses by such drastic means as Mr. Roosevelt's request for complete authority implies. The job is a one-man job, as President Hoover has set forth. He is no more lacking in courage than is his prospective successor and would have undertaken the same task, but Congress refused to let him act.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Civil Service Employes Can Help Preserve Jobs by Taking Leave Without Pay.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Probably for the first time in the Nation's history, a "spoilsman's guide," or official list of Government jobs not protected by civil service, has been compiled and printed at public expense for use of the incoming party.

Now 5 per cent must be saved from all departmental appropriations, but with pay cuts and furloughs forbidden, thousands of dismissals are likely. By all the laws of party politics, employes who came in through competitive examinations will be dropped. It is inconceivable that any of the 5 per cent would be saved by abolishing "spoilsman's guide" positions right after filling them with "deserving Democrats."

Then, after a suitable interval, such as a year, we may expect to see the vacated positions gradually refilled with more "deserving Democrats" through executive order procedure.

From the standpoint of honest civil service administration, there is little more to the "dictatorship" maneuvering beyond an attempt to extend the above system beyond 5 per cent, in departments where the politicians think they can get away with it.

Just one way appears by which honest administrative officers, with the cooperation of their civil service employes, can prevent this wrecking of the merit system and discharge of thousands of competent and experienced employes. That is by calling for volunteers to take enough leave without pay to cover the 5 per cent, with additional cuts as they may be imposed. Any civil service employe would take such leave in preference to dismissal, and any administrative official with a spark of honesty or regard for the civil service merit system will give him the choice if appropriation cuts require it.

Meter System Should Be Established for Taxicabs—Public Liability Insurance Otherwise Impossible.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The D. C. appropriation bill now pending before the House of Representatives contains a provision preventing the enforcement of the meter order for taxicabs issued by the Public Utilities Commission.

Continuation for another year of this "hamstringing" of the Utilities Commission simply means that we will be faced with an indefinite prolongation of the present deplorable taxicab situation, a situation that is not only a menace to the men engaged in taxicab driving as a means of livelihood but to the public at large.

The meter requirement carries with it the only solution to the present situation. The present evils of financial irresponsibility, of the exploitation of drivers through the rental system, of the long hours of work of the drivers, can only be corrected through the meter system of operation. Therefore those of us who make our livelihood, such as it is, from this business are making a very determined fight against this restrictive legislation in the appropriation bill.

The matter of public liability insurance for taxicabs is inseparably bound up with this matter of taxicab rates. It is impossible for taxicab owners to pay $365 per year for this insurance so long as they are forced to operate upon the zone system of fares.

Scores Preachers and Professors Who Advocate Recognition of Soviet Russia.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: How disgraceful that 450 Protestant pastors should even think of the recognition of Russia, in the face of the fact that Russia is known to exploit women and oppress human beings and to have guaranteed that God would be out of Russia by 1937. Some pastors! There is nothing in the peace of the world or in the economic situation that could excuse such an attitude.

Instead of asking for the recognition of Russia, the Catholic, Jew and Protestant should ripe en masse against any such recognition. We Americans want nothing from such a country.

If those 450 preachers and the other 800 college professors and presidents are so interested in Russia, let them all go over there and see if they can put God back in the skies, for the Russians say that they have pulled Him out of the sky. That will keep them occupied for the rest of their lives, and it seems to the writer that is just where that bunch of preachers and professors will be at home.

Antismoking Rule Violated on Street Cars—One Notable Exception.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Passengers are continually endangered of being painfully burned or their apparel ignited by careless smokers who board street cars with lighted cigars, cigarettes and pipes. Many commuters using this mode of transportation are forced to tolerate these conditions, and many sacrifice their seats to move elsewhere in the car to avoid the aroma of a lighted cigar or pipe.

Circulation of fresh air in crowded street cars is always at a minimum, and to exaggerate these conditions with smoke that is offensive, annoying and disagreeable, the air becomes so polluted that riding cannot be made comfortable and enjoyable.

Passengers riding upon street cars in charge of conductor No. 811, of the Wreco, will notice that he is one of the few railway men who enforce the regulation against the "carrying of lighted cigars, cigarettes and pipes," and deserves to be credited with enforcing the miserably neglected order. Railway officials should stress upon the minds of their employes the duty of enforcing the regulation.

ARLINGTON UTILITIES BOARD IS APPOINTED

Campbell Chairman of Unit Which Will Seek Slash in Rates on Gas.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Chairman Harry A. Fellows of the county board yesterday announced the personnel of the public utility commission, as follows: Edmund D. Campbell, of East Falls Church, chairman; Calvin I. Kelhart, of Clarendon; James E. Chinn, of Lyon Village; Albert M. Jones, of Virginia Highlands, and Paul E. Schaub, of Cherrydale.

Faced with a public hearing set for March 3 on the question of gas rates in Arlington County, over which the former commission worked for more than two years, the new commission finds itself with but a short time to collect new data in an effort to gain a favorable decision from the State Corporation Commission at Richmond. The present rate, $1.50, is considered excessive, and the fight has been to have it reduced to a maximum of $1.20.

The newly appointed members, having be notified only yesterday of their appointment, have not yet had an opportunity to set a time for their first meeting, but it is expected they will meet without delay and proceed with the work. It is expected they will also start an investigation into electric light rates in an effort to bring about a reduction.

The Clarendon Citizens Association at its meeting held last night went on record as being unalterably opposed to any increase in the tax rate for schools or any other purposes and called upon the county board to bring about a reduction on taxes in Arlington County to such an extent as present changed conditions authorize.

The secretary was instructed to direct a letter to the county board commending it for the manner it which it has taken care of the roads during the recent heavy snowstorms.

Upon motion of Mrs. L. C. McNemar, the president appointed the following better homes committee: Mrs. McNemar, chairman; Mrs. Myrtle C. MacMahon and Herbert F. Smith.

The association authorized Walter U. Varney to complete arrangements with the Arlington County Woman's Democratic Club for meetings of the association to be held in the Democratic headquarters in Clarendon.

There will be a meeting of the Men's Club of St. George's Episcopal Church tonight in the parish hall at 8 o'clock.

The activities of the Boy Scouts in Arlington County were discussed at length by David Lockling, county executive, at the luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Arlington County held yesterday at Windsor Arms. Mr. Lockling also outlined several ways in which the Kiwanis Club could materially aid the Scout organization.

The program was in charge of Samuel Gordon Green, vice president of the local club and vice chairman of the committee on boys' and girls' work. The program also included violin selections by Henry V. Christiani, accompanied by George Thompson. President John P. Webster presided.

Announcement was made of perfect attendance in January by the following members: Amos C. Crounse, Henry J. Klinge, Charles W. Smith, Frank H. Howe and John P. Webster. Bailey P. Byars, associate manager of the northern Virginia office of Boss & Phelsp, realtors, was admitted to membership.

The monthly meeting of the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax Real Estate Board will be held tomorrow evening in the offices of Graham & Ogden, 803 King street, Alexandria. A report will be received on the midwinter conference of the National Association of Real Estate Boards in the District of Columbia last month.

President Charles W. Smith will preside and will present Ashton C. Jones, of Arlington County, president of the Virginia Real Estate Association, with a gavel, the gift of a Seattle, Wash., member, and William C Miller, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The Rotary Club of Arlington County will hold its weekly luncheon today at 12:30 o'clock at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

For no apparent reason, it was testified, Sullivan annoyed the woman with offensive language both at her home and place of employment.

The board also assessed a fine of $75 against Hugh A. Turner, Second Precinct policeman, charged with spending too much time in a garage and smoking on duty.

Police Capt. John S. Arnold, of Alexandria, yesterday received a telegram signed by McMahon & Kanter, attorneys, of Columbus, Ohio, making claim in the name of Carrie Parker to the reward of $1,000 offered by the city council of Alexandria for information leading to the arrest of "Kid" Lilly, alleged slayer of Sergt. Charles R. McClary, of the Alexandria police force, on June 20, 1929. The telegram states that an affidavit is being mailed in support of the claim.

The Alexandria Police Department has received a dispatch from Danville, Va., stating that the authorities of Pittsylvania County are interested in the apprehension of Lilly, who is wanted for an attempt to kill his wife in 1927. Lilly was arrested in Alexandria and turned over to the Pittsylvania County sheriff, but made his escape while being transported by bus, near Danville.

Although it has been stated that Lilly is wanted in Wilson, N. C., for the killing of a police officer there, the Alexandria authorities have no record of his being wanted for that crime.

Noted Doctor Stingy, Sued Wife Asserts

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Charges of penuriousness were made today against Dr. Edgar M. L. Gilcreest, widely known surgeon at the University of California Hospital, by his wife, Mrs. Elynore Benton Gilcreest, in filing a cross petition to the divorce action he began recently.

The cross complaint asserted Dr. Gilcreest was worth $150,000 and charged he refused to give her a room with bath during their honeymoon, saying she could wait until she returned home to bathe. She was 32 and he was 50 when they were married.

Mrs. Gilcreest charged her husband picked up paper napkins in restaurants for use in their home, instructed her not to buy matches because he could obtain them free, and that, although his income was $2,500 a month, he carried his luncheon to the office, sometimes using scraps from the plates of dinner guests.

She asked "reasonable" alimony and $342.50 a month for living expenses. Dr. Gilcreest's complaint charged her with cruelty.

FAIRFAX FINANCES IN GOOD CONDITION

New Board Completes Probe and Finds County in Splendid Shape.

The finance board of Fairfax County, Va., recently organized under the Virginia law with Dr. F. W. Hudleson, county treasurer; W. F. P. Reid, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and Mark Turner, the citizen member appointed by Judge Walter T. McCarthy of the county circuit court, has completed its investigation of county finances.

This report emphasizes the sound financial condition of the county. The treasurer now has $174,170 deposited among six different banks in the checking accounts and $223,194 deposited among three banks in the sinking fund accounts for the retirement of district school and road bonds.

The checking accounts are secured by $195,500 worth of Virginia municipal and Federal Government bonds and the sinking fund accounts by $75,300 worth of similar bonds deposited in escrow with the treasurer. The sinking fund accounts are deposited only in banks approved by the circuit court and requires only one-third collateral as security. The balance in the sinking fund at present is after the $275,000 of Lee highway bonds were paid by the treasurer last month.

The finance board reviewed and approved the treasurer's report of the depositories selected by him and the collateral deposited with him in escrow by the banks for the protection of the deposits. The new bookkeeping system recently installed by the State auditor's office has been functioning for several weeks and all accounts from last July have been brought up to date.

Third Corps Forts Listed for Youths

9,840 Nomad Boys Could Be Sheltered at Posts Near Washington.

(Associated Press.)

Military authorities estimate that camps in the Third Corps Area, could house 9,840 homeless youths if Congress decided to quarter nomad boys in the camps.

They said under Senator Couzens' plan to give temporary homes to unemployed youths, the two big concentration camps in the area would be Fort George G. Meade, Md., and Fort Monroe, Va. Half a dozen smaller camps would take in small groups. These would include Forts Howard, Hoyle and Camp Ritchie, Md., and Fort Humphreys, Va.

The authorities pointed out that the young nomads could be taken in without considerable disturbance of the Regular Army routine. Experience with the citizens military training camps has shown, however, that an increase in the medical staff at the camps would be necessary.

Woman Lawyer Discusses Sex Equality in Maryland

Maryland laws grant equality between the sexes in most instances, the exceptions being chiefly in domestic relations, Miss Vivian V. Simpson, Rockville lawyer, told a meeting of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club at the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church yesterday. Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the District of Columbia Federation of Club Women, spoke on laws relating to women in the District.

Maryland divorce laws apply equally except that a man can obtain a divorce if he can prove misconduct before marriage, while a woman can not, Miss Simpson said. The husband has the right to select the domicile and refusal by the wife to live where he directs is desertion. An unmarried mother has the duty to support her child and the child in such cases inherits from the mother but not from the father. The mother is the legal guardian of an illegitimate child, while the father is guardian of a legitimate child, she said. A white woman who has a child by a Negro father can be sentenced to serve from eighteen months to five years, while there is no penalty for a white father in the same predicament.

Mrs. Wiley said that the minimum wage and hour laws work to the detriment of women and urged that such laws should apply equally to both sexes. She paid tribute to the late Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, prominent feminist, and advocated passage of the equal rights amendment being fostered by the National Woman's Party.

DAVIS SAYS COUNTRY SHOULD FACE FACTS

'24 Nominee Urges Cure-Alls Be Dropped for Balanced Budget and Repeal.

(Associated Press.)

A far-flung program of national and international steps to help America back to prosperity was sketched for the Senate Finance Committee yesterday by John W. Davis, to aid a Nation which he sees as "more in need of surgery than of opiates."

The opinions of the 1924 Democratic presidential standard bearer were contained in a telegram made public by the committee as it pushed ahead its economic survey sponsored by the Democrats to obtain material to aid the incoming administration fight the depression.

They were added to proposed tonics, ranging from an embargo on gold exports to war debt cancellation, along with reiterated pleas that the budget be balanced and the currency not tampered with, presented yesterday by witnesses, including:

Myron Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation; Jackson Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of the City of New York; Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, whose views were expressed in a letter; Frank A. Vanderlip, the New York financier, and Rene Leon, of New York, former technical advisor of the House Coinage Committee.

Davis told the committee in answering by telegraph its invitation to appear that he had nothing to offer "that has not already been exhaustively discussed," but added:

"As the depression is not due to any single cause, unless it be human folly, I am sure it can not be cured by any single remedy. I have long since ceased to believe in governmental miracles or legislative cure-alls."

What Congress should do, he said, is to devote itself to "the obvious things that lie close at hand," and:

Balance the budget by radical and drastic economy and general taxes, including a sales tax if necessary.

Reduce the "swollen and excessive appropriations to veterans."

Revise the tariff with "a deliberate purpose of promoting foreign trade," and readjust the foreign debt settlements.

Repeal the eighteenth amendment.

Abolish, consolidate and reduce Government agencies and activities.

"Such a program is capable of accomplishment," he contended.

Vanderlip Silver Advocate.

Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, in a two-hour appearance behind closed doors, suggested adding silver to the metallic base of the currency and balancing the budget.

He himself would not tell newspapermen what he had proposed, but some committee members said these were the main points he brought out.

In making public the telegram from Davis, the committee also released letters from Alfred P. Sloan, jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, and Alvan Macauley, president of the Packard Motor Car Co., each of whom had been invited to appear but asked to be excused.

Sloan said he felt his thoughts were so "out of harmony with those of the leaders of Congress" he would just waste the committee's time by appearing, but added, there were two things that should be done:

"One of these is relief from the huge and growing cost of governmental expenditures. The second is the removal of the shackles from international commerce, the first step of which is a constructive solution of the problem of intergovernmental debts, which is hanging over international commerce and exerting a constant influence in depressing prices throughout the world."

United States Waste Scored.

Macauley laid economic ills largely to reckless governmental spending and abuse by the people of credit, and continued:

"I have no pet theory as to what will relieve the depression.

"I doubt if it can be seriously affected by any legislation or by anything except the operation of natural laws. Our Government and our people, through lack of foresight, have brought about the conditions that confront us.

"The habit was largely man-made, and I do not believe that the cure can be."

Leon advocated a gold export embargo by presidential proclamation to end this Nation's position as a free gold market for foreign powers.

Leon accused Great Britain of pursuing a "ruthless policy" in the international financial marts, in an effort to depress the worth of the gold dollar as one means of bringing about war debt cancellation. It is a policy Britain "would not for one minute countenance from America," he said.

Sees British Price Control.

He contended England was using its exchange equilization fund of about $500,000,000 to "control dollar exchange and consequently * * * American prices" by buying other currencies in the market, and by dumping silver from India.

He suggested that the American Government buy $200,000,000 worth of silver at not more than 50 cents an ounce and add the white metal to its currency, as a measure to accompany the gold embargo. Such a program would force financial reforms that would "end disparity" between this country and competitors, he maintained.

Willard said whatever is done should be pointed toward relief of the unemployment situation. He proposed a sales tax if increased revenues were necessary, and said that war debt cancellation would be "better for us and better for the world, or that part of the world in which we are particularly interested."

Reynolds and Taylor gave roughly the same testimony. Each opposed tampering with the currency and each insisted upon a balanced budget to instill confidence in the public, a subject to which nearly every witness has addressed himself.

"Until the Government lives prudently within its income, we won't get out of difficulties," said Reynolds, who argued this would set an example for other nations, cities and States that would be cumulative and have a beneficial effect.

SENATORS HEAR YOUNG INSULL TELL OF VAST FAMILY PROFITS

few senators attended, and for the most part they remained silent while the committee's new counsel, Ferdinand Pecora, conducted the case.

The testimony developed that Insull Utility Investments, Incorporated, an investment trust, was formed in the latter part of December, 1928.

Its stock was listed on the Chicago Exchange January 17, 1929, and sold at $30 a share, later rising to $149 before the crash of 1929.

On the same day the stock was listed the contract was signed. It gave Samuel Insull, sr., his wife, his son and Martin Insull, a brother, 1,214,000 shares of the stock, or an option on them, for $11,730,000.

At the price prevailing on the exchange that day, the stock was worth $36,420,000, and many times that within a few months.

Considerations Were Given.

Young Insull testified, however, that although the contract was not signed until that day, it had been approved by the directors January 11.

He also contended that his family had given certain consideration in return for the agreement, including a promise to serve for two years without compensation and had taken losses in dividends on other securities, and furthermore did not realize how much the stock would sell for.

The contract showed the Insull family got 764,000 shares of the stock for $5,730,000 worth of securities in other Insull companies at the prevailing market price. This represented $7.54 a share.

List of "Favored Customers."

The elder Insull agreed to buy or dispose of 250,000 additional shares within a year at $12 a share, or $3,000,000. He sold this to a long list of "favored customers" made public during receivership hearings in Chicago, including Young and other prominent figures.

In addition the family obtained an option on 200,000 additional shares at $15 each.

The only holders of stock when trading on the exchange opened in it, were members of the family and the investment banking firm of Halsey, Stuart & Co., of Chicago, Insull said.

He was vague about the manner in which the price was fixed at $30, but denied that a pool was formed to uphold it.

Pecora questioned him closely about what time of day the contract was signed, but Insull insisted he did not remember.

"But you were a party to the contract," Pecora insisted. Then he asked:

"What impelled the company to make that agreement?"

"None of us knew it was going to sell at anything like $30 a share," the witness replied.

"Were you surprised?"

"We were."

"The market opened at 9 o'clock," Pecora said. "Sometime that day the company made a written agreement with your father to sell him 250,000 shares at $12. Was that entered into before the opening or later while the market was in progress?"

Insull reiterated he could not remember the time, nor the place, nor discussions in connection with it.

Questioned further by Pecora, Insull agreed nearly all of the directors who approved the contract were officers of Insull companies. He denied his father controlled them, however.

Agreement Within Family.

Pecora asked if any of the directors had any substantial financial interest in the company when they voted the agreement.

"I don't know," Insull replied.

"Didn't it resolve itself into your father, your uncle and yourself entering an agreement with yourselves to buy these rights at $15 and the shares at $12?" Pecora asked.

"No," Insull replied. "The obligation of the directors to see that the transaction was proper was not increased or diminished by whether they had a financial interest."

"You don't remember anything being said about benefits to the company?"

"Went Down With the Ship."

"No," was the response, "but that doesn't mean it wasn't. That was a long time ago and a lot has happened since."

Insull told the committee his share of the option was 29,000 shares, which he exercised in December, 1929, getting the stock for $15 when it was selling for $65.

He added, however, that he sold part of it to an allied company and holds most of the remainder.

"You bought it when it was worth $1,836,000 for less than 25 per cent of that?" Pecora said.

"Yes," Insull replied. "But I've held this stock until today and I'm busted. I went down with the ship."

"But you could have sold it at any time?"

"Yes, legally, but as a director I felt morally bound not to sell it."

HOUSE BEATS MOVE TO BOOST TAX ON INTANGIBLE PROPERTY

sum appropriation, from the proposed $6,500,000 to $1,500,000 was proposed by Representative Carl Mapes (Republican), Michigan, and was offered as an amendment by Representative Blanton. It was defeated 23 to 16.

Representative Andrew J. May (Democrat), Kentucky, then proposed an amendment reducing the sum to $4,000,000. This was amended by Blanton to cut it to $3,000,000.

Declaring any solution of the "lump sum" controversy out of the question, Blanton withdrew his amendment, and the May proposal was voted down 42 to 26.

Taxpayers Favored.

The session was a highly successful one from the standpoint of District taxpayers, who felt they had been discriminated against by the committee's recommendations. Yet, attempts to restore to budget size several of the appropriations in the bill, made little headway yesterday.

Representative Wood asked that the $68,320 appropriation for the Department of Vehicles and Traffic be restored to $73,780, but his amendment was beaten. Representative Holaday offered an amendment to restore the appropriation for the register of wills office from $60,000 to $68,490. Representative Blanton made a point of no quorum, and adjournment was taken until today.

A score or more of amendments to return other items to budget size will be offered today.

Simmons Asks "Fairness."

In the midst of the fight against further reducing the Federal lump sum was Representative Robert G. Simmons (Republican), Nebraska, who, as former chairman of the District appropriation subcommittee, sought to scale down the contribution, but yesterday asked members to be "fair" in the matter.

"The House is on record as fixing $6,500,000 as the fair contribution," he said. "This was done on recommendation of a special committee of this House. Congress adopted the report unanimously. Now, why, in this way, repudiate the action of the Mapes committee?"

Resorting to every parliamentary device to gain the floor on various questions, Representative Blanton was deliberately baited by several members, including Representative Alfred L. Bulwinkle (Democrat), North Carolina, and Representative Charles L. Underhill (Republican), Massachusetts. They made points of order against his procedure, sustained, in many instances, by the chair.

It was Representative Holaday who forced a vote on the Blanton motion to strike the enacting clause. He argued the measure was ill-considered and should be sent back to committee.

Port Director Asks Free Tariff Zones

Hampton Roads Official Backs Bill for Temporary Entry of Goods.

(Associated Press.)

Establishment of free zones at American ports was urged yesterday in a letter from W. A. Cox, director of the Port of Hampton Roads, to a House committee.

Cox's letter was made part of the record of hearings on a bill by Representative Celler (Democrat), New York, authorizing such free zones.

The bill would enable the Secretary of Commerce to create areas along the coast where foreign goods might be imported duty free, held for manufacture, repacking or assemblage, and then reshipped abroad.

Marriage Clause Foes to Meet.

The Government Workers Council of the National Woman's Party will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Alva Belmont House, when a plan for repeal of the married workers clause of the economy act will be discussed.

2 WESTERNERS SEEN AS HIGH FARLEY AIDS

O'Mahoney, Wyoming, and Howes, of South Dakota, Reported Chosen.

(Associated Press.)

Two Democratic national committeemen from the West—Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Cheyenne, Wyo., and William W. Howes, of Huron, S. Dak.—are understood by Democratic congressional leaders here to have been selected tentatively for First and Second Assistant Postmaster Generalships in the Roosevelt little cabinet.

Both were ardent supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt in the preconvention days and are close to James A. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, who is to become Postmaster General in the new administration.

O'Mahoney's selection as First Assistant Postmaster General is generally conceded here, but it is understood that Silliman Evans, of Fort Worth, Tex., a leader in the Garner preconvention election boom, is a close contestant with Howes for the post of Second Assistant.

Going West from his home in Boston, Mass., 24 years ago, O'Mahoney first lived in Colorado and later in Cheyenne. He was campaign manager of Senator Kendrick (Democrat), Wyoming, in 1916, and for a number of years was his secretary here in Washington.

He is a newspaper man and a lawyer and has been a leader in the Democratic campaigns in Wyoming for many years. He was named Democratic national committeeman from that State in 1930, and last year became vice chairman of the committee in charge of Western campaign.

Howes, known as "Big Bill," led the South Dakota delegation to the national convention in Chicago for Roosevelt and later was attached to national headquarters in New York. He served in the South Dakota Senate and two terms as State's attorney. In 1930 he was Democratic nominee for governor.

As First Assistant Postmaster General, O'Mahoney would have charge of postoffices, personnel and rural mails.

The second post calls for supervision of the railway, air and ocean mails, and international postal service.

MAIL BALKS ACTION ON TREASURY BILL

Pennsylvania, a member of the House Committee, appeared before conferees yesterday.

Chairman Mead told of the air mail investigation recently conducted by his committee, which already has culminated in a House bill introduced by Representative Kelly.

Increased Rates Problem.

If the $19,000,000 is continued intact, and the Kelly bill is passed by Congress, all but $5,000,000 of the total sum appropriated will be returned to the Treasury, and by 1939 no further subsidy of any kind will be necessary, he said. His plan, which will be embodied in a report today, would revise air mail rates, placing them on an increasingly self-sustaining basis.

The proposal was debated at length by conferees, but no decision reached. They will meet this morning in another attempt to get together on some of the economy provisions of the bill. Later they will return to the air mail item.

War and Navy Bills.

An attempt will be made in conference to have the 5 per cent departmental cut removed from the War and Navy bills. If an agreement of this nature is reached, it is probable the cuts will be removed from all the remaining bills on the floor of the Senate. But leaders think there is little likelihood of any such conference action.

One report gaining currency yesterday but unconfirmed, implied that the Navy appropriation bill, not yet out of a House appropriations subcommittee, might be increased in many of its items to offset effects of the proposed Bratton slash.

BALLOU FOOD PLAN FAVORED BY BOARD

officials. "Somebody certainly slipped up on the job."

Contract for the remodeling was given to an outside concern and has been paid for.

The practice of furnishing cadet uniforms through a continuous contract was criticized by George M. Whitwell after Secretary Harry O. Hine read an inquiry from a local attorney asking if the practice of inviting competitive bidding had been discontinued.

Assistant Supt. Stephen E. Kramer explained that the continuing contract plan had been adopted three years ago because of the controversy that always arose over the cadet uniform question. The uniforms are lower in price today than ever before, Dr. Kramer said.

Mr. Whitwell succeeded in having the board order an investigation of the matter by the student activities committee.

Joint Meeting Today.

A proposal for the renting of graduation caps and gowns was nipped in the bud by Dr. Ballou with the laconic observation that the senior classes can decide the nature of apparel to be worn at commencement exercises. The board appeared satisfied with the explanation and gave the matter no further discussion.

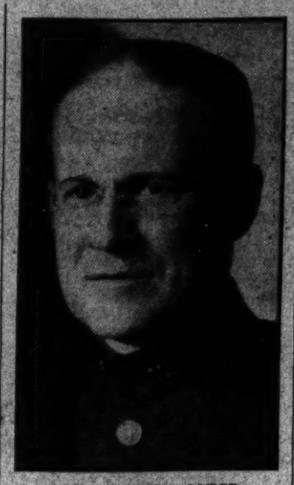
On recommendation of Dr. Ballou, a joint meeting of the finance committee and school officials was called for 11 a. m. today to advance efforts to seek restoration of items omitted from the school budget bill now before Congress. The House District Appropriations Committee has cut items totaling $498,051 from the budget. Buildings, grounds and personnel have suffered greatly through the reduction, Dr. Ballou showed. Elimination of these items will have a detrimental effect on the school system, the superintendent warned.

The board was advised by the District Engineer Commissioner that antiquated heating plants in four schools will be replaced with up-to-date equipment. Dr. Ballou submitted a report showing that 35 schools have hot-air heating plants.

Representative Mary T. Norton (Democrat), New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee, yesterday indicated she favored aiding the District's undernourished children through a $625,000 relief item in the District bill, rather than the McLeod measure to appropriate $40,000 for direct aid.

Col. K. A. Joyce Ordered To Command at Ft. Myer

Cavalry Officer Is Former Military Attache at London.



COL. KENYON A. JOYCE.

Col. Kenyon Ashe Joyce, U. S. A., Cavalry, now attached to the General Staff Corps, has been relieved from duty at Governors Island, N. Y., and will come here as the commanding officer of Fort Myer, according to orders issued at the War Department yesterday.

He will succeed Col. Harry N. Cootes, present commandant of the local Cavalry post. The latter officer will go to Third Corps Area headquarters at Baltimore. The change is effective June 1.

Col. Joyce has risen through the ranks of the Army and has enjoyed a colorful military career both abroad and at posts on the old Western frontier. Born in Brooklyn, he went West while a young man and enlisted in the First Illinois Volunteer Infantry. In 1901 he was commissioned as a second lieutenant of the Sixth United States Cavalry and joined the regiment in Imus, Cavite Province, Philippine Islands. During 1901 he participated in numerous operations against the insurrectos in Cavite Province.

Returning to this country he served at the Presidio of California, Fort Keogh, Mont.; Fort Meade, S. Dak.; Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and Fort Yellowstone, Wyo. In October, 1906, he took part in the expedition against the Ute Indians.

From February to July, 1909, Col. Joyce was on a military mission in China. He later went to India and Europe studying foreign methods of instruction at For de Quinto, Rome and at Samur, France. He returned to the United States in January, 1919, and carried on routine military duties until 1917, when he went abroad with the American Expeditionary Force. In July, 1924, he went to England as military attache to the American Embassy in London.

He has served in Washington on previous tours of duty as a student of the Army War College and on temporary duty in the military intelligence division of the general staff.

Col. Joyce has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Purple Heart by the United States Government. He was also decorated with the Croix de Guerre by the French government and is a member of the Legion of Honor of that country.

WOMAN SPEAKERS LAUD CITY POLICE

Mrs. Dell and Ruth Bryan Owen Say Force Is Among Finest.

Praise of the Metropolitan Police Department rang through the auditorium of Calvary Baptist Church last night as the Policemen's Association honored women members of Congress at their annual banquet.

Washington's law enforcers were classed as among "the finest on earth" by speakers high in official and civic circles. Mrs. Jessie Dell, Civil Service Commissioner, urged that the department be a stepping stone toward founding an American Scotland Yard.

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, of Florida, was the principal speaker. She traced the history of Government foundation and urged that the youth of the land be instilled with a sense of responsibility toward our present-day Government.

Other guests and speakers included Representative Gordon Browning, of Tennessee; Col. John Thomas Taylor, legislative representative of the American Legion; Representative-elect Virginia Chance, of Indiana; Mrs. Harvey Wiley, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs; Pearl McCall, president of the Women's Bar Association; Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown and other civic and District officials.

Petworth Group Gets Camp Plans

Jobless Committee Urges Refuge for Homeless Near Capital.

Tentative plans for an unemployment camp to be situated near Washington were submitted to the Petworth Citizens Association last night by a special committee on unemployment, which has been investigating the practicability of such a camp for a month.

The camp will be operated along the line of similar projects in Seattle, Wash., and Denver, Colo., where the unemployed are working on a cooperative basis with farmers and manufacturers.

The report was referred to the welfare committee, which will report at the next meeting. A resolution protesting against a taxi dance hall now operating here was passed.

Air-Ocean Subsidy Probe Urged by Senate Group

(Associated Press.)

The Senate Postoffice Committee yesterday favorably reported the Black resolution authorizing a special committee of five senators to investigate existing air and ocean mail subsidies. The resolution, offered by Senator Black (Democrat), Alabama, must be passed upon by the audit committee because of its $10,000 item for expenses.

The Senate has stricken from the Treasury-Postoffice bill the entire fund of $19,000,000 for the air mail service. A total of $35,500,000 is carried in the bill, now in conference, for ocean mail, foreign and domestic.

U. S. OPENS INSULL CASE PROSECUTION

Federal Grand Jury Hears Sketch of Charges; 15 Witnesses Called.

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The Federal Government started today its prosecution of those it holds responsible for the bursting of the gigantic financial bubble of the Insull investment houses.

U. S. District Attorney Dwight H. Green went before the Federal grand jury today and sketched the story revealed to Government auditors and prosecutors who have poured over the books of Corporation Securities Co. for the last six months.

Tomorrow Mr. Green and his assistant, William J. Froelich, will marshal before the jurors the witnesses on whose evidence the Government will ask indictments charging use of the mails in a scheme to defraud the public that invested in $80,000,000 of Corporation Securities debentures.

The Government, it was indicated, might also ask the jury to return indictments alleging concealment of assets in bankruptcy.

REPUBLICANS CALL PARTY CONFERENCE

Hoover to Direct Strategy Feb. 27 Aimed to Bring 1934 Comeback.

(Associated Press.)

Republican leaders yesterday summoned members of the executive committee to the party's national committee to assemble here on February 27, to map a "program looking to the winning of the 1934 congressional elections."

The call was sent out by Chairman Sanders of the national committee after a conference with President Hoover, titular head of the party, at which he said this subject was discussed.

Sanders yesterday spiked speculation as to his possible resignation as head of the Republican organization, a post assigned to him by the President. He told newspaper men he had no intention of doing so.

Tentative Plan Drawn.

The 20 members of the executive committee who will meet here just five days before the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt and retirement of Mr. Hoover, will have before them what has been called "a tentative plan" for action toward the 1934 elections.

Several vacancies in the Republican committee have been caused by death since last June, and the executive committee will undertake to fill these places.

"Outside of this and the formulation of a program preparatory to the 1934 congressional campaign," said a statement issued yesterday by the committee, "there is no business to come before the executive session."

Those Sent Bids.

Those summoned to the meeting in addition to Sanders are Vice Chairman Ralph E. Williams, of Oregon; Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, and J. Henry Roraback, of Connecticut; Secretary George De B. Keim, of New Jersey; Treasurer J. R. Nutt, of Ohio; Mrs. Grace Burlingham, of Missouri; Mark L. Requa, of California; George A. Ball, of Indiana; Mrs. Manley Fosseen, Minnesota; Mrs. Guy P. Gannett, Maine; Lawrence C. Phipps, Colorado; Charles D. Hilles, New York; Earle S. Kinsley, Vermont; Harrison E. Spangler, Iowa; Postmaster General Brown, Ohio; Mrs. Worthington, Scranton, Pa.; John Richardson, Massachusetts; R. B. Creager, Texas, and Mrs. Bertha D. Baur, of Illinois.

EXTORTIONIST KILLS SELF TO FOIL ARREST

Mother of Imperiled Girl Holds Intruder at Bay While Police Near.

Kansas City, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Thwarted in an attempt to extort $15,000 from R. Crosby Kemper, president of the City Bank and Trust Co., under threat of killing his 11-year-old daughter, a man shot and fatally wounded himself at the banker's home here late today.

In a room where he was found dying after police had rescued the threatened child, Sally Ann Kemper, officers found a hastily scribbled note which read: "Goodby, mother, I can't stand to see you hungry."

The man who attempted to execute the daring plot single-handed was identified by police fingerprint experts as W. K. Lattin, or William Layton, who had been arrested at Hutchinson, Kans., on a charge of transporting liquor in January, 1931.

Banker's Wife Stays Calm.

The demand for money was made to Mrs. Kemper, who entered her home after Lattin had forced his way in and compelled a nurse to telephone Mr. Kemper that his daughter was dangerously ill.

"Mrs. Kemper, give me $15,000 or I will kill your little girl," the intruder declared, pointing a revolver at the banker's wife.

Mrs. Kemper attempted to placate her assailant to gain time. She remarked that he must be in desperate circumstances, and assured him she and her husband would aid him.

Lattin threatened to shoot the mother if she made a "false move." He instructed her to answer the door bell when Mr. Kemper arrived, under further threats.

Man Shoots at Police.

Meanwhile, Ann Wilde, the nurse, forced into an upstairs bedroom with the child, had telephoned police.

As the extortionist turned from his conversation with Mrs. Kemper the door bell rang. She opened the door to be confronted by two officers, who said they had received a call.

Standing between the police in the doorway and the armed man on the stairway, Mrs. Kemper said no one had called the officers, but winked as she said it.

Lattin saw the officers and opened fire. They retreated, but were soon reinforced by police in six cars summoned by radio. As one group of policemen rescued the threatened child, others rushed for the extortionist.

Lattin fired his second shot into his head and retired to a bedroom, where he was found a moment later unconscious. He died shortly after reaching a hospital.

Two Alleged Kidnapers Arraigned in California

Los Angeles, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Luella Pearl, Hammer, in tears, and her former convict companion, W. P. Howard, today were arraigned on a charge of kidnaping Mrs. Mary B. Skeele, 65, professor's wife.

The Superior Court set next Monday for pleading at the request of defense counsel, who said Miss Hammer's upset mental state was such she had not made up her mind what her plea would be. Mrs. Skeele was kidnaped last week and released a day later without ransom being paid.

Michelangelo's Art Gets By U.S. Censor

Photos of Frescoes in Sistine Chapel Briefly Held by Customs as Obscene.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—After first having been adjudged "obscene" and detained for four days at the New York customs house, a series of photographs of Michelangelo's famous frescoes on the ceiling of the Pope's Sistine Chapel in the Vatican, have been released.

The pictures were consigned to a New York book importer, who was notified upon arrival of the package that they would be destroyed. They were submitted, however, to Assistant Solicitor Brewer, and he ordered their release at once.

Art historians say hardly any pictures in the world are more famous than the frescoes Michelangelo painted at the behest of Pope Julius II. The decorative scheme covers 10,000 square feet of the ceiling of the chapel and required four years to complete.

FORT BLISS OFFICER TO FACE ARMY TRIAL

Lieutenant Is Charged With Embezzlement of $4,295 and Desertion.

Second Lieut. Charles B. Hanes, former assistant executive officer of the William Beaumont General Hospital at Fort Bliss, Tex., is being held here on charges of desertion and embezzlement.

Hanes was arrested at a local hotel Tuesday afternoon by agents of the Bureau of Investigation who had learned that he planned to make contact with several persons in Washington. Fingerprints established his identity. He was using an assumed name.

According to information received last night, the Judge Advocate General's Office has nothing to do with the case, it resting in the hands of Federal authorities and the commandant of the Eighth Corps Area in which Fort Bliss is located.

Hanes, who has been the object of a Nation-wide search since his disappearance about a year ago, will be removed to Fort Bliss, where he will be tried by court martial on charges of absconding with $4,295 of a fund placed in his care by hospital patients, and desertion, of which the latter charge takes precedence. He will also face civil charges of embezzlement.

Driver Indicted in Fatality.

A charge of manslaughter was placed against Warren H. Eaton yesterday when the District grand jury returned an indictment against him in the District Supreme Court. Eaton is alleged to have been the driver of an automobile that fatally injured Arthur Busby, December 10, at Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

YOUR INCOME TAX

No. 15.

EXEMPTION ALLOWED STATE EMPLOYES.

The compensation of officers and employes of a State or any political subdivision thereof, if the services of such officers or employes are rendered in connection with activities which constitute the discharge of an essential governmental function, as distinguished from a proprietary function, is exempt from Federal income tax. The compensation of such officers and employes is subject to Federal income tax if their services were rendered in connection with the exercise of a proprietary function. For example, the compensation of the governor of a State, the mayor of a city, councilmen, board of aldermen, public school teachers, firemen and policemen is not subject to Federal income tax. Fees received by notaries public commissioned by States are exempt from Federal income tax. Compensation received by employes of a municipally owned waterworks or street railway or electric-light plant is subject to Federal income tax, as such activities are proprietary rather than governmental in character.

Fees for special services to a State are taxable, as, for example, compensation paid architects and builders for planning and erecting a State capitol or other State or municipal building. An officer or an employe of a State, for the purpose of the income-tax law, is one whose services are continuous and not occasional or temporary.

Dreams to Come True for 3 Of 51 Girls in Fair Contest

Send Your Photograph to Post and See If You Can Win Major Charm Prize, Enough to Buy Home or See Europe.

The most cherished dream will become a reality to three of the 51 girls who will go to Chicago as guests of The Washington Post and Chicago Tribune, to open officially the Century of Progress International Exposition on June 1, for, in addition to world-wide recognition of their feminine charms, they will receive, respectively, $5,000, $3,000 and $2,000 in cash, in the order of their selection. These three girls will bear the titles of queen and first and second ladies-in-waiting and the remaining 48 girls of the group will compose the Queen's Court of Honor in the colorful ceremonies that will inaugurate the world's fair.

Either of the grand prize awards would make it possible to take a European journey, enjoy an extended vacation or aid in furnishing or buying a home. In addition, many other incalculable benefits are certain to result from the focusing of international attention upon the group of girls, who will be selected as "the most charming in the world."

To assure the comprehensiveness of this title there is no limitation upon the place of residence of Queen candidates. Wherever they may live, unmarried girls are invited to submit their photographs to the "Queen Contest Editor, The Washington Post," or their photographs may be entered by any friend or relative. Only professionals such as stage girls and artists' models and employes of The Washington Post are barred from competition. There are no entrance fees and positively no other cost or obligation either now or in the future. The only requirements are that the candidate be unmarried or a widow; that photographs be at least 6 by 8 inches in size and made within the past twelve months.

The transmittal coupon which appears on this page today should be properly filled out and pasted to the back of the photograph, or the same information may be written upon a sheet of paper and similarly attached. Each Sunday, up to and including Sunday, April 2, The Washington Post will reproduce ten of these photographs in its Sunday rotogravure section and will pay $5 to each girl whose picture is so published. Such selection has no bearing upon final judgment of all photographs submitted, however.

The entire group of 51 girls will enjoy a glorious two weeks in Chicago, and at the exposition, with all expenses paid. In addition to the cost of their transportation to and from any part of the world they will also enjoy an elaborate program of entertainment and will be provided with beautiful gowns designed by leading modistes, entirely at the expense of The Washington Post and its affiliated newspapers.

SIZOO URGES LIVING RELIGION, NOT TALK

Presbyterian Pastor Sees Too Much Debate and Poor Execution.

"Religion has been too much debated and not enough lived," Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, minister of the New York avenue Presbyterian Church, said last night in addressing the Presbyterian Alliance of Reformed Churches.

"What we need today," he said "is not more debating, but more demonstrating of the power of God. The revival of religion will bring to this generation a new courage.

"There is omnipotence in God for every weakness. The wisdom of God is available for every quest. Our weakness is made strong through Him. Our ignorance is lost in His wisdom. A new hopefulness will come to a disillusioned world when it finds God anew."

Earlier in the day, the Rev. John Line, of Emmanuel College, Toronto, Ont., addressed the alliance on "The Church and the Social Order." He suggested methods in the use of which the church can harmonize and make mutually reinforcing the effort to increase the personal standards of Christian fidelity.

Dr. Charles E. Schaeffer, of New York, was elected chairman of the alliance. The Rev. Charles S. Cleland was named vice chairman.

Boy Slain

Body of Missing Student Is Found; Motive Is Mystery.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—William Bender, a 12-year-old schoolboy, missing from his home in Jamaica, Long Island, for two weeks, was found today—dead, stabbed through the heart.

The body of the boy, bound and gagged, was found in a closet in an empty apartment building in the Richmond Hills Circle section, near Jamaica Bay.

An autopsy tonight by Medical Examiner Howard Neall, of Queens County, convinced the police the death was not the work of a degenerate, said Inspector John J. Gallagher, of Jamaica.

The search for Bender had been linked during the last two weeks with the widespread hunt for the slayer of Mary Helen O'Connor, 15-year-old schoolgirl from nearby Rockaway Beach. The O'Connor girl's body was found in the woods near Massapequa, Long Island.

Inspector Gallagher said police, at this time, could not advance a theory for the boy's slaying.

The autopsy indicated death was at least a week ago.

Workmen repairing the apartment building, one of a group that has been empty for months, found the body, slumped on the closet floor. The feet protruded into the living room.

DR. D. E. DAVENPORT DEAD AT AGE OF 47

Medical Missionary Served in China; Was Attache of Sanitarium Here.

Dr. Donald E. Davenport, 47, associate medical director of the Washington Sanitarium and Hospital at Takoma Park, died yesterday at his home, 703 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, succumbing to an extended illness caused by a brain tumor.

He underwent an operation for the tumor at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, last July 20, and physicians at that time stated that he would live only six months.

Dr. Davenport came to the Washington Sanitarium from Mountain View, Calif., in August, 1928, where he had been engaged in private practice. Graduating from the College of Medical Evangelists in the spring of 1915, he and his wife and one son, Donald, jr., responded to a call from the Foreign Mission Board of Seventh-day Adventists to go to China in September of that year, where he engaged in pioneer medical missionary work.

Dr. Davenport and his family settled in Yenchang, in the province of Honan, where he was one of two foreign physicians in a province of 18,000,000 inhabitants. Beginning his practice with a meager equipment, Dr. Davenport and the Rev. Frederick Lee, director of mission activities for that section of China, visited well-to-do Chinese and secured enough funds with which to build a dispensary and hospital combined and a nurses' dormitory. He was also selected as the physician for the railroad that ran through that section of China, serving over a section that reached out for several hundred miles. He attended many who met with accidents on the railroad, most of whom not knowing enough to get out of the way of approaching trains.

He and his family spent nearly nine years in China. Upon returning to America, he resumed private practice and settled in Mountain View, Calif., until he came to Takoma Park. He and Dr. Owen S. Parrett, who is also connected with the Takoma Park institution, were classmates and roommates at the medical school, and they also engaged in medical missionary work in Los Angeles together during their student days, during 1914 and 1915.

Surviving him is his wife, Mrs. Pearl Davenport, and five children, Donald, jr., Richard, Russell Marjorie and Marian. He is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons and a member of the Sligo Seventh Day Adventist Church.

CAREY SUITOR SEEKS $100,000 DAMAGES

Hungarian Sues U.S. Charging Deportation Cost Him Senator's Daughter.

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The newspaper As Est tonight reported that a suit for $100,000 damages has been filed in Washington against the United States Government by Martin Porcay-Picler, a Budapest art dealer, who claimed that in the winter of 1932 he met the daughter of Senator Robert D. Carey, of Wyoming, and became engaged to marry her.

Porcay-Picler charges false arrest, humiliation and financial losses, the paper said, and alleges that Senator Carey invited him to his home and that the marriage had been arranged for the forthcoming autumn.

Later Miss Carey wished to be married in April and on the wedding day Porcay-Picler, he said, went to the Carey home where he was told by a butler that the family and daughter had left.

The art dealer maintains that subsequently he retained Attorney Julius J. Peyser and three detectives to find the girl, but they failed.

Although he had permission to stay in the United States two months more, his complaint filed in Washinton continues, he received notification that the permit had been withdrawn.

During a ball in the Hotel Mayflower in Washington, he was surrounded by four detectives, taken to a jail and "put in a cell with murderers," he said in his complaint.

NOW! EASE A SORE THROAT INSTANTLY

Feel Rawness, Irritation, Go At Once

These Pictures Tell You What To Do

Crush and Dissolve 3 Bayer Aspirin Tablets in Half a Glass of Water.
GARGLE Thoroughly—Throw Your Head Way Back, Allowing a Little to Trickle Down Your Throat.

Remember Only Medicine Helps A Sore Throat

Modern medical science now throws an entirely new light on sore throat. A way that eases the pain, rawness and irritation in as little as two or three minutes.

Results are among the most extraordinary in medical science. On doctors' advice, millions are following this way . . . discarding old-time "washes" and "antiseptics." For it has been found that only medicine can help a sore throat.

Simple To Do. All you do is crush and dissolve three BAYER Aspirin Tablets in half a glass of water. Gargle with it twice—as pictured above. If you have any indication of a cold—before gargling take 2 Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. This is to combat any signs of cold that have gone into your system. Keep on taking if cold has a "hold." For Genuine Bayer Aspirin will not harm you. Your doctor will tell you, it does not depress the heart. Get a box of 12 or a bottle of 24 or 100 at any drug store.

Reduces Infection, Eases Pain Instantly. Gargling with Bayer Aspirin will do three things: Relieve soreness at once. Allay inflammation. AND—reduce infection; which is the important thing in fighting a sore throat.

It requires medicine—like BAYER ASPIRIN—to do these things! That is why throat specialists throughout America are prescribing this BAYER gargle in place of old-time ways. Results are quick and amazing.

Be careful, however, that you get real BAYER Aspirin Tablets for this purpose. For they dissolve completely enough to gargle without leaving irritating particles. Watch this when you buy.

Ask your druggist about the recent price reduction on the 100 tablet size Bayer Aspirin.

Stocks Lean to Steadiness As Losses Become Lighter

New Low Reached on List; Sales Volume Reduced to 745,693 Shares.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Financial markets nursed some tender spots today, but there were numerous signs of recuperation from yesterday's bruises.

A more cheerful appraisal of the Michigan bank situation, rising steel production and firm wheat quotations lent a hand to stocks whose movement, with some exceptions, was narrow. The net result of a quiet trading period was a small average net loss which, incidentally, meant a new low for the year. The market this week has sagged back to the levels of last summer, thus penetrating the bottom level of the autumn-winter range.

Utilities were the chief sufferers in a session that saw volume cut in half compared with Tuesday's turnover. Consolidated Gas of New York provided weak leadership for power and light shares, losing 3 points under offerings that probably came in part from professional sources. Public Service of New Jersey and North American and several preferred stocks of the same classification softened sympathetically, though there were no surface developments to account for the sag. Detroit Edison rallied more than 5 on light transactions.

Rails, whose sponsors had the transportation committee's report to peruse, were mostly steady. Some railroad and insurance executives said they had had insufficient time to study the bulky document, and from that source comments during business hours were meager. Wall street itself seemed too preoccupied with other matters to express its opinion marketwise, though the report appeared to have created a favorable impression. Net changes in carrier stocks ran to fractions.

The reputedly large short interest in American Telephone failed to be roused by declaration of a regular dividend, doubtless because such action had recently been taken for granted, and the stock, after slowly advancing a point, closed unchanged. Opinion in some quarters is that the key to the company's future dividend action is with subsidiary units of the Bell System—that is, whether they cut their payments to the parent corporation.

Industrial issues inclined to steadiness. Allied Chemical and American Tobacco "B" softened and International Silver preferred showed several points on omission of its dividend; otherwise the record for manufacturing company equities was rather favorable. U. S. Steel issues, General Electric, Union Carbide, General Motors, Chrysler, Case, Lambert, McKeesport, and Procter & Gamble firmed fractions to a point. United Fruit, Seaboard Oil and most sugar issues likewise rallied. Sales totaled 745,693 shares.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wed.	Tues.
Advances	185	57
Declines	193	485
Unchanged	135	97
Total Issues	513	639

Stocks.

Wounds from Tuesday's fall were nursed and losses reduced to three-tenths of a point. Signs of recuperation appeared as many issues firmed. Sales declined to 745,693 shares. A new 1933 low for the list was established.

Bonds.

Irregular fluctuations sent bonds lower, with the exception of Federal loans, which finished higher. The sales volume declined to $9,499,000.

Curb.

Selling of utilities gave the curb a ragged appearance. Some industrials and mining stocks were firm, and the list generally revealed a better undertone. The turnover dwindled to 120,000 shares.

Wheat.

The cheerful status of financial markets pushed wheat and other grains higher. Active buying of futures aided the advance. May wheat sold at 47⅞ to 47½ cents.

Cotton.

Prices advanced in a quiet market on a moderate increase in trade demand. May sold at 6.08. Quotations closed 4 to 6 points higher. Buying at Liverpool was supplied by scattered selling, attributed partly to Egyptian account.

GOODS MARKET.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Gray cloth markets were softer today with sales light. Fine lawns sold freely for printing. Burlaps were easier, a few points above the low of the year. Raw silk was quiet and barely steady. Wool goods sold in moderate volume. Rayon goods were in fair demand for dress purposes chiefly.

CURB'S TONE BETTER IN SPITE OF SELLING

Utilities Blamed in Losses; Turnover Dwindles to 120,000 Shares.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Selling of the utility stocks gave the curb market a somewhat ragged appearance today, although some of the industrial and mining stocks were firm.

There was no repetition of yesterday's active selling, however, and the list showed a better undertone. The turnover was only 120,000 shares, against 210,000 yesterday.

Heaviness of the utility group was in sympathy with a similar trend on the big board, where professional traders have recently been bearish on the power stocks, basing their attitude on agitation for rate reductions.

American Gas & Electric was about steady, but Columbia Gas preferred reacted 3 points, and Consolidated Gas of Baltimore and Electric Bond & Share common eased fractionally. American Superpower preferred and Bond & Share 5 per cent preferred each lost a point. United Gas preferred, however, rallied 1½ in advance of the dividend meeting.

In the industrials, Deere rose a point, in sympathy with a firmer wheat market, and Aluminium Co. gained about as much. New York Shipbuilding was again a firm feature. In the mining group, Lake Shore closed ¾ of a point higher, and some of the lower priced gold issues were up small fractions.

Despite a substantial gain in gasoline stocks, oils held up well. Standard of Indiana advanced a small fraction, while Gulf reacted slightly.

Decrease in Failures Seen As Sign of Reconstruction

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Banking and business leaders are watching with keen interest the definitely improved showing of one of the Nation's important industrial barometers, the Index of Commercial Insolvencies.

Latest available figures show that so far in February, the distinct improvement shown in this index last January, is being continued. In fact, waning insolvencies in recent weeks makes the most favorable comparison with "a year ago" for some nine months back.

Figures released by R. G. Dunn & Co., covering business casualties for last week, shows there were 629 failures against 660 the preceding week and 702 the week before that. For the corresponding week of 1932, business defaults totaled 693. Thus the closing for last week not only showed a gratifying decrease from earlier weeks of this year, but also stood 9.2 per cent under the total for the corresponding 1932 week.

The early February returns follow a satisfactory showing in January. Total failures for that month were the lowest since January, 1930. They totaled 2,919 against 3,458 in January, 1932, and 3,316 in January, 1931.

Bradstreet's Weekly likewise reports a substantial improvement in its record of insolvencies. While this authority explains that a drop is usual at this time of year, "the stride made in this direction during the latest week was of greater than seasonal proportions."

Business leaders naturally await more evidence before advancing predictions of continued improvement, but a number have shown manifest encouragement over the better showing. A feature of the reports for this year, which has received considerable emphasis, is the decline in number of large failures.

Cargoes for Six Months Worth $196,343,806; January Cut.

(Associated Press.)

The Commerce Department announced yesterday that total raw cotton exports from the United States for the first half of the cotton season aggregated 5,089,714 bales valued at $196,343,806 compared with 4,956,981 bales worth $199,375,436 for the first half of the previous cotton season.

Exports of raw cotton during January amounted to 793,666 bales worth $29,567,858 compared with 1,039,795 bales worth 636,735,468 in December, 1932, and 949,815 bales worth $35,786,678 in January, 1932.

The department said that as compared with the first half of last season larger exports were registered for France, Germany, Italy and the United Kingdom while smaller shipments were made to China and Japan.

Willys-Overland In Receivership

Friendly Suit Is Brought to Conserve the Assets of Company.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The Willys-Overland Company, a pioneer manufacturer of automobiles, was placed in the hands of a receiver in Federal court late today following an all-day conference of officials of the plant and of associated industries.

The receivership petition was brought in the name of the Monroe Auto Equipment Co., of which C. O. Miniger, president of the Electric Auto-Lite Co., and also heavily interested in the Overland Company, is an official. The action, it was understood, was in the nature of a friendly suit and brought to protect those interested in the company and to conserve the assets of the firm.

John N. Willys, founder of the company, and L. A. Miller, its president, were appointed receivers by Judge George P. Hahn.

(Associated Press.)

Treasury receipts for February 13 were $4,721,103.59; expenditures, $16,984,744.52; balance, $342,009,403.57. Custom receipts for the 13 days of the month were $7,649,209.71.

U.S. BONDS ADVANCE IN LOSING MARKETS

Two-Tenths Drop Recorded as Turnover Is Cut to $9,499,000.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Bonds followed a highly irregular and confused trend today though the clouds which overhung the market on Tuesday were largely dissipated by reassuring statements regarding the Michigan banking situation.

Transactions totaled $9,499,000 against $14,514,000 yesterday. The average price was 2-10 of a point lower. The United States Government division was watched closely for indications of unusual selling, and traders were considerably cheered by late rallying tendencies in the group after further losses in the forenoon. Treasury issues, which absorbed heavy selling on the previous day, closed from 1-16 to 5-16 of a point higher.

Some of the foreign groups developed pronounced weakness on selling, which traders found it difficult to explain, except in the case of Japanese issues, which are affected by the suspension of stock exchanges throughout Japan and the country's reported recall of representatives to the League of Nations.

German loans were sharply lower in government, municipal and industrial divisions. Certain of the South American categories were also under further pressure.

While rail obligations were in very much better form than yesterday, price movements were too irregular to warrant conclusions as to the group's reaction to the far-reaching recommendations of the national transportation committee. Several rallied strongly, although not enough to overcome yesterday's heavy losses. There were also a few sharp losses, notably in New York Central 4s of 1998 and Southern Pacific Refunding 4s.

Utility bonds experienced an irregular recovery in which both prime and second-grade issues participated. Industrial Corporation loans were mixed. Several of the oil and motor issues yielded some ground. Steels appeared to act better on the more favorable trade reports. Vanadium Corporation 5s jumped 8 points.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading on the stock exchange experienced a setback due to the Far Eastern situation and caused a drop of 2 to 7 points in Chinese bonds and 2 to 4 points in Japanese bonds. This weakness affected other foreign issues, especially German bonds. British shares were lightly maintained and the closing tone was unsettled.

Paris—Prices were heavy on the bourse following the reaction of the Wall street market and also on account of midmonth liquidation.

Berlin—Prices on the bourse opened weaker owing to Michigan bank troubles, but gradually recovered and closed generally firm.

SILK MARKET.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Raw silk futures closed easier; sales, 3,310 bales. March, 1.14S; May, 1.13; July, 1.13. Open market quotations (60-day basis). Shanghai steam extra, B, 1.15; Canton double extra A, 14-16s, 95; Japanese crack, double extra, 1.35.

REP. HENRY T. RAINEY,
Who will be guest of honor at the 29th annual banquet of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the Willard Hotel, February 18.

Rainey to Be Guest At Banking Dinner

Many Capital Officials on List of Invitations; 500 to Attend.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, majority leader of the House of Representatives, will be the guest of honor of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at its twenty-ninth annual banquet at the Willard Hotel Saturday evening, according to James A. Soper, vice president Lincoln National Bank, chairman of the banquet committee. Judging from the reservations that have been made, Mr. Soper stated that the officers, directors and employes of local financial institutions are showing considerable interest in plans for this occasion.

In addition to Representative Rainey, there will be a number of other distinguished guests who will be in attendance. W. O. Woods, treasurer of the United States, and William M. Mooney, city postmaster, also will be guests. Among others who have accepted invitations are Frank N. Hall, comptroller of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis and national president of the institute; Edgar E. Mountjoy, deputy manager American Bankers Association; Carter E. Talman, vice president of the American Bank & Trust Co. of Richmond and past president of the national organization; George H. Keesee, cashier of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

This annual affair, bringing together more than 500 local members, is the outstanding social function of Washington bankers, and is always a brilliant and enjoyable event.

WHEAT VALUES RISE IN BUOYANT TRADING

Active Buying of Futures Aids Recovery; Other Grains Advance.

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Indications of more cheerful feeling in financial circles led to a sharp advance of wheat values today.

Active buying of wheat for future delivery was much in evidence the greater part of the time, but after prices had bulged 1½ cents, selling pressure increased, and fractional setbacks ensued. The enlarged selling was attributed to Government-sponsored agencies and to liquidation of May contracts.

Wheat closed unsettled, ½ to ¾ above yesterday's finish; corn, a shade to ¼ up; oats, ⅛ to ¼ advanced, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents off.

Upturn in Stocks.

Upturns in the New York stock market and in commodities other than grain preceded the strength shown by wheat. There were also reports that almost 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had been taken today for overseas, and that Antwerp yesterday had bought some United States hard winter wheat. China was reported as in the market both for Canadian and Australian wheat today.

Japanese, Chinese tension was construed as bullish regarding breadstuffs. Traders gave attention also to cables from India telling of urgent need of rain, and asserting that wheat yields in the central provinces were expected to prove subnormal. Better domestic milling demand here for wheat was an additional stimulating factor. An opposite influence to some degree was word that the United States Government report on domestic farm stocks of grain had been postponed, and would hereafter be issued April 1 instead of March 1.

Corn and oats borrowed strength from wheat. Country offerings of corn to arrive were of fairly liberal volume.

Provisions ruled easier, responsive to action of hog values.

COTTON PRICES GAIN ON TRADE'S DEMAND

May Closes at 6.08 as General Market Rises 4 to 6 Points.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Cotton prices rose slightly in a quiet market today. Offerings were light and a moderate demand from the trade combined with some covering lifted May contracts to 6.12 or about 10 points net higher. Reactions of 6 to 7 points followed under realizing or liquidation, but the market steadied again on a continuance of the trade buying with May closing at 6.08. The general market closed steady at net advances of 4 to 6 points.

The opening was unchanged to 2 points higher. Considerable March liquidation was reported, but the selling which had been a feature of yesterday's trading was not in evidence, and Southern offerings were light.

Reports from Washington that the domestic allotment bill with amendments had been favorably reported by the Senate Agricultural Committee were without much apparent effect on the market, and general business was quiet with traders evidently inclined to await further developments.

Switching Is Employed.

Much of the March liquidation was in the form of switching from near to late months without much change in the differences.

Liverpool cables said that local and trade buying in that market had been supplied by scattered selling attributed partly to Egyptian account. Egyptian cotton futures in the Alexandria market were reported 10 to 30 points lower and Liverpool cable advices to the New York Cotton Exchange service said the decision of the Egyptian government to sell up to 1,000 bales weekly of present holdings was believed to mean termination of attempts at price stabilization.

Showers to heavy rains, the latter mostly in valley States were said to be interfering with farm work and restricting the movement. Exports today, 36,827; making 5,409,037 so far this season. Port receipts, 21,400. U. S. port stocks, 4,666,533.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was less active and price changes irregular today with the near months relatively steady on covering. The distant positions were a little easier under liquidation. Final prices were 1 point higher to 3 lower with sales of only four contracts or 600 barrels.

Crude oil was steady, and the firmness of cotton and grains was a supporting factor. The increase of approximately 5,000,000 pounds in contract lard stocks for first part of February was ignored. Bleachable spot closed 3.55, March, 3.73; May, 3.83; July, 3.95; September, 4.05.

The State banking superintendent acted at the request of George J. and Dominick J. Faour, partners in the firm, to insure an orderly liquidation of its assets.

FRANC AND GUILDER LEAD IN ADVANCES

Heavy Offerings of Dollar Follow Bank Moratorium; Pound Declines.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The recent trend in the foreign exchange market was reversed today. Sterling, decidedly firm in the past several days, eased, while some continental currencies, which had shown a sagging trend, rallied.

Sterling's loss amounted to only 9-16 cent bringing the level to $3.43¼ for cables. The Dutch guilder, which had been weak on rumors of a possible abandonment of the gold standard, rallied 5 points to 40.13 cents on a government pronouncement favoring gold.

Most of the other gold currencies were firm, slight gains occuring in French francs, and Swiss and Belgian currencies. Scandinavians eased with sterling. Canadian dollars were quoted ⅛ cent lower at $3.87½. In the Far Eastern group, the Japanese yen dropped nearly ½ cent on the closing of the Tokyo stock exchange and reports of unfavorable political developments.

London, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Michigan's banking holiday resulted today in exceptionally large offerings of dollars for sale in the exchange market.

But the government's exchange stabilization fund operated as usual to prevent an undesired rise in the pound, which, indeed, was quoted at 3.43½, slightly lower than yesterday. Forward rates, however, showed dollars somewhat shaded.

Paris, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—A sharp reaction in the dollar exchange, attributed by bankers to short selling resulting from the Michigan bank holiday, brought a drop of 3½ centimes in the rate today.

There was much selling of dollars against sterling on orders originating in London, one banker said. The dollar closed at 25.5575 francs, against 25.5925 yesterday.

Associated Gas to Pay Interest in 5-Year Scrip

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Interest due tomorrow on convertible obligations of the Associated Gas & Electric Co., will be paid in five-year 7 per cent scrip, the company announced today.

PHONE BOARD VOTES $2.25 USUAL RETURN

$40,000,000 Will Be Paid to 700,000 Stockholders on April 15.

New York, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. today ordered distribution of its regular quarterly dividend of $2.25 a share, calling for a total disbursement of more than $40,000,000 to some 700,000 stockholders.

Thus, this largest corporation in the world, owned by the largest number of stockholders, kept intact its regular annual dividend rate of $9, which has been in effect since 1921.

Although the $9 rate was not fully earned in 1932, continuance of the regular distribution had been foreshadowed by the remarks of Walter S. Gifford, president, in his annual report last week.

"For many years," he said, "an important consideration back of the financial policy of the company has been the fact that regular dividends, representing, as they do, a return on actual cash invested, are vital to the day-to-day living of the vast majority of its hundreds of thousands of stockholders, more than half of whom are women. No stockholder owns as much as 1 per-cent of the stock outstanding, the average holding per stockholder being 27 shares."

The dividend is payable April 15 to stock of record, March 14.

Directors of the Electric Bond & Share Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 on the $6 preferred stock and the regular quarterly payment of $1.25 on the $5 preferred stock, both payable May 1 to stock of record April 6.

Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation had 1932 net income of $17,-204,675, equivalent after preferred dividends to 96 cents a share on the common stock, according to a preliminary report issued today. In 1931 net income was $22,231,888 or $1.42 a share on the common.

Net income for the December quarter was $5,184,778, equivalent to 31 cents a share, against $5,992,187 or 39 cents a share in the 1931 final quarter.

Cincinnati, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Directors of the Procter & Gamble Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share on the 5 per cent preferred stock. It is payable March 15 to stockholders of record February 24.

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The annual report of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., issued today, showed gross income for 1932 of $6,556,691. Net income, after all deductions for depreciation, expenses, losses and taxes, was $2,067,885, equal to $1.62 a share on the common stock.

Montreal, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Net revenue for 1932 of $10,039,925—$2,454,-196 greater than in 1931—was reported today by Canadian National Railways. The figures did not include the Eastern lines.

The railway reported gross revenues of $143,414,873 and operating expenses of $133,374,947. The receipts were $33,858,866 below those of 1931, but operating expenses were reduced by $36,313,000.

Boston, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The United Fruit Co. today reported a net income of $5,707,221.48 for 1932 after depreciation, interest and taxes.

This compared with $6,779,363.17 for the previous year.

A general revaluation of properties and other assets was made during 1932, resulting in a reduction in property book values of $50,945,033.08.

During 1932, the report said, 54,034,-329 stems of bananas were shipped from tropical divisions. This was 10 per cent less than in 1931. Sugar receipts, the report said, continued unsatisfactory, but during 1932 the Revere Sugar Refinery melted 397,635,189 pounds of raw sugar, or approximately 1,500,000 pounds per day.

During the year the company's fleet of 102 ships carried 44,469 passengers.

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The Pullman Co. reported today a net deficit of $1,218,955, after taxes, for the year 1932, compared with a net profit of $3,009,425 for 1931. Gross earnings for last year were $43,386,386, contrasting with gross of $62,858,077 for 1931.

December, 1932, transportation operations brought gross earnings of $3,294,287, compared with $4,852,200 in 1931, while net earnings for the month were $68,746, against $942,682 in December, 1931.

The manufacturing subsidiaries of Pullman, Inc., were not involved in the Pullman Co. report.

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—The Peoples Gas, Light & Coke Co. reported today its total revenue from gas sales decreased slightly more than ½ of 1 per cent during 1932. Net income for the year was $4,162,683.19.

"As a result of the advent of natural gas," the statement said, "the company and its subidiaries were able to dispose of 38.8 per cent more gas with an increase in the cost thereof of only 3.88 per cent."

The assets increased in 1932 to $639,455,691.51. The company paid out more than $105,000,000, exclusive of loans on policies, to policyholders and their beneficiaries during the year and the special contingency reserve for adjustments was increased to $13,500,000. The company's general surplus fund was raised to $44,-070,619.91, making a total emergency fund of $57,570,619.91.

Goodyear Rubber Cuts Dividend to 50 Cents

Akron, Ohio, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Directors of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., today cut the preferred quarterly dividend payment from $1.75 to 50 cents. With the 50 cents a quarter payment effective April 1, a statement said the $1.25 a share difference will be cumulative "and be paid at any time conditions justify." It added "the reduction was made in view of present unsettled conditions generally."

Net loss for 1932 was $850,394, with $50,000,000 cash on hand in the bank—a surplus greater than in 1931. Net sales totaled $109,051,757 and total profits before interest was $3,-167,876.

RADIO HEARING HELD ON WMAL TRANSFER

Board Told Capital Talent Is Insufficient for Excellent Programs Throughout.

A hearing on the transfer of the license of Station WMAL to the National Broadcasting Co. was held yesterday before Acting Chairman Eugene O. Sykes of the Federal Radio Commission and Commissioners Lafount and Brown.

Martin A. Leese, owner of Station WMAL, was the first witness. He declared that listeners seemed to prefer the offerings of the chains and that it was next to impossible to maintain high standard local programs at all times because of the lack of sufficient talent in Washington. Mr. Leese made it plain that under the new arrangement the civic and local organizations would be allowed as much time on the air as they have had in the past.

Frank M. Russell, vice president of the N. B. C. in charge of Washington affairs, reiterated that the talent is not here to develop high-grade local programs and told the commission of the appointment of Mr. Leese as chairman of an advisory committee to supervise local programs for WMAL and WRC because of his wide acquaintance with trade organizations here.

Civic Leaders In Favor.

Robert J. Cottrell, secretary of the Board of Trade, said he had no apprehension that the new arrangement would hit civic broadcasts. James E. Colliflower, of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, and John Eckert, director of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, expressed approval of the transfer.

The only opposing witness was Tracy F. Tyler, who represented the National Committee on Education by Radio, an endowed organization backed by nine educational associations, including the National Education Association. His main objection to the transfer was that there would be a decrease in local material broadcast with a consequent increase in chain programs.

Reason for Objection.

He said that if the purpose of the Federal Radio Commission was to give tacit approval to the two national chains then the transfer should be approved, but if it is the desire of the commission to maintain independent stations, this transfer should be denied. He expressed fear that WMAL would no longer be able to devote time to broadcasts prepared by educational institutions if it were under the chain banner.

The commission took the matter under advisement. An announcement is not expected for several days.

Station WMAL was represented at the hearing by Thomas P. Littlepage, while T. Hennessey, New York attorney, appeared for the N. B. C.

Hero Under Grant Lacks Army Burial

Arlington Resting Place May Be Denied Unless Penal Bar Cleared.

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Tom McNally, a hero of the Civil War, who died recently, may be denied his dying wish—burial in Arlington National Cemetery.

A prison record stood in the way of the man whom Gen. U. S. Grant credited with having saved an army at the battle of the Wilderness. Relatives were informed today by Army officials they first must prove that the pardon which freed McNally of a murder sentence in 1915 also restored his citizenship rights.

The same authority, James H. Laubach, assistant to the lieutenant colonel of the Quartermaster Corps in Washington, refuted McNally's proud boast that he held the Congressional Medal of Honor for his bravery under Gen. Grant.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT IS an epic of nostalgia—the story of an enormous homesickness for a condition and a place—that Sidney Howard has written for Miss Katharine Cornell as her second production of the current season.

Katharine Cornell.

Sequestered in the oblivion of an obscure little college town "a few hours west of Chicago" dwells Elsa Brandt, daughter of a lyric star of Wagner's soprano roles, now dead, and a crippled father, once a violin virtuoso who played "concertos with Muck in Boston and with Stock in Chicago." Touched perhaps with genius, she lives in smouldering revolt against the stifling drudgery of a "security" that keeps her chained to the deadly routine of teaching piano to dull-witted and uninspired students of the Conway College for Women while the inherited endowments of a potentially great artiste disintegrate for want of a hearing that might place her among the world's musicaly great.

Marooned, for all of her life that "Alien Corn" permits us to examine, in the living room of the house occupied by her and her father on the college campus, and in this rebellious state of mind, Elsa is surrounded by college professors and other depressing fauna of an exaggerated and disheartening provincialism.

In this atmosphere of frustration, and from the viewpoint of the confirmed defeatist for much of its length, Mr. Howard has evolved a psychological study that exemplifies a skillful technique in the mechanics of dramaturgy without providing any very stimulating intellectual calisthenics and certainly no overplussage of enlivening entertainment.

For his symbols of the mental bankruptcy imposed upon its lifelong residents by a small town's constricted horizons, he has depopulated "Main Street" and raided the strongholds of "Babbittry." For the other side of the picture—the artistic starvation of the impotent Ottokar Brandt and his talented daughter, Elsa named for her mother's great role in "Lohengrin;" the distorted devotion of the radical and erotic Julian Vardaman, junior professor; the questionable love of Harry Conway, the president of the college by inheritance, and the tragic means by which Elsa is liberated from her bondage to that utter freedom of which she has always dreamed—it is necessary to go back to the chill and somber realism of an Ibsen, or a Tolstoi, to find a parallel.

Such is the fabric of the drama in which the art of Katherine Cornell is clothed—a strong, fibrous weaving without gay color or exciting pattern, but a substantial garb for the theater's more decorous and subdued occasions.

Three characters in the play are drawn with unassailable intellectual and spiritual integrity—Miss Cornell's Elsa, Siegfried Rumann's Ottokar Braundt and Charles D. Brown's Phipps, village newspaper publisher. Luther Adler's Julian Vardaman is warped by the abortive mental processes of a frank neurotic; James Rennie's opulent educator, Harry Conway, is an inexcusable, if not outrageous, cad. The rest are pompous nonetities whose meager intelligepces mirror a scant admiration on Mr. Howard's part of the pillars of America's system of higher education. It would be as ungracious as it is unjust not to include Jessie Busley and Lily Cahill, in the only feminine roles other than the star's, among those who lend the play something of authentic charm.

Miss Cornell has not by any means another Elizabeth Barrett—such things only happen once in a generation—but in Elsa Brandt she has a character of sufficient mental depth to engage the most earnest application of her mature and highly developed powers of delineation. While I am inclined to the belief that her seeming virtuosity at the piano is cleverly contrived offstage, her second-act monologue, recapitulating to the errant Mr. Rennie the vicissitudes of her earlier life, her immensely moving last act and the other moments of high-relief in the four scenes of the three acts that comprise the play reflect a creative insight and an artistic discretion that will quite justify the enthusiasm of those who will wish to swell the numbers that have journeyed to the Maryland Theater in Baltimore to applaud an artiste who stands preeminent in the American theater.

If I seem to have been less completely captivated than I should have been by "Alien Corn," it can not be laid to a poor point of vantage from which to apprehend its processes. The courteous and generous impulses of the Messrs. Ray Henderson and Leonard B. McLaughlin, of Miss Cornell's executive staff and the Maryland Theater, respectively, in helpful collaboration, conspired to place your reporter in the third row, center, of the orchestra Tuesday evening, in the very midst of Baltimore's polite garrulity and glittering gems.

The house, I should estimate, was filled to capacity, and while Monday's first-night exuberances had somewhat subsided, six curtain calls bore evidence of its hearty approval of a serious evening in the theater.

It would not surprise me, as a bit of afterthought, if Mr. Howard should arise to confound those who complain of his play's lack of animation by stating that its story and all its characters are drawn from real life. That could be. It would only serve as one more demonstration, however, that while truth may be stranger than fiction, it may also, at times, be less acutely interesting.

The following bulletin reaches the dramatic desk:

"If present plans materialize there will be two performances of 'The Green Pastures' at the National Theater on Sunday, February 26, both of them being under the auspices and for the benedt of worthy colored charities.

"If sufficient interest is evidenced on the part of Negro theatergoers of Washington in witnesses 'The Green Pastures,' the management of that play, working in conjunction with the theater management, has agreed to present a matinee, as well as the already scheduled evening performance, on Sunday, February 26.

"The matinee would be under the auspices of the Harriet Tubman Aid to the Blind, operated by Miss Charlotte E. Hunter, at 1416 Eleventh street northwest. The evening show, as has already been announced, will be sponsored by the educational department of the colored Elks Lodge of this city.

"The ticket sale for the matinee will be conducted through the colored Y. W. C. A., and tickets for the evening performance are on sale at the Thomas Pharmacy, 1200 U street northwest."

While we were holding a clinic over "Alien Corn" next door in Baltimore, Lee Nixon, sergeant at arms of the Republican National Convention that nominated Hoover at Kansas City four years ago, and who dates back to the old days down in the tropics when the imperious Mr. Samuel Lionel Rothafel, "Roxy," was a corporal in your Uncle Sam's Marine Corps, was personally investigating the current week's goings-on in Radio Center, New York, the scene of Roxy's most recent rubbing of Aladin's lamp, which he somehow seems to have inherited, or something.

Although Lee's eyes were still popping out from his first peek at the Radio City Music Hall, he returns to these placid precincts this time rather more agitated than usual by the superlative qualities of "Topaze," the screen fable in which John Barrymore happened to be playing the Music Hall the day he was there.

This, so the good Doctor Nixon informs me, is the greatest screen entertainment he has ever seen. Different from anything the youngest of the Barrymores has done for the cameras and microphones, but right up his alley never and none the less.

"Topaze," in case it had slipped your mind, is the feature opening at RKO-Keith's here tomorrow. Unless the usual Nixon sagacity in things theatrical has gone suddenly haywire, Mr. Meakin's Fifteenth street opera house will not be half large enough to hold the crowds.

The complete catalogue of the new week's magic lantern shows would be something like this: Metropolitan, George Arliss in "The King's Vacation;" RKO-Keith's, John Barrymore and Myrna Loy in "Topaze;" Loew's Fox, Charles Laughton in "The Island of Lost Souls," and George Olsen and his music, headlining the vaudeville; Earle, Joan Blondell and Chester Morris in "Blondie Johnson," and Gus Van headlining the vaudeville; Rialto, Lee Tracy and Gloria Stuart in "Private Jones;" Palace, Will Rogers and Janet Gaynor in "State Fair;" Columbia, Ernest Truex and Una Merkel in "Whistling in the Dark."

That last is about all that's left for that sharpshooter down in Miami!

Elaborate Postoffice Is Opened in Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—A $18,000,000 postoffice, with a roof constructed as a possible airplane landing field was opened in Chicago today as trains chugged beneath it.

Postmaster General Walter F. Brown hailed it in a dedicatory address as another symbol of American progress. He said the new building erected on "air rights" over rail terminal tracks would save the Government $500,000 a year and speed up service considerably.

LORD MARLEY TALKS ON ANTI-SEMITISM

Eastern Europe Feeling Laid to Economic Causes by British Speaker.

Asserting that there was a rising tide of anti-Semitism throughout eastern Europe, Lord Marley, deputy speaker of the British House of Lords, said last night that this hatred directed against the Jews is not motivated by racial or religious prejudice but purely economic conditions.

Speaking at the Mayflower Hotel, as president of the Ort Parliamentary Committee, Lord Marley commended the work of the Ort, an organization devoted to rehabilitating Jews who, through legal restrictions, have been unable to participate in merchandising and industry.

Explaining that the feeling of anti-Semitism was an outgrowth of the natural hatred directed against a middleman by both producer and consumer, the British lord stated that the return of the Jew to industrial and farming occupations would lessen this feeling.

Senator William H. King, of Utah, chairman of the Congressional Committee of the American Ort, acted as chairman of the evening. He stated that organizations dedicated to the ideals of justice and liberty, such as the Ort, now have an opportunity of protecting the oppressed. He asserted that it was high time that all nations "mobilize the forces of tolerance."

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, chairman of the board of directors of the American branch of the organization, addressed the group, outlining its immediate objectives.

THOMAS ATTACKS ECONOMY LEAGUE

Oklahoman Predicts Passage of Bonus and Urges War Veterans to Unite.

Coupling an attack on the Economy League with the prediction that the bonus bill will be passed by the next Congress and approved by President-elect Roosevelt, Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, last night urged members of the Disabled American Veterans to organize with other World War groups, in a concerted fight for this legislation.

"The only way you will get what you want is through being organized," the senator told the soldiers of fifteen years ago. "And the headquarters of your organizaton and every other veterans' organization should be in Washington, the best central point from which to wage the battle for your rights."

Senator Thomas declared that the greatest enemy of the veterans is the Economy League and the big money interests which, he said, are centered in New York City. The Economy League, he asserted, is made up of invividuals who have wealth in tax-exempt securities.

An even more bitter attack on the Economy League was made by E. K. Inman, vice president of the National Tribune. The most vicious thing the league is doing, he charged, is its teaching of 4,000,000 Boy Scouts "that the veterans are a bunch of Treasury raiders and bums."

The opening gun in a battle for a larger and stronger organization of veterans was sounded by Lee Turner, national executive committeeman, and Joseph Ash, department commander of the D. A. V., Federal Chapter No. 6. The speeches were interspersed with an entertainment program. The meeting, attended by a large number of veterans and their wives, was held at the Sears Roebuck galleries, 1106 Connecticut avenue northwest.

KING OF THE JUNGLE

by CHARLES THURLEY STONEHAM

SYNOPSIS.

Kaspa, the lion-man, found as a child in the African jungle by a lioness and brought up by her with her own cubs, is brought to Canada by Martin Sefton, where he is recognized as the heir to $4,000,000. He falls in love with a society girl, Madeline Moore. Because he learns Sefton is also in love with Madeline and being fed up with civilization, he goes back to the jungle. Some time later he is followed to Africa by Lucian and Sheila Marley, Sheila's husband, Harland Reeves; Madeline Moore and Martin Sefton. Lucian Marley, being in debt, is anxious to find Kaspa dead, as he will get the inheritance. The same is true of Reeves. They enter into negotiations with Louden Grant, an unscrupulous commissioner, who forces Cloete, a veteran Dutch hunter, who originally captured Kaspa, to agree to shoot Kaspa down when they meet him. While Lucian is alone in camp one day he looks up from the book he is reading and sees Kaspa standing before him.

CHAPTER XXVI.

KASPA'S hair had grown long again, and hung almost to his shoulders; a curling golden beard obscured the lower part of his face, and a flowing mustache depended to meet it. He was naked save for a girdle of monkey skin from which hung his sheath-knife. The extraordinary bulk of the man, and his bronzed skin, under which the muscles showed plainly, reminded Lucian of pictures of old Norse rovers, but he doubted if any hero of the sagas had the stature of this son of the African wilderness.

He was so overcome at the sight of the man he had wronged that at first it seemed to him that Kaspa must be aware of his treachery and be eager to wreak vengeance upon him. He crouched down upon the mossy ground, holding out beseeching hands to avert the punishment he expected.

Kaspa was astonished. "What's the matter?" he asked. "You know who it is. It is I, Kaspa, Lucian. I will not hurt you."

Lucian could only goggle at him speechlessly. Kaspa sat down upon the bank of the stream also, and waited for the other to regain his self-possession. The lion-man had become aware of the intrusion of Europeans into his hunting-grounds the night before, and in the early hours of the morning he had investigated and satisfied himself that Jan Cloete was once again upon his trail. He had recognized several of the Dutchman's boys sleeping around the cooking-fire, but he did not known who made up the rest of the party.

After the lions had retired to the cave he hung about the camp, concealed in the forest, intent upon establishing the identity of the visitors. He had seen a man sitting by the stream, and had recognized Lucian. He was now eager for information, for where Lucian was there would likely be others in whom he was more interested. Lucian had recovered from his first terror and surprise, and had now given way to a fit of trembling. He stared at Kaspa with large frightened eyes.

"What is the matter with you, Lucian? You don't suppose I'm going to eat you, do you?" Kaspa's voice was husky and his accent a trifle gutteral; it was long since he had spoken a civilized tongue.

"Hello, Kaspa," said Lucian weakly. "I did not expect to see you."

Kaspa laughed. "And yet you did not journey all this way just to see the country, I suppose," he said jocularly. "Why did you come, and who came with you?"

"The whole crowd is here," Lucian stuttered. "Sefton and the Reeves and Madeline."

Kaspa's face clouded.

"Reeves?" he muttered. "What does he want?"

Lucian looked blank. "I don't know;" he just came along."

That did not satisfy Kaspa. He though he understood the reason of the stockbroker's presence, and determined to keep an eye on him. The thought of Madeline's near presence drew his mind in another direction. "Why has she come?" he said half aloud. "Could she not leave me alone? The temptation is too great."

Lucian, realizing that this observation was not meant for him, disregarded it. He was still in mortal terror of the lion-man, but beginning to understand that his treachery was known only to himself, and he was therefore not in any immediate danger.

"The idea is to get you to return with them to Canada," he volunteered, "otherwise you must let us know how you get on from time to time, Kaspa. You know, up to the present we were in ignorance whether you were alive or dead.

"Would it have mattered?" said Kaspa with the simplicity of one who attaches no fictitious importance to these things.

Lucian coughed. "Well, you see, there is the matter of the inheritance. You are a very rich man, and, supposing you were to disappear, the lawyers would make a pile out of the estate before your death would be presumed."

Kaspa smiled. "I always forget the importance of money to you people," he said. "My grandfather's wealth is of no use to me; I can't buy anything with it out here. I wanted to give it away, but Horton would not hear of it. I wish I had done so now."

Lucian regarded him strangely. How any one could be so careless about such things was beyond his comprehension. "Would you give me a hundred thousand dollars if I asked you for it?" he said.

"Certainly. I tell you I don't want it. I'll write a line to Horton telling him to pay you the money." Lucian was quite overcome. Tears gathered in his eyes as he thought of the magnanimity of his cousin and his own deceitful conduct.

"Listen, Kaspa," he said earnestly. "I've been behaving like a fool since you left Toronto. I went in for speculating in shares and dropped a hundred thousand, and then I got into the hands of a money lender. You probably don't understand all these things, but I tell you I am in pretty serious trouble. That's one reason why I came out here: To try and find you and ask you to help me."

Kaspa responded to his look of appeal immediately. "Of course, I'll help, Lucian; I'll write a letter to Horton as I said I would."

Lucian got to his feet. There was a new purposeful look in his eyes and a somewhat grim set to his mouth.

"All right, Kaspa," he said. "I'll go back to camp and get paper and a pen right now. There's one thing I want to warn you about: Don't trust Jan Cloete; he'll shoot you if he gets the chance. I can't explain, but I know what I'm talking about. So long, and don't forget: Watch out for Cloete."

Kaspa nodded; he had intended to do that anyway.

"Why is Reeves here?" he asked. Lucian spoke over his shoulder as he walked away, his mind full of his difficulties. "Madeline was keen on his coming. She said she wouldn't come if the Reeves didn't."

Kaspa had no knowledge of Sheila's marriage, and this explanation of the stockbroker's presence made him thoughtful. He suffered a fierce spasm of jealousy at the thought of Reeves and Madeline together. Things had changed, apparently, since he left Canada.

He sat there brooding until Lucian returned with writing materials. By that time he had made up his mind what to do. His first care was to write an order to James Horton to pay Lucian the sum of $200,000. This cost him much time and effort, for he discovered that he had almost forgotten how to use a pen, an accomplishment in which he had never been proficient.

"Here you are," he said, extending the sheet of paper. "I have written for double what you wanted. I suppose Horton will be able to pay it." He got up and leaned his massive frame against a tree trunk.

"Now, I want you to carry a message to the others. Tell Sefton it is no good his looking for me; I will not meet him. Tell him it is no use, and only awakens old memories. He will understand. Tell Reeves to take himself out of this district as quickly as possible. If I find him on my hunting grounds I will kill him. He'll understand. Just say to Madeline Moore, 'Once a lion, always a lion.' I hope she'll understand, but if she doesn't I can't help it. Now, good-by." He turned on his heel and in a moment the forest had swallowed him up.

"But, Kaspa!" cried Lucian helplessly. He hesitated, realising that he was wasting his protests upon the empty air. After a moment's thought, he turned back to camp, his mind occupied with the messages he had to deliver. He decided that every one must hear Kaspa's words, and perhaps they might be induced by them to give up this fruitless quest and return home.

The hunting party returned to camp in the afternoon. They had found no trace of the lions. This was not disappointing to Cloete; he did not desire an audience when he encountered Kaspa. Reeves had shot a baboon, the biggest Cloete had ever seen, but the creature had escaped, wounded, in the mist, and they had not been able to discover its hiding place.

Lucian did not deliver his messages from Kaspa. He wished to do so in the presence of Sefton and Madeline, e vouchsafed nothing for the moment ment, for he did not wish Cloete to know that he had seen Kaspa. Meanwhile Sefton and Madeline had been no more successful in their search than the others. They had followed the stream the whole morning, until, after many twistings and turnings, it led them finally into a maze of rocks and gullies in which the mist hung like a curtain, shutting out all view of the landscape.

Sefton realized that the clouds had settled down on the mountain and that there would be small hope of discovering the lair of the lion pack until they lifted. It had been his purpose to show himself prominently upon the veld, for he remembered Kaspa telling him that he was often abroad by day when the lions were sleeping, and Sefton was sure that his old friend would come to him if he knew of his presence, but the mist made this expedient impracticable. A few miles below at the forest level, the sun was now shining, and had Sefton been aware of this he would have descended into the clearer atmosphere, where, at that moment Kaspa was taking farewell of Lucian Marley, and about to make his way back to the lair in the rocks; but Sefton was not to know that the whole mountain was not enveloped in cloud, and therefore he pushed on along the river, hoping to stumble upon some clew to the lion-man's whereabouts. They heard a distant shot away to their left and after a consultation decided to investigate in this direction and if possible, to join up with the others.

Looks Into Some of the Best February Sales Values—Fur Coats, Felt Hats, Men's Wear—and Invites You to an Inaugural Fashion Show.

February's chilling winds, not so kind to the new spring clothes suggestions, are baffled by the sales of fur coats. For this year's late winter and for several winters to come the impenetrable comfort and incomparable value of some fur coats I've found are strongly to be recommended.

Hudson seal coats—guaranteed to be genuine Hudson seal, or dyed muskrat—are offered for just $100 in a dependable store around the corner from F street on Eleventh street. "Such a price for real Hudson seal is unheard of in my generation," a matron with much clothes discrimination was heard to remark as she examined these coats. At the same store some kid caracul coats in black and kaffee color with the new Elizabethan sleeve and collar are just $68. Then at the still more surprising price of $44 coats of American broadtail, caracul, silver muskrat, pony, cony and sealine, with new fashion lines are another of this store's February values.

Knitted suits that cost much more a few weeks ago are today selling for $14.75 in one of Washington's smartest shops. For spring wear and for the last weeks of winter these knitted suits are practical.

All felt hats in stock in one F street ladies' wear house are offered at the interesting price of 79 cents and $1.25. Since felt hats are suitable for wear through the spring their purchase now can be no mistake.

Men's underwear in surprisingly low cost sales in a department store between Seventh and Eighth streets is of quality to please careful buyers. Shirts and shorts are selling four garments for $1. The shorts are of exceptionally good materials, well made and generously cut. Socks for 18 cents a pair are well knit and colors in good dyes. Men's handkerchiefs of soft cambric are 9 cents each or $1 a dozen. This store makes accommodating deliveries on convenient schedules.

In a smart F street hat shop, where it is unusual to find hats selling for less than $5, I found straws, fedoras and swaggers in the spring mode marked $3.75.

New spring dresses in light-colored soft wool-knit fabrics, made in the new fashions with puff sleeves and high necks, are attracting buyers at $5.95.

Looking to the important subject of gowning customers for inaugural festivities, one enterprising F street department store opens its inaugural fashion show Friday with lovely costumes for daytime and evening of inaugural week to be shown on smart living models. The inaugural fashion show opens at 3 o'clock Friday. Let the Meanderer tell you where to go to find this interesting fashion affair.

A New Yorker at Large

By MARK BARRON.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—A tousled-haired, wild-eyed fellow was speaking from a wooden platform at a corner of Sixth avenue.

He was talking against the "bosses" and he had a willing audience, for he was in the midst of that sector where are located New York's employment offices.

His listeners were mostly people out of work, and it seemed a good antidote for their misery to listen to someone denounce the people who might, but did not, give them jobs.

"What we want," shouted the speaker, "is class consciousness. There is too much racial consciousness, but we workers demand that this must cease and we must have class consciousness. We are workers, and we want work. Work is the only thing that will satisfy us."

Wherewith, having finished his speech, he stepped down from his platform and started to walk away. A policeman stopped him.

"Here, buddy," he called, "if you're through with your speech making, then haul away that platform. It's cluttering up the sidewalk."

The radical orator protested. "I don't have to take that away," he said. "Get a couple of these stumblebums here to haul it off."

"Now listen," barked the policeman, as he grabbed the speaker by the collar, "you were just up there yelling that work is what you wanted, so work is what you're going to get. Now get busy and haul that platform out of here."

So the radical got the work he was screaming for, and so ended a little drama of Sixth avenue.

It is noticeable that the reds have been unusually quiet in New York during these winter months. They are largely a noisy assemblage, and last fall it was predicted that they would cause plenty of trouble on Manhattan this winter.

There were rumors that there would be food riots, street battles and other disorders. But there weren't. True there were a few skirmishes between misbehaving reds and the police, but these happen with such regularity now that no one pays any attention to them. The reds work off a lot of steam, and the police get a good workout.

One characteristic about the reds is that they memorize all their arguments and speeches. One of the favorite sports of hecklers around Columbus Circle is to ask a sudden question of an orator, and nine times out of ten it will break him up so badly that he has to go back and begin his speech all over again.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

'TWILL be hard on the color blind this summer! Even on the partially color blind, because summer colors are more subdued than they have been for the last several summers, and more subtle. And, oh, the combinations! Of colors, I mean.

A shrimp red—or pink, if you prefer, finds itself often associated with lemon yellow—and if this reminds you of a shrimp salad and mayonnaise, it just shows you that your color sense is gustatory. Beige, pale rose, and black is another color combination which defies any pawky humor, as is beige, pale rose and brown.

But a rosy-toned gray combined with a softly dull purple is something that is far more fascinating than it sounds. Whereas any one can picture lemon yellow and not too glaring orange, now can't one? Orange, by the way, is the only gay color that is particularly smart this summer and is very often combined with white in summer frocks.

Otherwise, colors in general are much softer, and I surely believe, lovelier. My favorite gray, and beige, and the child of their marriage, called grege, are very much in evidence. But when it comes to assorting just the right shades of nile green and yellow-olive green, well, might this be a move on the part of the Haute Couture against further economy on Miladi's part?

Au Revoir.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

THERE'S one thing this depression business has done. It has made competition keener. And as a result the surviving ones have to be fit in the full sense of the word. She's a capable, efficient individual, our business woman of today. And more! She's courteous, she has a highly tuned sense of values and discrimination of right and wrong. There's precision in her. And—good grooming!

An acquaintance commenting on the high standards of personal loveliness which business women are setting for women in the home, said recently:

"Look around at the young girls and the middle-aged women rushing to the trolleys and subways in the larger cities—the business women, office women, secretaries, stenographers, dentists' or doctors' assistants. Gone is the frumpy, dowdy, drab-looking woman. In her place is a precise, smart, neat, trim person that looks like business; sharp, wide awake, alert, ready to swing an important deal!"

* * * *

And this from a mere man should certainly encourage the business woman reading this. How about it, readers, what do you think?

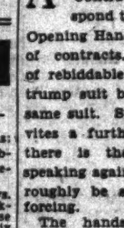
A JUMP REBID.

A PROBLEM that has thwarted Contract players is how to respond the second time when the Opening Hand does not offer a choice of contracts, but discloses a hand of rebiddable strength with a strong trump suit by a Jump Rebid in the same suit. Such a bid, of course, invites a further bid from partner if there is the slightest excuse for speaking again. It is a bid that might roughly be said to be 95 per cent forcing.

The hands below illustrate the principle:

South—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

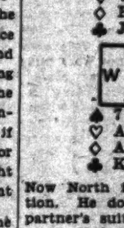


The bidding: (Figure after bid in table refers to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	North
1◇	1♠
3◇	Pass (1)

1—North has absolutely a minimum response, and his hand does not offer even a fit in his partner's suit. Thus he passes to the 95 per cent Forcing Jump Rebid.

However, assume that North's hand, instead of the above, had been:



Now North faces a different situation. He does have a fit with his partner's suit and is practically assured of 6 or 7 tricks in that suit, due to the Jump Rebid which, without the King, no doubt indicates a suit of at least six cards in length. North's King solidifies the suit, and the hand should be an excellent play for three notrump.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

If you are South and your partner has opened the bidding with one spade, what do you respond on the first round of bidding? What should be the final contract and how should it be reached?

North—Dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The answer will be given tomorrow.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

AMAZINGLY attractive is this smart day dress. It is suited for the average full figure as well as debs and debutantes. It has undoubted slimming lines.

Carried out in black crinkly crepe silk, topped by orangy-red crepe with a faint black stripe, it struck an extremely modish note.

Two tones of dark hyachinth blue would be another lovely scheme.

Size 16 requires 3¼ yards 35-inch for skirt, with 1⅛ yards 35-inch for waist. Price of pattern 15 cents.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

BRIGHT'S DISEASE IN THE SOUTH.

THE people who live in the northern part of the American continent have more than their share of scarlet fever, diabetes, arteriosclerosis and goiter. The suicide rate is higher among them. These are the conclusions of C. A. Mills, quoted in this column some months ago. The same student of statistics is of the opinion that, on the other hand, the people of the Southern States have more than their share of acute Bright's disease. He is disposed to think this is an effect of climate and not the result of racial characteristics.

It is not an easy matter to decide whether a given condition is the result of differences in customs and habits or is due to differences in climate, since the latter has so much to do with the former.

The foods eaten by the Southern people differ considerably from those of the people of the North in articles of diet, methods of preparation, quantities eaten, and times of meals. But, in turn, this is largely the result of difference in climate.

Mr. Mills does not suggest a reason for the greater prevalence of acute Bright's disease among the Southern people except as to one factor. He says Southern people have a lower metabolic rate and a lower blood pressure. This may mean that they have less vitality and less resistance. This may be the cause of the difference in prevalence of acute nephritis. He does not discuss differences in diet, in dress, in drinking habits, or in the prevalence of diseases that not infrequently lay the basis for acute Bright's.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE.

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m., from 3:45 to 4 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 7:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 11:30 a. m. to 12:15 p. m. and from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will tend to make you acutely aware of the presence of a guiding power without yourself. You will find yourself consciously striving to think, say and do the right thing. Your conscience will truly be your guide, and it may serve to remind you of errors of the past.

The child born on this February 16 may usually be counted on to do the unexpected. The child will not bring a great deal of happiness into the lives of his parents. He will lead his own life as he sees fit, and will not allow himself to be bound by the plans and hopes for him that his parents have indulged in. A forceful and magnetic personality are attributes of this child.

If February 16 is the date of your birth, you are a person who would probably be happiest away from the complexities of existence in a large city. You prefer the quiet and peace of rural life, or life in a small community, to the hustle, bustle and excitement of city life.

GARDEN TO SIGN SHARKEY-CARNERA DESPITE BAN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE game that was America's national pastime when Powhatan was a papoose will be brought to the Capitol on March 3 as an added feature of the city's inauguration program.

For want of a better name, the game is called Indian ball by the pale faces, but down on the Cherokee Reservation, where the vernacular is used, a couple of "Ughs" are uttered in best describing it, which, in plain Cherokee talk, means that Indian ball is no game for the squaws.

The old, familiar cry of "Play ball!' heretofore has meant only that the first batter take his stance at the plate while the opposition goes into the field, but on March 3, at Central Stadium, when the umpire issues the same order, it will be the signal for one grand and glorious rough house, for that is Indian ball as it can be best described.

Players Carry Bat In Each Hand.

Imagine a large square of fairly level grassy field. Some 1,500 Indians, descript and nondescript, are milling about, chatting and making bets. At each end of the field are ten players lined up abreast. They are the opposing teams. Each player carries in each hand a bat that looks like a miniature tennis racquet with its netted end. They march to the center of the field followed by their respective supporters. There a half-hour ceremony takes place in which the antagonists and their followers wager everything of value that they can lawfully lay their hands upon.

The game starts from the center of the field and then promptly loses all semblance of a game. A little black indian rubber ball, slightly smaller than a golf ball, is put into play and the struggle then ensues to push it, roll it, fling it, rush it or shove it through the goal posts at either end of the field. No holds or punches are barred. Hand-to-hand brawls and fist fights are a dime a dozen. Cracks over the head with the hickory bats are even cheaper in view of the overwhelming supply against the meager demand.

Crave Ferocity, Fight Of Animals.

Long scratches on the bodies of the players are self-inflicted a day or so before the day of the game. They are made with bear claws, wildcat claws, fox claws and the claws of other animals noted for their ferocity, slyness, bravery, strength, &c., and are calculated, according to the Cherokees' way of thinking, to instill the same qualities in the bodies of the athletes.

No rules committee has tampered with the game since Sitting Bull stood up for his rights against Gen. Custer. The only rule of the game limits each team to an equal number of players. After that it's the survival of the fittest.

Indian Spring Club Seeks Revision

Considering Offer of Tom Moore to Take Over Control.

Would Reduce Dues, Build Up Depleted Membership.

THE Indian Spring Club, embracing one of Washington's major golf courses, soon may revert to Tom Moore, who organized the club as part of a real estate development in 1922 and leased it to the members for 25 years, The Post learned yesterday.

Wholesale resignations of members during the past two years have left the club treasury in such a depleted state that the officers of the club decided to ask Moore to revise the terms of the lease.

Mr. Moore has made a counter-proposition, offering to take over the management of the club's affairs.

Membership List Declines.

A reduction in dues is planned by Moore if he regains control of the club, it was said. The membership list has declined to approximately 235 and Mooore's plan is to reduce the annual dues from $125 to $87.50, with the understanding that they will be further reduced to $75 when the club is built up to a membership of 400.

Mr. Moore has already informally submitted a new budget for the club, one item of which calls for an outlay of only $7,500 per year for the upkeep of the course, a figure approximately half of the sum which has heretofore been appropriated for the purpose.

Opposition to Moore's proposition has been engendered by absence of any provision recognizing more than $11,000 spent by the club on improvements which include a central heating plant, an expensive set of kitchen equipment, and an artificial lake built to provide nontaxable water for the greens.

The membership of the club is now split over the terms of the Moore proposal but definite action is expected at the next monthly meeting.

Sir Malcolm Hopes To Make Trial Today

Daytona Beach, Fla., Feb. 15 (U.P.).—Afraid that if he doesn't make a run tomorrow he may have to wait two weeks before he will have another chance to shoot at his world's land speed record of 253.9 miles an hour, Sir Malcolm Campbell personally supervised his mechanics as they toiled on his big racing machine, Bluebird, tonight.

The car was partially torn down yesterday when, after making 240 miles an hour, Campbell ordered several changes, including a lowering of the gear ratio. The mechanics were unable to keep their promise to have the machine ready for a run today.

Campbell's fear that if he does not run tomorrow there will be a fortnight's delay, is based on the action of the tides.

Tomorrow's low tides occur at 6 a. m. and 6 p. m. The next day they advance an hour and so on. So tomorrow is the last day until the 23rd of the month that Campbell will be able to race in the afternoon.

Johnson's Hapless Nats Of 1929 Slumped to 5th; Buddy Myer Bought Back

Misfortune Trailed Club in Big Train's Debut at Helm.

(Herewith is the nineteenth of a series of articles in conjunction with The Post's baseball contest.)

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

WALTER JOHNSON started his four-year term as manager of the Nats in 1929 and his tenure in office certainly stripped the teeth from that age-old saw that "a bad beginning means a good ending." Surely his charges started him off to one of the worst beginnings imaginable. The team never so much as once got a sniff of the rarified air in the top flight. It was bogged around seventh most of the time, worked up to sixth and stayed there between June 8 and September 14, and then advanced another notch and held fifth place until the end. This was the first season out of six that the Nats did not figure in the money.

Johnson can not be blamed for his team's showing, for the Nats had plenty of luck, but it was all bad. Johnson himself was taken seriously ill early in the year and Clyde Milan pinch-hit for him much of the time. Sam West began having tonsil troubles, Red Barnes suffered several leg injuries, Ad Liska, underhanded rookie, who started at a great clip, was thrown out of gear by first one strained ankle and then another, and Ossie Bluege first had a finger break and then was put on the shelf with the bad knee, which later had to be operated upon. Ossie was out about half the season.

Other Handicaps Noted.

Add to these handicaps several minor injuries and illnesses to most of the squad, a terrific batting slump by Goose Goslin, who had led the league the season before; the collapse of the mound staff and the failure of a patched-up infield and outfield, and one easily can picture just what Johnson was up against.

The brightest features of Washington's season were Johnson's discoveries that Buddy Myer had possibilities as a second baseman and that Shortstop Joe Cronin was a diamond in the rough that needed but a little polishing. Myer had been brought back during the off-season in a deal which sent five players to the Red Sox.

It was first planned to use Myer at third, to shift Bluege to short, and to give Jack Hayes the second base assignment, but things did not work out well this way. In the first place, Cronin showed flashes of being a shortstop of great possibilities, while Myer did not impress at third. As the latter was a much better hitter than was Hayes, Johnson decided to give him a shot at second and Bluege returned to his old stand. With the Nats not getting anywhere after the race started, Myer was kept at the keystone sack, even though he had much to learn, especially in pivoting on double plays, and he has developed into quite a nobby second sacker since.

Landis' Ruling Costs Nats Duo.

Even in the early spring, the Nats began to get their knocks. Commissioner Kennesaw Mountain Landis declared two promising youngsters as free agents, Outfielder Melburn Simon and Pitcher Guy Cantrell. This ruling, based on Landis' judgement that the club owners "covered up" in their cases, affected many teams in both leagues and enabled the Nats to grab Catcher Roy Spencer, whom the Pittsburgh Club lost at the same time.

Among other newcomers that season were Pitchers Archie Campbell, Ad Liska, Paul McCullough, Lloyd Brown and Myles Thomas; Outfielders Spencer Harris and Infielder Charley Gooch. Liska, McCullough and Harris cost the Nats $20,000 each. None of this new talent helped to any appreciable extent.

Liska started like he would be a great flinger, among his performances being a one-hit game against the Indians which he lost, due to errors. Brown won eight and lost seven and Thomas won seven and lost eight. Of the hold-overs, Marberry alone did well, winning 19 while losing 12. Jones could do no better than break even in 18 decisions, Braxton won 12 and was beaten 10 times, while the records of the others were not worthy of mention.

The Nats finished fourth in batting, with Sam Rice showing the way with .323. Only Judge and Myer hit in the .300 class, with Goslin dropping way back to .288. West hit .267, while Barnes' name was among the trailers —.200 to be exact.

Nats Fifth in Team Fielding.

In fielding, Johnson's charges finished even with their position in the race, with Judge and Ruel leading in their positions and the rest of the squad well down among the "also rans."

As to the pennant race, the Athletics took the lead in mid-May and held it to the finish, with the Yankees, Indians and Browns also sneaking home ahead of the Nats. In the following world's series, which saw 23 records broken, the A's downed the Cubs in four out of five games.

Only one no-hit, no-run game was pitched during the season. Carl Hubbel, of the Giants, earning this at the expense of the Pirates...Connie Mack was voted the Bok award, given to the man doing the most for the City of Philadelphia each season... it netted him a medal, scroll and, last but not least, a $10,000 check... Art (The Great) Shires took a fling at boxing and Commissioner Landis told him to take his choice of the two professions...he decided to remain in baseball...Hornsby was voted the most valuable player to his club in the National League...the American decided to abandon this feature...Lew Fonseca led the junior circuit in hitting, .369...Frank O'Doul's .398 topped in the National ...Babe Ruth again was home-run king...he hit 46...Chuck Klein showed the way in the senior loop with 43...Among the victims of the "Grim Reaper" were Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees since 1918 ...Ted Sullivan and Mike Scanlon, both of Washington, who were among the founders of the national game... Kelly, Widmyer Enter New York A. C. Games

Georgetown University and Maryland's one-man indoor track teams, Al Kelly and Earl Widmyer, respectively, don their spikes again Saturday night to represent their schools in the 50-yard dash division of the New York A. C. games at Madison Square Garden.

Widmyer, the best sprinter ever to attend Maryland, did exceptionally well in the Millrose games, winning one heat and finishing third in the semifinals, the latter of which was won by Emil Toppino, Olympic speedster. Kelly had less success.

Both youths have been practicing arduously since that meet, stressing their starts for the most part. It is quite possible that they will be pitted against one another, if the luck of the draw so decrees.

Record Entry Seen for Tourney

Entries for The Post's Title Event Open Until Feb. 23.

IN a last minute rush that jammed the sports department of The Post and the front office of the Boys Club, Washington's sandlot basket ball players yesterday slipped under the registration wire in such droves that all records for The Post-A. A. U. basket ball championship, to open March 2 at Tech High gymnasium, promise to be broken.

Although individual registrations closed last night at the stroke of 12, amid a clamor of post entries, this by no means closes down on the list of team entries. Teams, whose members already hold A. A. U. registration cards certifying them as amateurs, may enter up until midnight February 23. Last night's curtain merely meant that any player who is not registered as an amateur today is not eligible to enter the tournament. This precaution has been taken to quash the last-minute formation of all-star teams, and give the established combinations more of a break in the tournament.

Women, Girls Given More Time.

Several days' grace will be allowed girls and women players.

Undisputed district championship titles go to the winners of the seven divisions of the gigantic Post-A. A. U. tournament, namely, the boys' weight divisions of 100, 115, 130, 145 and unlimited and the junior and senior girls. Gold A. A. U. medals will be presented to each member of a winning team.

Don't forget—February 23, next Thursday, is the final day for entry of teams. All teams that enter from now on must be made up of players who have already acquired amateur cards or whose last year's cards have not yet expired.

The tournament will last through the entire month of March, affording more than 100 District teams a chance to play for a definite title, in the outstanding gymnasium of the city with the finest equipment and officiating available.

Public admission fees will be popularly priced at 25 cents.

Maryland May Tax Bay Fishermen $5

Annapolis Bill Pending to Cut Hunting License Down to $2.50.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 15.—A bill requiring anglers in the Chesapeake Bay and lower Potomac River to take out a fishing license at a cost to nonresidents of $5 was introduced in the House of Delegates here today.

The bill provides that any person over 16 years old shall procure a license to fish with a hook and line in tidal waters. There is already a law requiring a license to fish in nontidal waters, but formerly there have been no restrictions on fishing in the bay and river.

The license which anglers must get will cost a nonresident $5, although a Maryland citizen will have to pay only $1. The bill was introduced by Jonathan Sleeman (Republican), Allegheny. Another bill affecting Washington sportsmen in Maryland by lowering the cost of a State-wide, nonresident hunting license from $5 to $2.50, also was introduced today.

WASHINGTON A. Z. A. WINS

Washington's A. Z. A. team returned last night from a successful trip North. They defeated A. Z. A. clubs of Patterson, 30-18, Brooklyn, 29-16, and Chester, 28-24, to win the Far Eastern Conference tournament for the second successive year. Abelman and Freedenberg were the outstanding players of the tournament.

State Considers Abolition Of Boxing as Farley Sees No Reason to Cancel Bout

Legislature Gets Bill to End Sport in New York Following Schaaf's Death; Johnston May Transfer Title Bout to Boston.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Threatened with legislative extinction, boxing busied itself today brawling over a championship bout between Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera, banned yesterday by the New York State Athletic Commission following the death of Ernie Schaaf.

While William Muldoon and Gen. John J. Phelan, the two members of the commission who suddenly revived the "superdreadnaught" class as an excuse for limiting Carnera's opposition, stood fast in their resolve, a break from within was indicated by the opposition of James A. Farley, chairman of the commission.

Farley, head of the Democratic National Committee as well, spared time from political discussions late in the day to discuss representations made in his behalf that he was in favor of a bout between Sharkey and Carnera, scheduled here for June until Schaaf died yesterday, apparently from injuries received last Friday night when he was knocked out in 13 rounds by Carnera.

Farley Sees No Reason To Ban Bout.

"It wouldn't be fair to those two gentlemen to say one way or the other regarding such a match," Farley said, "and I have no intention of suggesting what they should do. I am resigning from the commission the first of the month to take up other duties. It will be their responsibility then, and I know they will dispose of it to the satisfaction of every one, as they have handled every other problem rising in the past."

He said it was his private opinion, however, that there was no reason for preventing Sharkey meeting Carnera just because the Italian outweighed the champion 50 or 60 pounds. Sharkey whipped Carnera decisively in 15 rounds in 1931.

At the same time Jimmy Johnston, head of boxing at the Garden, declared frankly he would continue preparations for the match until definitely ordered otherwise by the commission. He said this one match should be permitted anyway, inasmuch as preparations had been made before Carnera's duel with Schaaf ended with the latter's tragic death.

Johnston May Move Fight to Boston.

Johnston's support by Farley, who is scheduled to leave the commission shortly to become Postmaster General in the Cabinet of President-elect Roosevelt, seemed to be making little headway with Commissioners Muldoon and Phelan today. The bout probably will be staged in Boston, in conjunction with the Boston Garden, if the restriction is not lifted here.

"We decided that matches between men as large as Carnera and others weighing less than 220 pounds or standing under 6 feet 2 inches in height simply were bad for boxing regardless of the fatal outcome of the Schaaf-Carnera match," Gen. Phelan said.

"That rule has been on our books for some time, but it has been waived occasionally, and almost forgotten. That will not happen again."

While Sharkey, brushing aside the commission's threat, hurried through New York en route to Boston from Miami, State Senator Harry G. Schackno, Bronx Democrat, introduced a resolution at Albany to abolish the boxing commission and was promised enough votes by the Republican opposition to assure passage in the upper house.

Assemblyman Saul Street, New York Democrat, introduced a resolution for the investigation of boxing and wrestling, and Senator George Blumberg, of Brooklyn, asked for a law that would bar bouts above the light heavyweight class where a difference of 40 pounds or more existed, and on lower classes where the difference was 18 pounds or more.

Gov. Lehman's request for an investigation into Schaaf's death had not been received at the commission.

Sharkey and Buckley Head Notables at Schaaf's Bier

By BILL KING.

WRENTHAM, Mass., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—A host of friends of the late Ernie Schaaf visited here tonight the little rural home, purchased out of his first ring earnings, where lay the body of the fighter whose death followed upon a bout with Primo Carnera in New York last week.

Jack Sharkey, the heavyweight champion, and Johnny Buckley, his saddened managers, were among the first arrivals. Later came other notables of the dead youth's profession, such as William F. Carey, head of the New York Madison Square Garden; Jimmy Johnston, its matchmaker; Gen. John J. Phelan, of the New York Boxing Commission and all of the boxing dignitaries in New England circles, where Schaaf had spent most of his brilliant career.

Sharkey Silent Upon Arrival.

Sharkey's face was lined and he was silent when he arrived in Boston this afternoon. He had made a speedy trip from Miami, where he had gone under the impression that Schaaf's injuries were not serious. The usually voluble Buckley, who idolized the dead youth, was still half dazed with sorrow.

Neither was interested in the latest developments of the tragedy, the unofficial inquiry made to the Massachusetts Boxing Commission on the stand it would take if the Sharkey-Carnera heavyweight bout was moved to Boston and the legislative moves for an investigation of boxing in New York.

Buckley was much more concerned with the fact that Schaaf's family has become a bit reconciled to his death after being assured by great brain surgeons that their son and brother would have been crippled for life if he came out of the coma which enveloped him during almost all of the time that elapsed from his collapse in the Madison Square Garden ring Friday night until he died early yesterday morning at the Polyclinic Hospital following a three-hour emergency operation.

"Apoplexy" on Death Certificate.

Several causes of Schaaf's death have been pronounced by medical experts, but a new one was added to the list today when the official certificate, signed by Dr. John T. Walsh, of New York, and William Burrill, New York undertaker, and citing "apoplexy," was filed with Somerville health authorities. Schaaf's body was turned over to a mortician in that city last night after its arrival from New York.

The arrangements for the funeral, which will be held at 10 a. m., on Friday in St. Mary's Church in nearby Sheldonville, where Ernie sang in the choir, are still incomplete. But it was announced that a solemn high funeral mass would be celebrated by the Rev. Walter Mitchell, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. Remi B. Schuver, of St. John's Preparatory School in Danvers, where Schaaf's younger brother is a classmate of Buckley's oldest son. Burial will be in a Foxboro cemetery, which is also close by the saddened household.

Final plans will not be made before the arrival of Lucille Schaaf, sister of Ernie, who left Miami by plane to attend the funeral.

Maryland U. Salary Probe Avoids Byrd's Triple Wage

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 15.—Salaries paid at the University of Maryland were closely questioned here today as H. C. (Curly) Byrd and President Raymond A. Pearson of the University appeared before the Senate Finance Committee for a hearing on the school's request for an appropriation of $1,143,405.

Although the hearing was held behind closed doors, it was learned that Mr. Byrd was not questioned about the three salaries he is said to receive from the school. The hearing was variously described as "orderly" and "amicable." The policy of the school in dividing several salaries into different items placed in various parts of the budget was criticised, however.

No decision on the university budget has been made, committee members explaining that they wanted to have all their information in hand before any cuts were made.

Dr. Pearson and Mr. Byrd had appeared before the committee last week, but were recalled when a Baltimore newspaper pointed out that Mr. Byrd received three salaries from the university. These sums, alleged to total $11,500 per year, are drawn as vice president of the school, director of physical education and football coach. The paper also pointed out that he received additional sums from his banking interests, his real estate interests and articles he writes for a Washington paper.

Central Defeats G. U. Preps, 33-21

Georgetown Prep was unable to hold the 14-13 first-half lead it gained over Central sharpshooters yesterday afternoon and crumpled before the deadly fire of the city high school champions in the third quarter to lose, 33 to 21. It was Central's thirtieth victory, with only a defeat at the hands of Tech to mar its record.

CAPACITY, AT $9.30, WINS MIAMI SPRINT FEATURE HANDILY

Gift of Roses Beaten 2 Lengths

Cox Sprinter, Gilbert Up, Draws Away in Stretch.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 15 (A. P.).—Capacity, the consistent sprinter from the stable of Mrs. H. D. Cox, again asserted his superiority over a smart band of seasoned campaigners when he garnered the winner's share of the Miami Springs Purse, 6-furlong feature of the card here today.

As usual, Johnny Gilbert had the leg up, and the Kansan gave his mount a strong ride to score by two lengths. Gift of Roses was a scant half length before Morgil for the place. The time was 1:12 flat and the winner returned $9.30.

Winner Easily Best In Race.

The second and third horses suffered some interference in the early running, but the winner seemed best regardless. Capacity drew away from Morgil, leaving the backstretch and was not seriously menaced thereafter. Gift of Roses came along on the outside of Morgil in a spirited battle for place honors through the stretch, which found four horses closely aligned on the finish line.

Conacher was a real good thing in the curtain raiser, a mile test, for elderly platers. The Montalvo stud representative breezed home by eight lengths to return $4.90. Mae Sweep, handicapped by a slow start, saved the place by a length from Dancing Boy. The leaders were well bunched to the head of first turn, where Coucci on Conacher, came out of the group to assume a commanding lead.

AT THE POST

with Bill Bennings

DEAR AL: MIAMI, FEBRUARY 15.

I'm thankful the track gave me eight chances to pick a winner today instead of the usual seven. Otherwise I would have suffered a shutout, something that has come the Bennings way only once this meeting. I am deeply indebted to J. J. McCauley's Chaumont and Jockey T. Malley for putting me over. I could say a lot concerning a number of horses, owners and jockeys interested in today's card. However, I'll let that drop to concentrate on tomorrow. It is with a feeling of confidence that I recommend these. BILL.

FIRST RACE—Gather closer fellows. I'm going to let you in on something above the ordinary. I mean ARAB. This one has been running winning races in the morning here for some time and, after getting some of the rough edges off in actual competition the other day, is ready to strut for the principal dough. I expect my old friend DAILY NEWS to cause trouble. MAJOR LANPHIER for the rest.

SECOND RACE—WISE DAUGHTER'S last was so impressive that I can't look further for the winner of this hop, skip and jump. JESTING QUEEN for the place ahead of DOMINO PLAYER. The three are a close fit.

THIRD RACE—CHU CHU will steam home in this or I have been kidded. This one has been working like greased lightning, gets a neat break in the weights and should make no mistake. AEGIS has his speed and is dangerous. I have heard a faint rumbling about HONEY LOCUST being due for a wake-up.

FOURTH RACE—LIVE ONE is an underestimated animal here and might live up to his name among these. Packs a mean stretch kick. SOLACE and WE DUN IT to account for the other money positions.

FIFTH RACE—Can't discard STEALING AWAY. This one is as good as those last two which were good enough to take care of this field. BANNACH LATH and SUN GROS to battle it out for the place.

SIXTH RACE—MERIDIAN QUEEN has the necessary courage to click these off in the stretch, I do believe. FRIGATE BIRD and SEA FOX are at tops and will be the ones the mare will have to defeat.

SEVENTH RACE—POLAR BRUSH, CRAPSHOOTER and RALLY ROUND is the order in which I prefer them in the final. The first named is better than generally rated in these parts.

JONES MEETS GROBMIER TONIGHT

Popular Wrestlers in Feature; Stecher Bout Prize.

THE venerable chames of Fred Grobmier and Paul Jones will creak tonight, but will not creak in vain, for upon the outcome of tonight's battle of the two long-legged scissors experts, depends a match with Joe Stecher for the world's championship of the scissors industry.

Tonight's bout remains a toss-up, one of these rare matches which cannot be figured out by a child of more than six. The bout in which the winner will meet Stecher is something else. Stecher loses only to Londos in this tributary to the rassling river.

A Grobmier-Jones match actually takes on the significance of a natural. Jones was the first to exhibit the figure four scissors in Washington, and when he passed on to more fruitful pastures the scissors wants on the populace were slaked by Grobmier.

Both are about equally popular, which further confuses the boys who like to pick the card a day or so ahead of time.

Tonight's bouts, which start at 8:30 o'clock at the Auditorium, include another bout where the characteristics of the men meeting are somewhat the same. In the semiwindup, Jim McMillan, president of the villians club of Washington, meets Ernie Dusek, grimacing vice president of the same nefarious concern. Then there are two strong men, Milo Steinborn and Frank Buresh, who meet each other in a 30-minute bout.

Rudy Dusek will meet Joe Kleincker, while Abe Coleman, the thick-set gentleman whose favorite hold is a kick in the chin, meets handsome Jacques Humberto.

Women fans, as usual, will be admitted free with paying escorts.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

THE FEDERAL RADIO COMMISSION, having heard the WMAL case yesterday, will turn its attention today to the other major local problem confronting it—the complaint of the Navy Department that Station WJSV is causing interference with the work of the Naval Research Laboratory.

The Navy will ask that the 10,000-watt transmitter, recently located on the Mount Vernon Highway, half way between Washington and Alexandria, Va., be removed, the reason being that the station interferes to such an extent that important secret radio experiments having to do with national defense have been halted.

The commission, which gave WJSV permission to locate its transmitter directly across the river from the naval experimental station, must now make a decision in the matter. The commission will contend that the Navy Department is as much to blame as the commission engineers, since no complaint was registered by the Navy after notice had been given. The Navy will claim it was not properly notified.

If the commission decides WJSV may remain where it is, the Navy Department will appeal to the courts, and if WJSV is obliged to move, the Columbia Broadcasting System may take it to court, so it looks as if long-drawn-out litigation will result either way. It is probable that WJSV, if required to junk its transmitter, will ask damages of between $75,000 and $100,000, the amount it claims to have invested in the new WJSV.

THE first of a series of radio recitals presenting Josef Lhevinne, Russian concert pianist, will be heard over the WJZ-WBAL network at 11:30 o'clock tonight. The program will be devoted to two works of Tschaikowsky, and Lhevinne, accompanied by a 50-piece concert orchestra under the baton of Frank Black, will play the first movement of the Concerto No. 1 in B Flat Minor.

Rose McClendon, star of the "John Henry" dramatic presentations, reports that "John Henry" expressions are spreading. Rose was taking a train in the Grand Central Station recently when a redcap staggered along bearing a huge load of valises. Another porter looked at him in amazement and yelled, "You must think you're John-Henry, big boy. Where you goin'?"

The redcap with the bags was apparently familiar with the program, for he shouted back, "I'm just gettin' on down de line, brother."

W. H. Woodin's suite, "The Covered Wagon Days," will be featured during the U. S. Navy Band program under the direction of Lieut. Charles Benter over WRC at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon. Mr. Woodin's name is prominent among those mentioned for Secretary of Commerce in the new administration.

Lieut. Benter has prepared a special symphonic concert hour. Other selections on the program will be "Souvenir de Vienna," by Drumm; "Fantasy Espagnole," by Hosher, and Von Weber's "Euryanthe."

Jane Cowl, actress, and Rollo Peters, leading man of the stage, will present the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" as their contribution to Rudy Vallee's variety bill over WRC at 9 tonight.

THE highly syncopated "Pompanola," from "Three Cheers," will be harmonized by the Show Boat Four as the introductory number on Capt. Henry's Show Boat at 9 o'clock tonight. Lanny Ross has selected "I've Told Every Little Star" and "Strange Interlude" as his solos. A medley of selections from Victor Herbert's "Eileen" will feature Wilbur Evans, Lanny Ross and Muriel Wilson. Don Voorhees will direct the band.

At last Kate Smith has decided to abandon "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain," her theme song for the past two years. She is adopting "Moon Song," a melody from her motion picture, "Hello, Everybody," now playing at the Metropolitan Theater, as her new air signature.

The sponsors of the Lucky Strike Hour, according to a representative of the broadcasting company, reimburse the management of "Pardon My English," featuring Jack Pearl, for each Thursday night's box-office receipts so that the comedian's services may be free for his broadcast. The receipts of the extra matinee are credited to the radio sponsors.

Howard Barlow and his symphony orchestra will present the following program over WJSV at 11 o'clock tonight: Menuet des Follets (Berlioz); Chanson d'Amour (Suk); Aubade (Lalo); Jupiter Symphony (Mozart), third movement, and finale.

The District of Columbia Federation of Music Clubs period over WRC at 6:45 o'clock will be devoted to Stephen Foster compositions by the Madrigal Singers, directed by Mrs. J. M. Sylvester. This is the third in a series of programs devoted to American music.

A MUSICAL instrument which looks like a piano but plays like an organ, a flute, a saxophone, a guitar, a harp, a bassoon, an oboe—or as a variety of other instruments including the piano—was introduced yesterday in three concerts before New York University student groups.

In the opinion of Benjamin Franklin Miessner, the inventor, the instrument which, for lack of a better name, is at present being called an electronic piano, may revolutionize not only the piano, radio and general musical instrument industries but the technique of musical composition as well.

It is possible with this instrument, for example, to swing at will from piano to flute, to guitar, to organ, to saxophone or to almost any instrument found in an orchestra. The inventor claims it is possible with the electronic piano for one person to approximate extensive orchestral effect by varying as he plays the adjustment of half a dozen radio-like dials.

This electronic piano was developed by Mr. Miessner, an acoustical physicist, at his laboratory in Millburn, N. J., with the assistance of Charles T. Jacobs, both working on it steadily since early in 1930.

EARLY activities of radio entertainers: Harry Reser, big chief of the Clicquot Club Eskimos, earned his first dollar as pianist in a Tennessee summer resort . . . Ten years ago Clyde Doerr, master saxophonist, was playing first violin with the San Francisco Symphony . . . At the age of seven, Rosario Boudon, conductor, was playing the 'cello with a Belgian symphony orchestra.

Bob White

The Old Philosopher

SAYS:

Question—Who is the "boss" of the house?

Answer—The man. It was expected I should say this, being a man. I should say the same if I were a woman. The head of a well-regulated house should be the man. It was intended to be so, and every home of promise, and of good American habits is governed by the father.

It is the man who should dominate the home. I do not mean domineer. There is a wide difference.

A woman marries a man to be taken into his house, and to make for him a home. It was his invitation, he is host, and to him belongs the honor of master of ceremonies.

Reverse this, and the whole fabric of civilization is shaken and torn. Put the woman as head of the house and our whole social outlook must be changed.

The woman has her own especial sphere. She is wife and mother—two high honors, which are not eclipsed by any position man may hold.

Of course there should be no "boss." The word is not fitting to the question. No home should be "bossed" by either husband or wife, father or mother. The ideals upon which home is founded and sustained are those of cooperation, of coordinated thought toward the creation of a veritable heaven here on earth.

If this thought can be held by our marrying couples, little question will be raised as to who is who and what is what in the realm of home.

Bob White, the old philosopher, will answer an outstanding question each week day on this page. He is heard twice daily over WMAL, at 8 a. m. and 4:30 p. m.

Chevy Chase Glee Club To Give Inaugural Skit

More than 40 members of the Chevy Chase Glee Club will participate in the presentation of "The Inaugural Bawl," a satricial political skit, 8:30 p. m. February 24, 25, at the Wardman Park Theater for the benefit of the District Unemployment Fund.

The skit will be directed by Isabelle S. Farrington and is the annual edition of the "Chevy Chase Frantics." Its subtitle is "Mourning Becomes Election."

JOBLESS TAKE OVER SEATTLE'S CITY HALL

2,000 Idle Turn Building Into Billet and Sing Radical Songs.

Seattle, Feb. 15 (A.P.).—More than 2,000 unemployed obstinately organized for an indefinite stay in the city hall today, saying they would not leave until their relief demands were granted.

A committee prepared to go to Olympia where the State Legislature is in session, to protest abolition of the King County dole system and present requests for jobs, groceries, free light, water and gasoline.

It was as queer a gathering of the discontented as the Pacific Northwest has ever seen. They jammed the county commissioners auditorium until they could barely breathe, then gasped out speeches.

They sang, played pinochle, swapped stories, "bummed" cigarettes and handed out sandwiches to women and children who had slept in the marble corridors all night.

Some tried to sing the "Internationale," "Solidarity," and other Communist songs, but they didn't know the words. Most of those who wanted action were detailed as unemployed police and up and down the halls moved the ragged men who cried: "Keep moving—don't block the corridors—don't bother anybody or the cops will be after us—keep orderly."

And they did stay orderly.

Police eyed the crowd warily from a distance, but Mayor John F. Dore had "called them off" and several officers said: "They aren't bothering anybody—there's no disturbance."

Farmers Planning March to Lincoln

Nebraska Legislators to Reserve Gallery Space for Aid Seekers.

Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 15 (A.P.).—Hundreds of Nebraska farmers gathered at the State Fair Grounds here today to plan their march on the $10,000,000 State house tomorrow, to demand tax and debt relief from legislators.

A. O. Rosenberg, of Newman Grove, march leader, said 500 delegates had registered at the Nebraska Farm Relief Conference and predicted 20,000 more would be here for the march at 1 p. m. tomorrow.

Meanwhile, legislators made arrangements to welcome the farmers who came in automobiles, by rail and in motor trucks. Speaker George O'Malley announced seats in the House galleries which hold about 1,000 persons would be reserved for the farmers. Legislators discussed a proposal to hold a joint session, to hear the farmers' program for relief.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

For further proof address the author, inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

LIVING, growing "hair" in the form of weeds, fern and other vegetation, adorns the top of the giant stone Buddha of the Min River at Kisting, China. The green hair sometimes spreads to other parts of the face, and crops out here and there as an unconventional growth of beard.

The statue, which stands about 150 feet high, was carved with curly hair in stone. But the spaces between the curls filled with dirt and became the foundation for the growth of vegetation.

The face of the statue is a flesh color pink—the effect of whitewash over the red sandstone from which it was carved.

Once about every 10 years some devout worshiper cleans and repaints the statue, leaving it bald except for the stony curls. Then the curls fill with dirt and the process begins all over.

The peculiar ring markings on the tree in the Hetch Hetchy Valley, California, were brought about by sapsucker birds. The birds, visiting the tree year after year to drill small holes through the bark, caused wounds which, when healed, stood out like so much scar tissue.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

OKA, RUDYARD!

TAKE me some place, east of Suez,
Where there is no budget mess—
Where there aren't any pay cuts
And no lectures on distress;
Take me where there are no bread-lines—
Where they need no R. F. C.—
Where there are no reparations
And the folks are fancy free.

Take me, if you can, and quickly
Where no tax plans fill the air—
Where the ace is still the high card
And a pair is still a pair;
Where there are no charts explaining
How the values all have slumped,
And there aren't any war debts—
And no Russian goods are dumped.

TAKE me east or take me west-ward
Where the cities aren't broke—
Where there's dough to meet the pay rolls
And no bulletins from Doak;
Where there are no daily huddles
By commissions vacant-eyed
And the railroads make some money
And the shippers haven't died.

Take me west or take me southward,
The direction matters not—
All I seek is just a region
Where all pessimists are shot—
Where there isn't any red ink
And it isn't even missed—
Where there aren't any Insulls
And no Kreugers to be hissed.

TAKE me hither, take me thither,
Where there is no tariff war
And there are no charts that picture
All the slumps we've had before;
Where the stocks are fairly steady
And the rallies sometimes last—
Where the chiefs still smoke Coronas
And no dividends are passed!

Take me where there's optimism,
Some place where the heads are high—
Where nobody comes and begs you
To sit down and have a cry;
If there's such a spot, oh, brother,
Your attention I invite,
And the minute that you find it
You can wire, phone or write!

STILL THEY COME!

DEAR H. I.—Just a few similies for 1933:

As unused as a month-old rowing machine.

As untidy as a medicine cabinet.

As sure as the fact that Wilstach's list of similies will appear at the end of each year.

As confused as technocracy.

As wrong as a financial service.

As flexible as a politician's conscience. R. J. BOBBIN.

WORTH THE MONEY.

When Congress refused to cut its salaries it was simply registering its conviction that good comedians were worth money.

Mr. Roosevelt has lost his speech of acceptance. But Mr. Hoover had no such luck.

IN TRAINING FOR HUEY.

One of the purposes of Mr. Roosevelt's tropical cruise was to get some first-hand experience in handling kingfish.

R. K. L. suggests having Europe test out the two systems by letting Hitler run one half and Insull the other.

It is now proposed to sell beer in "dog wagon." One hamburger and a side of suds!

Milton Guy Held On Liquor Charge

Man Who Beat Electric Chair Demands Jury in Rum Case.

After spending several months in a death cell at the District Jail only to walk out a free man when the District Court of Appeals held that his guilt had not been proved in connection with the slaying of Lamar Watson York, prohibition agent, Milton Guy, colored, again was in the toils of the law yesterday when arraigned in Police Court on a charge of possession of liquor.

He pleaded not guilty and demanded a jury trial on the liquor charge.

Guy was convicted of killing York. Appealing he obtained a reversal and was freed after spending several months in a death cell. John Borum and John Logan were sent to the electric chair for killing York, who was found slain in Brooks court on April 12, 1930.

Jury Clears Motorist In Suit for $25,000

A District Supreme Court jury yesterday returned a verdict absolving Manuel A. Cambouri, 1620 Fuller street northwest, of liability in an automobile accident that had resulted in a suit for $25,000 damages against him.

Cambouri was driving a car that injured Mary K. Werner and she instituted suit against him and Lawrence Zeitz. Attorneys Austin Canfield, Charles S. Baker and Benjamin L. Tepper represented the codefendants.

2 Women Are Indicted As Drug Law Violators

Two indictments charging violations of the Harrison narcotic act were returned yesterday by the District grand jury.

In one indictment Lillian Maddock and Hannah Edwards were named, while in the other only Mrs. Maddock was accused. Miss Edwards was arrested at the Union Station December 17 when she alighted from a train. Shortly after that Mrs. Maddock was arrested, and two weeks ago she was rearrested on a second charge. Both women are at liberty on bond.

"Be Careful."

RECOVERED VICTIM IDENTIFIES PAIR IN PAY ROLL HOMICIDE

Man Who Was Shot Down by Capital Bandits Star Witness at Trial.

The lives of four men, accused of the murder of Einer H. Ecklund during an attempted robbery near the House Office Building January 20, were asked for the Government by Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins as the men went on trial yesterday.

Standing defiantly in the witness box, Harry Stumm, who was wounded in the holdup attempt, leveled an accusatory finger at Claude Myers and Fewel Workman, as the men who opened fire on him and Ecklund when they refused to yield the $2,000 pay roll.

"That's the man that shot me," he said firmly, as he pointed at Myers.

"That's the man that shot Ecklund," he testified as he leveled his finger toward Workman. Neither showed any reaction to the accusation.

Watching intently from the first row of seats in the courtroom was the mother of Albert E. Cash, the man who is accused of conceiving and plotting the holdup. By her side was Mrs. Clyde Templeton, sister of Cash, and the wife of one of the men accused as accessory after the fact, who will be tried later.

On the other side was the spiritual adviser of Mrs. Cash, the Rev. Henry J. Smith, and another of the Cash boys, Thomas. The father of Cash was not present to see the murder trial of his son. He is an invalid.

Stumm Relates Story.

The witness, Stumm, was somewhat unsteady. By his side was a Providence Hospital nurse. She was there to aid him in the event he was unable to go through with his testimony. He was brought to court from the hospital. In his stomach is a bullet which, he says, was fired by Myers.

In a resolute voice, Stumm told of going to the District National Bank with Ecklund to get the pay roll. They went to Ecklund's room at 309 New Jersey avenue southeast to separate the money, he said.

They had walked only a few feet from the house on their way to the new House Office Building, when two colored men, who were identified by Stumm as Myers and Workman, approached them with guns in their hands.

"'Put 'em up,' they said," Stumm related.

"Myers was smiling. I smiled back. I thought I could bluff through it, I said: 'You can't get away with this. Are you kidding? You can't get away with this in daylight.'

"One of the men said to Ecklund: 'How about that payroll?' He said: 'Nothing doing.' Then they let go. Bang! bang! the guns went. Ecklund started falling towards Workman. Workman said: 'Give me a hand with this bloke, Myers.' Then there was another shot. I ran toward some automobiles. I saw them running down the street."

Defense Indicated.

After the shooting, Stumm said, he ran to the corner and stopped a man and said: "I'm shot; take me to a hospital." He said he knew Oscar Cash, the brother of Albert Cash, was a guard for Ecklund in previous trips to the bank on pay day.

The week prior to the holdup, Stumm said, as he and Ecklund were carrying the pay to the building Myers approached him for a cigarette. Nearby at the time, he said, were some policemen.

William W. McQueeney, of Takoma Park, Md., who placed Stumm in a taxicab after the shooting, identified Myers as one of the two colored men who fled from the holdup scene. He failed to identify Workman.

Schoolboy Witness.

Everett Lee Blackwell, one of the two white defendants, was identified by Donald V. Dufrane, an 11-year-old schoolboy, of 6 D street southeast, as the man who signaled to a taxicab, allegedly driven by Albert Cash, in which the men made their escape.

Dressed in a leather short coat with wool collar, the schoolboy, grinning widely, moved through the courtroom and placed his hand on florid-faced Blackwell, who was dressed in a blue serge suit. His black hair was sleeked in a part.

The youngster, after testifying that he had identified Cash as the driver of the taxicab, could not select him after he had viewed all the men in the courtroom although Cash was almost at his side during one of his scannings.

At this point James A. O'Shea, attorney for Cash, interposed an objection to the admission of any testimony against Cash on the grounds that he should not be tried as a principal. His objection was overruled by Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

Government's Case.

A woman in the front row audibly said to Donald as he was searching for Cash: "Now take your time," which brought vigorous objections from Mr. O'Shea.

In his opening address to the jury, Mr. Collins said the Government would prove that Cash and Blackwell were familiar with the habits of paying the men and that "they planned and accomplished the robbery." They brought into the case, Myers and Workman. Cash had a taxicab and waited near New Jersey avenue, close by the robbery scene and Blackwell had under observation both the colored defendant and Cash. When the robbery occurred Cash came out of New Jersey avenue and took the others away.

"We will show that Cash and Blackwell purchased ammunition for the guns. We will show that Cash later reported his cab had been held up by two colored men and suggested a robbery had been committed by them."

New Record for Speed.

The start of the trial yesterday approached something of a record in speedy prosecution. Less than 25 days had elapsed from the time of the crime to the start of the trial. In that time the alleged murderers were arrested, appeared before a coroner's jury, were indicted by the grand jury and trial was begun.

The other defending attorneys in the case are F. Joseph Donohue and James Archer, for Blackwell; Al Philip Kane and Maurice McInerney, for Myers, and Hyman Goldstein, who is associated with Mr. O'Shea in the defense of Cash.

"EMERGENCY" SIGNS CATCH NINE MOTORISTS

Owners of the row of cars designated by the arrows on the south curb of the triangle fronting the Municipal Building yesterday braved the "Emergency—No Parking" signs, probably because they couldn't see any emergency. All got tickets. Inset: One of the signs.

SENATE COMMITTEE APPROVES D. C. BILLS

Gas Merger Among Measures Passed by House to Be Indorsed.

The Senate District Committee yesterday ordered favorable reports on four of the local measures passed early this week by the House, including the gas company merger resolution and the Hartley amateur boxing bill.

The quarterly tax payments measure, permitting District home owners to pay their levies in quarterly installments, also was approved, when Senator Austin (Republican), Vermont, withdrew objections on constitutional grounds.

The resolution to merge the Washington Gas Light Co. and the Georgetown Gas Light Co. was reported without the "going concern" amendment, even though the amendment was pressed yesterday by People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Howell Is Absent.

The amendment, originally sponsored by Senator Howell (Republican), Nebraska, would preclude the companies from asking that "going concern" be included in valuation of their property. Officials of the companies have said they will not accept the right to merge with the Howell proviso. Senator Howell is in Louisiana on a Senate election probe. It is improbable the Senate will act in his absence.

Chairman Mason M. Patrick, of the Public Utilities Commission, and William A. Roberts, counsel, yesterday favored approval of the resolution without the amendment.

Prize Fights Banned.

The Hartley bill continues the prohibition against local professional prize fights, but sets up a commission to regulate amateur boxing in the District. The quarterly tax payments plan, endorsed by the Home Owners Protective Enterprise as a relief measure, with the other two bills, passed the House Monday. Another measure passed by the House, and approved by the committee yesterday, will permit the sale of District property on Brothers place southeast.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, chairman of the committee, announced that yesterday's action clears the committee slate for this year, with the exception of its rent investigating subcommittee's report.

Snow Footprints Trap Alleged Purse-Snatcher

It was Howard Dawson's misfortune that it was snowing last Friday, police intimated in Police Court yesterday when he was held for the grand jury under $3,000 bond on a charge of having snatched a purse.

The purse, police said, belonged to Blanche Healey. After it had been snatched, the footprints of the man who took it were noted and when Dawson, who is colored, was arrested, police charged his feet matched the footprints.

McMillan Bill Hearing Today.

A subcommittee of the House District Committee will hold hearings this morning on the revised McMillan bill, authorizing the District to take over Washington-Hoover Field as a municipal airport.

1,000 Aces

Pinochle Player Describes Thrill of Drawing Rare Hand.

There was an element of suspense in the gaining of a "thousand aces" by Mrs. E. F. Kunkel, of 3807 Military road, Tuesday night. Only pinochle players need read further.

She was playing a two-handed game with her husband and on the deal lacked but two of the eight needed to score 1,000 points. One of these was turned for trump and she captured it with the nine spot of suit.

She said her heart palpitated when she drew from the deck in the course of the playing. On the fifth draw the eighth ace, that of diamonds, was hers. A thousand aces are rare and are said to happen only once in the life of a pinochle player.

WATCHMAN MURDER TRIAL OF PAIR OPENS

Two Women Are on Jury; Both Suspects Accuse Each Other.

Statements made by George M. Pitmond and Joe Goodman, both colored, on charges of slaying William Simms, colored night watchman at the feed store of Dickey Brothers January 22, will be placed before a jury in the court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat today.

The trial opened yesterday with 10 men and 2 women on the jury. It took less than an hour to pick the 12 jurors, E. Russell Kelly and Harry T. Whelan, defense attorneys, exercising but few of their challenges.

Pitmond and Goodman are under indictment for first degree murder. They are accused of having got Simms to admit them to the Dickey Brothers store on the pretext of warming themselves. Police say the men leaped upon the watchman and beat him to death.

The next morning Pitmond was arrested by Baltimore & Ohio special police. Goodman was arrested in Virginia and was returned here last week. Both are said to have accused the other of striking the blows that killed Simms. Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica and Irvin Goldstein are prosecuting.

Suspect Admits Guilt After Jug Is Exposed

James T. Snowden, colored, pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of possession of liquor. Two policemen said they saw a jug roll out from under him after he had slipped on the ice. He was given a fine of $250 or 60 days in jail.

Soldier Accused by Hacker.

On a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon, George S. Suggs, a soldier stationed at Bolling Field, yesterday was held for the action of the grand jury on a bond of $5,000 when he was arraigned in Police Court. Edward Thomas, colored cab driver, said Suggs pointed a revolver at him.

'NO PARKING' SIGNS CALL FOR TICKETS

Puzzled Policeman Asks Not the Reason, but Just Uses Pencil.

A First Precinct policeman scratched his head in puzzlement yesterday as he gazed at a long line of cars parked on the south side of the grassy triangle that fronts the Municipal Building.

Perched along at intervals on the sidewalk were signs. They read:

"Emergency—No Parking at Any Time." That was all.

What the emergency was the policeman didn't know. But there were the signs. And there were the cars. So out came that bane of the motorist's existence—the traffic ticket book.

Nine times the brawny forearm of the policeman sped across nine separate tickets, and when he had finished nine motorists had been ordered to post collateral or else——.

Inquiry at the Traffic Bureau elicited the reply from Inspector B. A. Lamb, in charge, that he didn't know what the signs were for. "Ask Mr. Van Duzer," he said.

Mr. William A. Van Duzer, who is traffic director here, was asked.

"I don't know," he said, explaining that the many duties of his office prevented him from knowing about every sign that is placed by his bureau. But he would find out, he said.

Later Mr. Van Duzer learned that the contractor who is to build the inaugural reviewing grandstand on the triangle had asked for the signs. Just why, it could not be determined. There are no indications of beginning work on this particular stand as yet.

McKinley P.-T. A. Asks More Funds

Wants Congress to Restore Full Amount for Repair of Buildings.

A move to have the full estimate made by the Board of Education for the upkeep and repair of District schools written into the school budget was made by the McKinley Parent-Teacher Association last night.

Congress recently reduced this appropriation from $400,000 to $330,000. The association in a formal motion delegated the legislative committee of the group to cooperate with other associations in securing the full amount asked for by the board.

The motion was by Edward R. Williams, president of the association, who explained that it would be impossible to proceed with needed repairs of schools if the appropriation remained at the figure set by Congress.

Jury Refuses to Indict Youth in Defying Police

Richard M. Sudduth was acquitted of a charge of attempting to shoot a policeman yesterday when the District grand jury refused to indict him.

Sudduth is the youth who allegedly barricaded himself in his home when Policeman J. E. O'Neal attempted to arrest him. After being shot in the neck, Sudduth was arrested and charged with having "snapped" a pistol in the face of the policeman.

District Bar Members Convicted as Embezzler

Mortimer Harris, colored member of the District bar, was convicted yesterday of embezzling $236 from Charles H. Braxton, 1129 Girard street northwest. He will be sentenced next week.

The charge against Harris is that on four occasions, he took sums of money from Braxton to refinance his home. These sums were alleged by Assistant United States Attorney John J. Sirica to have been embezzled, and a jury in the court of Chief Justice A. A. Wheat found him guilty on all four counts of the indictment.

Drastic Tax Reduction Asked by Chevy Chase

Acting on a resolution proposed by Edward S. Hege, the Chevy Chase Citizens Association last night decided to appeal to the District Appropriations Committee for a drastic reduction of local taxes.

It was suggested that the District surplus in the Treasury be reduced to relieve taxpayers of the unnecessary burden now imposed.

Bad Check Suspect Indicted.

Two indictments, charging James W. Martin with passing worthless checks at downtown hotels, were returned in the District Supreme Court yesterday. Martin is said to have represented himself as James D. Blair, vice president of the Bethlehem Steel & Iron Co., in negotiating the alleged checks.

CUBAN WHO HEARD MAINE BLAST TALKS AT FORT MYER, VA.

Dr. Baron Relates First-Hand Story of Havana Tragedy Which Started War.

The story of a 14-year-old youth who was startled from his lessons 35 years ago by the blast that sunk the Maine in Havana Harbor was unfolded yesterday before a large gathering who gathered in the Fort Myer riding hall to honor those who lost their lives in the explosion.

The speaker was Dr. Jose T. Baron, charge d'Affaires of the Cuban Embassy and the balance of the audience was composed of the national organization of United Spanish war Veterans, their families and friends.

Dr. Baron, who represented Ambassador Don Oscar B. Cintas, who is in Cuba, told of going with other lads to visit the famous battleship on the fateful day. They were informed, he related, that they would have to view the ship the next day as visiting hours were over.

Lived Two Miles Away.

"At 8 o'clock that same night, while I was preparing my lessons at my home, located about 2 miles from the harbor, our house was shaken by a terrific concussion. I ran to the balcony. The sky was still red from the light of the explosion. The street was promptly filled by alarmed neighbors," Dr. Baron said.

"A policeman passing by informed us that there had been an explosion at the bay. I returned to my books unaware that I should now be unable to fulfil my desire of visiting the beautiful American battleship.

"The next day I learned that the explosion had destroyed the Maine, filling with sorrow, awe and anxiety the whole people of Cuba, long suffering from the horrors of interminable years of heroic and unequal struggle for independence."

Generous Blood Shed.

Dr. Baron then spoke of the war that soon followed and told veterans assembled that "your generous blood was shed with our own for a just an noble cause. As a result Cuba took its rightful place in the concert of nations, consecrated by liberty, to be always the grateful ally of the United States."

The speaker concluded with the assertion that the words, "Remember the Maine," should become "a prayer for the souls of those who perished in the epoch-making cataclysm."

The commemorative exercises were presided over by Patrick J. Callan, commander of the Department of the District of the organization. Another address was delivered by William J. Otjen, national commander of the veterans.

Hoover Sends Wreath.

The services began with the placing of a wreath, presented by President Hoover, on the Maine Shaft in Arlington Cemetery, by members of the ladies auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans' organization.

Patriotic and other music was rendered by the United States Marine Band. Miss Hazel Arth, noted contralto, sang the "Recessional" of DeKoven and "Ave Maria" by Schubert. The exercises were concluded with the firing of three volleys by a file of Marines, the sounding of taps, by a Marine trumpeter, and benediction pronounced by the Rev. William M. LaRoche, chaplain of the District department of the veterans' organization.

The District department tonight will hold its annual banquet at the Mayflower Hotel, beginning at 7:30 p. m. Commander in Chief Otjen will be the honor guest and many notables are expected to be present.

Gen. Catlin, of Capital, Is Survivor of Explosion

Two American men of arms yesterday had vivid impressions of the sinking of the Maine brought back to them by exercises commemorative thereof.

One of them is a Washingtonian—Brig. Gen. A. W. Catlin, Marine Corps, retired, of 1502 Crittenden street northwest. As a young Marine officer he was one of the few survivors of the Maine.

The other, still an active officer of the Navy, is Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, of New Orleans, commandant of the Ninth Naval District with headquarters on the Great Lakes.

Gen. Catlin, who retired from the Marine Corps in 1919 after a notable career, including distinguished service in the World War, kept himself afloat for hours in Havana Harbor after the explosion.

P. U. C. HOLDS QUIZ ON RATE CUT TODAY

Public Parley to Determine How $562,000 Slash Will Be Distributed.

The Public Utilities Commission at 10 o'clock this morning will open a public hearing for the purpose of determining how the $562,000 available for electric rate reductions shall be distributed among the several classes of service.

The hearing probably will not last but the one day, and the new rates are scheduled to go into effect, next Monday. None of the customary controversy which is associated with rate hearings is anticipated as the commission and the Potomac Electric Power Co. already have reached an amicable agreement as to how much money is to be applied to the reductions.

Whatever be the cut in the initial household rate, now 3.9 cents per kilowatt hour, it probably will not be as great as was the cut last year from 4.2 cents as the amount is $300,000 less than that in 1932.

William A. Roberts, special assistant counsel for the commission, said last night he would initiate a new policy by not introducing any evidence in behalf of the commission although its technical staff has prepared numerous schedules and data. This information will be available only for the commission's use or for checking against any proposals offered.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and the power company are expected to present proposed schedules, and the commission will hear any and all plans that may be offered.

There will be a dinner, followed by speaking and dancing. Part of the program will be broadcast over the radio and Senator Bulow will be guest speaker.

Judge Delays Ruling On False-Oath Charge

Judge John P. McMahon yesterday took under advisement in Police Court a charge of perjury against Charles H. Smith, who was accused of having sworn that he was 21 when he applied for a permit to drive a taxicab.

Police claimed his birth certificate showed he was only 20. Judge McMahon intimated he would decide Saturday whether Smith is to face the grand jury.

WHOLE CADET CORPS IN INAUGURAL MARCH TO BE URGED TODAY

Battle Flags of All Wars to Be in Veterans' Division in Great Parade.

A plan through which the entire Washington High School Cadet Corps might take part in the inaugural parade without reducing other units will be presented to the parade committee of the Roosevelt inaugural at a meeting this morning, it was announced last night.

Backers of the plan said that the entire corps could pass a single point within 20 minutes, only 10 more minutes than would be required under the present plan of having only two companies from each school participate.

The "parade for all cadets" boosters also asserted that President-elect Roosevelt, if familiarized with the situation, would insist on participation by the entire corps so that no single cadet in Washington would be disappointed.

Massed Battle Flags.

Battle flags of all wars will be massed at the head of the Third Division of the Roosevelt inaugural parade in which all veterans' organizations will be grouped according to announcement yesterday by K. A. McRae, national liaison officer for Louis A. Johnson, national commander of the American Legion. Since this is the first time in the history of inaugural parades that veterans of all wars have been grouped in single divisions, it is expected that the combined colors will make one of the most impressive sights Washington has ever witnessed.

Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, chairman of the inaugural ball committee, yesterday announced the complete membership of the dance music committee. It follows: Miss Helen Coolidge, Miss Helen Lee Doherty, Miss Laura Barkley, Miss Sara Carey, Miss Katherine Hebert, Miss Marguerite Hebert, Miss Margaret Ayers, Miss Peggy Hawes, Miss Kathleen King, Miss Marie Broussard, Mrs. Gardner Dantz, Miss Marion Shouse, Miss Elizabeth Shouse, Miss Jane Crosby, Miss Louise Tittman, Miss Virginia Jenckes, Miss Caroline Huston Thompson, Miss Rahel Davies, Miss Grace Tumulty, Miss Katherine Tumulty, Miss Alicia Tumulty, Miss Catherine Lewis, and Miss Helen Clifford.

Mrs. Dougherty also announced that the inaugural ball floor committee, of which Admiral William A. Moffett is chairman, met yesterday at the ball headquarters and made plans for the reception and seating of guests at the ball.

Tickets For U. S. Workers.

Chief clerks and other governmental department heads meeting with the ticket sales committee yesterday in the Washington Building decided to complete their solicitation for inaugural parade tickets among the various departments by Friday noon. Reports made by the various departmental representatives indicated there has already been a heavy sale of tickets, but Daniel C. Roper, who addressed the meeting said that he wanted to give every Government employe an opportunity to get seats in advance of the last-minute rush.

Those who attended the meeting were: Daniel C. Roper, Miss Etta Taggart, Mrs. Lester J. Pollock, H. R. Stutsman, Melvin D. Hildreth, William J. Hobbs, H. J. Gyerman, Edison Counts, E. G. Walker, George S. Ward, Robert N. Miller, Mrs. Hamilton Lamar, Maj. Sidney Morgan, secretary, Tariff Commission; E. W. Libbey, chief clerk, Department of Commerce; C. G. Duganne, assistant secretary, Federal Trade Commission; P. S. Curtis, chief clerk, Navy Department; William C. Hull, assistant secretary, Civil Service Commission; H. H. Wright, chief clerk, Government Printing Office; A. T. Davis, chief clerk, Postoffice Department; W. H. Parker, chief clerk, accounting office, Navy Department; F. A. Birgfeld, chief clerk, Treasury Department; F. D. Van Valin, Department of State.

Officials of the Rotary Club announced yesterday that the club's luncheon meeting inaugural week would be held Friday instead of Wednesday for the accommodation of Rotarians visiting the inaugural. Both the Rotarians and Optimists were addressed yesterday by an inaugural committee representative.

Huston Thompson, chairman of the general entertainment inaugural committee, yesterday announced that tickets for the inaugural concert had been placed on sale at Junior League headquarters, 1518 Connecticut avenue.

Garner's Big Reception.

More political figures than have ever been assembled at any time other than at a national convention will be under one roof on the night of March 3, when the Vice President's, governors' and inaugural State committees' reception will be held at the Pan-American Union, under the direction of the inaugural committee on distinguished guests, of which Ray Baker is chairman.

Indications already are that more than 1,000 persons of political prominence will be included among the guests of honor. Governors from more than half of the
